BRISK RISE IN STOCKS ON 'CHANGE

Market Disregards an 8 Per cent Renewal Rate for Call Money and Reserve Bank Meeting.

COPPER AND UTILITY SHARES LEAD UPTURN

New Tops for This Year Reached by Some Speculative Issues During Last Hour of Trade.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Feb. 11.—Disregarding an 8 per cent renewal rate for call money and the meeting of the directors of the New York Federal Reserve Bank after the close, the stock market rallied briskly today under the leadership of the copper and public utility shares. Some irregularity developed at the opening, but the losses were quickly cut down or wiped out, and scores of issues were marked up 2 to 11 points with Radio up 14 points.

New tops for the year were reached by some of the speculative issues during the last hour as buying for both accounts continued despite the holiday tomorrow. Trading, however, was comparatively dull. International Combustion Engineering, Union Carbide, American Power and Light, Johns Manville, and Interstate Department Stores mounted 5 to 9¼ points, finishing 3¾ to 8¾ net higher. The closing was strong. Total sales approximated 3,900,000 shares.

The average of 50 industrials rose 5 points, the 20 rails 1.3 points and 20 industrials 4.4 points.

The renewal rate for call money was the highest since Jan. 4, when the market was still in the throes of year-end readjustments, but a flood of new funds was attracted by the high charge, with the result that loans in the "outside market" were available at 7½ in the early afternoon.

Wall street apparently recovered from the fears that the New York Federal Reserve rediscount rate would be increased this afternoon, although some of the more conservative commission houses continued to urge caution in the making of new commitments. Except for the announcement that the Studebaker Corporation Mail Order had entered the radio business and a series of favorable week-end trade reports, there was little in the day's news to influence the prive movement.

It was announced after the close of market that directors of the Federal Reserve Bank of New York, in their special meeting today, made no change in its rediscount rate of five per cent. The directors made no statement concerning the meeting.

Coppers Are Bought.

There was heavy buying of the coppers. Talk of still higher prices for the red metal was heard. Cleone-Cananea ran up 9¾ points, Anaconda 7¾ and St. Joseph Lead, Calumet & Arizona and Keenecott sold 4 to 5¾ higher, at the close St. Joseph Lead was 3⅞ points net higher and Kennecott 4¾ up.

Radio (old stock) soared 14 points and American & Foreign Power, Pere Marquette, U. S. Realty, Real Silk Hosiery, Commonwealth Power, Goodyear Rubber General Electric, Bethlehem Steel, A. M. Byers, International Business Machine, Westinghouse Electric, Simmons Co. and Victor Talking Machine all ranged 3¾ to 11¼ points higher. Chrysler Motors had another sinking spell around midday, dropping to a ned 1929 low at 100, but at the close a net gain of 2¾ points was made.

Opening Is Irregular.

Stock prices moved irregularly at the opening of today's market after the two-day holiday.

Wright Aeronautical broke 9 points on the first few minutes of trading. Gains of 1 to 3 points were recorded by Atchison, National Cash Register, U. S. Steel, Kennecott and Columbia Gas. Canadian Pacific opened 2 points higher, Sinclair Oil showed an initial gain of 1¾ and gains of a point or so were recorded by International Nickel, Granby Copper and International Telephone.

Closing stock prices with other tables and market news will be found on pages 31, 32 and 33.

Miss Bobby Trout of Los Angeles Sets New Marks for Endurance, Distance and Night Flying.

By the Associated Press.

MINES FIELD, LOS ANGELES, Cal., Feb. 11.—Miss Bobby Trout, 22 years old, of Los Angeles landed here at 10:19:30 o'clock this morning (12:19 St. Louis time) in her Golden Eagle monoplane, after setting a new world's endurance flight record for women of 17 hours 5 minutes and 37 seconds. She also set two other marks for women flyers, the night flying record of eight hours and the distance record of 932 miles.

Miss Trout was a trifle haggard, but she smiled cheerfully as an enthusiastic group of officials helped her from the cockpit.

Miss Elinor Smith of New York recently set the previous endurance record for women by remaining in air 13 hours, 16 minutes and 45 seconds. Miss Trout had held the record of 12 hours 11 minutes before Miss Smith surpassed it, and today exceeded her rival's mark.

Miss Trout's flight, which began at 5:10:45 o'clock yesterday afternoon, surpassed Miss Smith's mark by 3 hours 48 minutes and 52 seconds.

Miss Marvel Crosson, 25 years old, made an attempt yesterday to surpass the woman's altitude record of 20,270 feet held by Mrs. Louise McPhatridge Thaden of Oakland, Cal. The barograph on Miss Crosson's plane will be sent to Washington for an official reading.

BELLEVILLE JUSTICE OF PEACE KILLS SELF

Thomas J. Hitchings Ends Life When Facing Demand for Accounting.

Thomas J. Hitchings, Justice of the Peace at Belleville, shot and killed himself in his room today when two men called on him to ask for an accounting of funds which they had turned over to him for the purchase of State automobile licenses.

Hitchings, who was 57 years old, had been worried for some time, it was said, because of the letters he had been receiving from his 19-year-old wife, the former Bernice Gregory, who is serving a term in the Statesville (Ill.) prison, for bank robbery.

He told a friend recently, "She's driving me mad. She wants me to get her out, but what can I do?"

Two men called at the home of Edward Buser, 118 South Charles street, Belleville, where Hitchings roomed, at 11 o'clock. Hitchings had been out later than usual last night and had not arisen. Mrs. Buser went to his door and knocked, saying: "There are two men downstairs waiting to see you."

Hitchings did not answer, and Mrs. Buser, frightened, called her husband. Buser found the door to Hitchings' room locked. He climbed out of the window in an adjoining room, and made his way along a narrow ledge to Hitchings' room. There he found the Justice of the Peace in his night clothes, lying across a bed, with a bullet wound in the temple, and a .38 caliber revolver on the floor nearby.

He was still breathing but was unconscious. Mrs. Buser called a physician and police, but when they arrived Hitchings was dead.

Chief Deputy Sheriff H. O. Bilzing told the Post-Dispatch that Hitchings was short $140.60 in his accounts with the Sheriff's office. This amount, Bilzing said, represented fees for warrants, which the Justice of the Peace had collected and had failed to turn over to the Sheriff.

At the State Attorney's office, it was said that many persons had complained they gave Hitchings money for State automobile licenses and failed to receive the licenses. Last summer, he was short between $400 and $500 in delinquent personal taxes which he had collected for the county but had not turned over. Hitchings made this sum good last August, it was said.

Mrs. Hitchings and Newman A. Cox, East St. Louis insurance salesman, pleaded guilty of robbery and were sentenced to indeterminate prison terms of from one year to life, March 4, last, before Circuit Judge William A. Wright at Salem, Ill. They had been indicted by a grand jury only a few minutes before, in the robbery of the Farmers' & Merchants' Bank of Vernon, Ill., in which $3200 was taken.

Hitchings was a former member of the Belleville City Council and was a candidate for re-election as a Justice of the Peace, on the Liberty party ticket at the April election. He is survived by a son and a daughter by his first marriage.

FIRST NATIONAL IS MERGED WITH LIBERTY CENTRAL

New Organization to Take Name of the Former — Total Resources Will Be $213,000,000.

WILL BE LARGEST IN ST. LOUIS

Formal Announcement by Directors Confirms Combination That Was Forecast Saturday.

The consolidation of the First National Bank in St. Louis and the Liberty Central Trust Co., as forecast exclusively in the Post-Dispatch Saturday, was announced today shortly after meetings of the directors of the two financial institutions, at which the proposal was ratified.

The new organization will be known as the First National Bank in St. Louis and will have total resources of approximately $213,000,000, making it by far the largest bank in St. Louis.

The merger announcement was contained in a joint statement issued by Walter W. Smith, president of the First National, and F. E. Gunter, president of the Liberty Central. The new bank will have a capital of $11,000,000, surplus of $5,000,000 and undivided profits of $4,000,000.

Balance sheets for Dec. 31, 1928, listed First National's total resources at $160,095,094, and the Liberty Central's resources at $53,082,892, or a total of $213,177,986.

The recently announced merger of the Mercantile Trust Co. and the National Bank of Commerce, now in process of execution, involves joint resources of $164,965,696, as of Dec. 31.

Watts to Be Chairman of Board.

Frank O. Watts and Smith will remain chairman of the board and president, respectively, of the First National Bank, while Gunter will become vice chairman of the new board which will be made up of the present directors of the First National and 13 of the directors of the Liberty Central. All officers and employes of the merging banks will be continued in service.

The capital structure of the First National will be reorganized so that stockholders of the Liberty Central will receive 10,000 of the new shares and stockholders of the present First National 100,000 shares of the new $11,000,000 capital stock.

Combined capital, surplus and undivided profits of the two institutions, as of Dec. 31, was $21,597,866. This figure probably will be reduced to $20,000,000, the amount of the new capital structure, by refunds to stockholders. At present, the First National is capitalized at $10,000,000 with surplus and undivided profits of $7,169,309 and deposits of $136,523,762, while the Liberty Central is capitalized at $3,000,000 with surplus and undivided profits at $1,428,557 and deposits of $40,887,546.

A joint statement, issued by President Gunter of the Liberty Central and President Smith of the First National follows:

"We are pleased to announceto our customers and friends that the directors of the First National Bank in St. Louis and of the Liberty Central Trust Co. has approved a contract to consolidate the two institutions under the name of the First National Bank in St. Louis.

"This consolidation agreement will be submitted at an early date to the respective stockholders of the Trust Co. and the National Bank.

Capital to Be $11,000,000.

"The plan of consolidation provides a capital of $11,000,000, a surplus of $5,000,000, with undivided profits of approximately $4,000,000, and total assets of over $200,000,000.

"The stockholders of the Liberty Central Trust Co. will receive 10,000 shares of the capital stock of the consolidated bank, and the stockholders of the First National Bank will receive 100,000 shares.

"The stockholders of the consolidated bank will also share pro rata in the capital stock and earnings of the First National Co., which has been operated as the investment banking division of the First National Bank.

"This consolidation is in keeping with the development of bank mergers in other large financial centers and insures adequate banking capital and service to our trade territory and customers. Mergers in commercial lines have created a greater need of large banks to properly finance the changed situation, and we are pleased to be in position to take care of this increased demand.

"Under the contract there will be an early physical consolidation

TRAIN DYNAMITED BUT PRESIDENT OF MEXICO IS UNHURT

TROOPS HOLD PEOPLE IN CHECK

One Killed in Rioting—Attempt Made to Blow Up Headquarters of Saenz, Calles' Son-in-Law.

By the Associated Press.

MEXICO CITY, Feb. 11.—President Portes Gil, apparently unperturbed by his experience of yesterday, when the train on which he was traveling to the capital was dynamited, took up his routine work at the executive office this morning. He appeared at his usual hour, despite the fact that he did not arrive in Mexico City until well after midnight.

All resources of the Government, military, detective and police, were searching today for the authors of the attack on the presidential train. The bombing occurred early yesterday, in the State of Guanajuato.

Police were also busy questioning persons who were arrested in connection with disorders that accompanied the funeral of Jose de Leon Toral, assassin of Gen. Alvaro Obregon, who was executed by a firing squad Saturday.

Thirty-four Arrested.

Of 34 persons arrested, 20 were women. One person was killed and 30 were wounded.

Near the scene of the dynamiting of the train troops found the remains of an open air meal, some sulphuric acid and a receipt for a telegram sent at Tampico, where the President had been after a visit to Ciudad Victoria to attend the inauguration of his successor as Governor of the State of Tamaulipas.

Further down the track another dynamite bomb—unexploded—was found fastened to the rails.

The President was greatly pleased at receiving a personal message from President Coolidge congratulating him on his escape from injury in the attempt upon his life. A similar message from the State Department was presented by Ambassador Dwight W. Morrow, who added his personal felicitations. The Mexican executive and other members of the Government were impressed by these communications, which they said gave additional evidence of the friendliness of the United States toward Mexico.

Revenge for Toral Suspected.

Police vigilance for the protection of the President and for the guarding of Government leaders as well as other prominent personages were increased. These precautions resulted not only from the attempt on Portes Gil but also from the discovery of an unexploded bomb in the offices of Aaron Saenz, close political friend of Obregon, and candidate for the presidency at next autumn's election. Saenz was seated beside Obregon when Toral murdered the President-elect.

The discovery of this bomb and the announcement that investigators had found "religious emblems and propaganda" near the place where the presidential train was dynamited, caused the authorities to proceed on the theory that revenge for the execution of Toral or religious feeling, such as Toral said had led him to kill the President-elect, had inspired Sunday's events.

Mrs. Morrow, who is on her way here after a visit to the United States, will pass the place where a bomb blew up a short bridge in front of the President's train. Both the train and the route are strongly guarded. Her arrival here may be delayed as all traffic was disorganized by the damage to the right-of-way. Repairs were being rushed and the railway management said it hoped to have normal schedules in operation by night fall.

MEXICO CITY, Feb. 11.—The private train on which President Emilio Portes Gil was returning to Mexico City from the State of Tamaulipas was dynamited yesterday morning. President Gil escaped injury.

The attempt on the President's life was made while a crowd of 100,000 gathered to follow the funeral cortege of Jose de Leon Toral, assassin of President-elect Alvaro Obregon.

VATICAN AND MUSSOLINI SIGN AGREEMENT ENDING BREACH OF 59 YEARS

Pope's Explanation of Concordat

By the Associated Press.

ROME, Feb. 11.—Pope Pius, referring to today's signing of the agreement with Italy, said that it assured him of "real, proper and absolute sovereignty, one which was evidently due to him who, for Divine reasons and by Divine mandate, cannot be the subject of any temporal power."

The Pontiff made his remarks when receiving the Lenten preachers of the Roman diocese and the parish priests of the city for their annual audience prior to Ash Wednesday. Amidst the applause of the ecclesiastics, he referred to the Lateran Palace as his own rectory.

Pope Pius then said that today's treaty was aimed to reorganize and reco-ordinate religion's condition in Italy which had been for so long a time perplexed, subverted and devastated. He added that he would not enter into particulars because the hour and time did not permit nor did the regards which he owned to the State, seeing that the arrangements have not yet been perfected and finished. To the signatures of the plenipotentiaries must be added those of both sovereigns, the Pope continued. This was looked upon as a hint that he might not appear on the balcony of St. Peter's or the steps of it at the conclusion of tomorrow's anniversary mass.

The Pope warned his hearers against some criticisms already manifested in Italy and abroad but said that the Lenten preachers need not bother to refute them from their pulpits. In fact, he said, doubts and criticisms left him most tranquil: criticisms directed against himself because he solely was responsible for what had transpired and what was coming. No one could say that the affair had not been for 30 months the object of his personal study, meditation and prayer. Also that prayers had been asked of many good souls.

Impossible to Satisfy Everybody.

"This has been said," he added, "it is impossibleto satisfy everybody."

The Pontiff also denied that the summoning of the diplomatic corps Thursday morning to tell them of the agreement signified that he was endeavoring to get the consent of Powers outside of Italy. It was an elementary duty of politeness to communicate the outline of the decision to those who always were ready with their good offices, but he had asked them for no guarantees since the real and rightful guarantees only could be found in the justice, conscience and sense of the Italian people.

The future was in the hands of God, continued the Pontiff, and whatever might be the dispositions of Providence, he would follow them.

There were other criticisms the Pope observed, some that he had asked too little and others that he had asked overmuch. Some would find the territory too little, that too small an amount of land was his by sovereign right; but against that he could say that he wanted to ask little, the least possible, for reasons that seemed good and urgent to him. Before all, he wanted to show that he was a father treating with a son and that, therefore, he wished to render things as easy as possible; secondly, that he wanted to dissipate all alarms and render unjustifiable all recriminations with regard to territorial integrity and, thirdly, because he wanted to show in peremptory fashion that the Pope was not moved by any "terrestrial cupidity," but only by that conscience which came to him from that sovereignty which is in the exercise of the sovereignty of God, and to wish only that which sufficed as a support of his real and indispensable sovereignty.

Territory Small, but Great.

Thus he hoped that it would be clear that the vicar of Christ only had asked the land which was necessary and the material amount which was necessary for spiritual sovereignty. The territory was small, but he dared say that it was the greatest of the world, in which there was a colonnade of Bernini, a cupola of Michaelangelo, treasures of science in its gardens and libraries, treasures of art in its museums and galleries and the tomb, moreover, of the Prince of Apostles.

In the financial field, which he preferred to call the economic field, there had been objections made—many let themselves be deluded by the sonorousness of certain words but did not reflect upon the real content of them. The Holy See was primarily interested in the spiritual question for which was necessary an indemnity which would give the Pope economic independence.

"Thy will be done," the Pope concluded after saying that the ways of the Lord are miraculous.

CONCORDAT AND TWO TREATIES ENTERED INTO

INDEMNITY REDUCED TO $87,500,000

Few Other Changes Made —Crowd of 4000 Waits Outside Papal Hall During Historic Ceremony.

By the Associated Press.

ROME, Feb. 11.—After more than half a century of estrangement, peace was formally established today between the Holy See and the Italian Government, marking one of the most momentous chapters in the modern history of the Church and State.

Representing the Vatican and the Italian Government respectively, Cardinal Gasparri, Papal Secretary of State, and Premier Mussolini, creator of the Fascist state in Italy, at 12 o'clock noon (5 a. m. St. Louis time) placed their signatures upon three historical documents, one a treaty solving and eliminating the "Roman question," which has existed ever since the loss of temporal power in 1870, the second a concordat designed to regulate the relations of the church and stae in Italy, and a third a convention settling the financial relations between the Holy See and Italy.

The text of these documents was not made public since they must still be presented for discussion to the Legislative Assembly, but it was announced that an exhaustive and precise synopsis would be given out tomorrow, which is the anniversary of the coronation of Pope Pius.

While the official text has not been made public, it is known that the first treaty recognizes the absolute independence and sovereignty of the Pontiff, at the same time slightly rectifying the boundaries of the Vatican without any great increase in its actual area. The concordat, regarde in some quarters as of even greater importance, concerns the relations between Italy and the Holy See. It is understood to provide for the acceptance of canon law by the State, thus introducing the church attitude on such questions as marriage and divorce into the civil code.

Amount of Indemnity Reduced.

The agreement provides for an indemnity, which the Italian Government will pay the Vatican. At first the indemnity was placed at 2,000,000,000 lire (about $105,000,000), but this was reduced to 1,750,000,000 lire, of which 750,000,000 (about $39,375,000) will be paid in cash and the remainder in Government bonds. The total amount is about $87,500,000.

The Pope, in agreement with Mussolini, introduced a few last-minute modifications. The railway station which the Holy See, according to the agreement, has the right to have inside the Vatican territory will be immediately outside the limits of the Vatican. It will, however, afford direct connection with the Vatican, so that visiting personages may arrive without stepping on Italian ground. This station will be exclusively for papal purposes.

This decision was reached by the Pope so late that it was impossible to discuss and agree upon all rules regarding the working of the station and the railroad line. Not wishing to postpone signature of the treaty because of this and still smaller questions of detail, it was agreed that they would be dealt with after the signature since there cannot be any important divergencies of opinion on such matters.

The signing of the documents took place in the famous council hall of the Lateran Palace. It was the first time that Premier Mussolini had ever entered the historic structure and he was plainly interested in the various works of art that adorned it. He and Cardinal Gasparri, who arrived at the palace about a half hour apart, greeted each other warmly and ex-

12.2 PCT. CUT IN COUNTY WATER RATE ORDERED

Will Apply Only to Metered Service Which Is Used by Greater Part of Customers.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

JEFFERSON CITY, Feb. 11.—The Missouri Public Service Commission today ordered a reduction of 12.2 per cent in the rates of the St. Louis County Water Co. for all custonfers with metered service, on the ground the present rates of the company are excessive.

The reduction in rates, effective March 1, will result in an estimated saving of $101,000 a year to water consumers in St. Louis County, based on the operations of the company in 1927. The reduction will apply to virtually all consumers of the company, as it has comparatively few using water on a flat rate basis.

The company was directed to file a new schedule of rates, complying with the commission order for a 12.2 per cent reduction, together with the details of how the reduced rate schedule was prepared.

SCOUTS SCATTER FEED TO SQUIRRELS AND BIRDS IN PARKS

Regularly Maintained Feeding Stations Augmented During Freezing Weather.

The bird and squirrel population of St. Louis, after several snowy days of slim pickings, retired to nests last night with stuffed craw and paunch after Boy Scouts had spent a busy day scattering grain, bread and nuts in public parks.

The Boy Scout organization maintains "feeding stations" in most of the parks, which it has been stocking with tid-bits several times a week during the cold weather. Yesterday morning members of Troop 90, on a hike through Forest Park, noticed the birds and squirrels seemed unusually hungry. So they scattered to their homes and telephoned members of other troops.

Soon automobiles and trucks laden with plunder from kitchens were speeding to the parks. The feast was spread by several hundred boys from 60 troops. By evening the day's good turn was done.

Scouts will continue to supply food for the birds as long as the freezing weather continues. The Missouri Game and Fish Commission recently requested that citizens throughout the State spread bread and grain on the snow during the winter season.

CHINESE GENERAL BUYS PLANE FROM MAHONEY-RYAN COMPANY

The Mahoney-Ryan Aircraft Corporation, at Lambert-St. Louis Field, today reported the sale of a $12,500 Ryan brougham to Gen. Liu, Chinese Nationalist military leader of Hongkong. The transaction was closed by cable.

Gen. Liu intends using the plane for his own transportation, it is understood. The Mahoney-Ryan company recently delivered five planes to a commercial aviation company in China.

REPARATION BODY CHOOSES YOUNG AS ITS CHAIRMAN

GATHERING HOPEFUL OF MUCH PROGRESS

American Delegates Expected to Help Surmount Crisis in Five-Week Session at Paris Conference.

By the Associated Press.

PARIS, Feb. 11.—Owen D. Young, one of the unofficial members from the United States of the new Reparations Commission, was formally chosen chairman of the body at its first business session today. The choice had been forecast by word from Washington that President Coolidge recognized that the Commissioners should select their own chairman, although earlier he had expressed a preference for the election of a European. The Commission was in session from 2 to 5 p. m. today, behind closed doors. The next session will be held tomorrow.

The experts assembled today around a huge table in the Hotel George V. The French delegates were at the right of Young, J. P. Morgan and Thomas L. Lamont. The British representatives were at the left of the Americans. Next to the British sat the Germans, and below the French were the Italians, Japanese and Belgians.

Experts in Closed Session.

The Japanese were the first to arrive, appearing at the Council room promptly on time at 2 o'clock. The others entered a few minutes later. Photographers and newspaper men were admitted, and there were many demands for poses and for action on behalf of news reels, as the delegates took their places. But all these outsiders were excluded when Emile Moreau, Governor of the Bank of France, called the meeting to order. The Commission remained in session three hours.

In the crowd of unofficial observers, reporters for German newspapers were conspicuous because of their number.

The unofficial atmosphere which permeated the assembling of the first formal meeting of the commission was considered most hopeful by the European members. Several of them said that they would depend upon the United States delegates to find a way for arriving at an agreement.

The honesty, impartiality and ability of the three representatives from the United States was emphasized in these comments.

Five-Week Session Expected.

It was predicted that moments of great crisis probably would arise from time to time within the five weeks which have been estimated as the period required for the task that confronts the commission. The general opinion today was that these crises could be surmounted by the attitude which the Americans were expected to take, or even by exercise of the authority of their position.

The Dawes plan determined the annual amounts which Germany was capable of paying toward reduction of its indebtedness to the allies. Events proved the accuracy of its authors' estimates of Germany's capacity to pay.

Now it is hoped to complete the plan by fixing the number and amount of annual payments by Germany with the ultimate end in view of commercializing the debt, and of transforming it from a political to a commercial obligation toward a host of bondholders spread over the face of the globe.

Such an operation would eliminate many of the controversies which have marked the payments in the past. Too, it would minimize the risk of default on the part of Germany because in refusing to meet obligations that nation would ruin its credit and destroy its exchange.

American financial leadership and the tendency to regard the American delegates as the most neutral of any here, most likely to be influenced by purely economic principles, have enhanced their position and made certain they play a predominating role in the conferences.

France and Germany represent the two extremes which must be reconciled. France hopes for nearly $10,000,000,000 from Germany—nearly $6,000,000,000 for reconstruction of Northern France and $4,000,000,000 to repay war debts to Great Britain and the United States.

Text of Official Summary Of Agreements Signed by Italian State and Vatican

Terms to Be Made Public Tomorrow—Pope Declares Holy See Satisfied and Roman Question Forever Settled.

By the Associated Press.

ROME, Feb. 11.—The text of the official communique summarizing the agreement, concordat and financial convention between the Vatican and the Italian Government, which will be published tomorrow, follows:

"The political treaty between the Holy See and Italy is composed of a preamble of 27 articles. After stating that the two high contracting parties recognize the advisability of eliminating every reason for enmity between them, it begins by reaffirming the principle contained in the first article of the Constitution of the Italian Kingdom by which the Catholic Apostolic Roman religion is the only State religion in Italy.

"The treaty then proceeds, recognizing the full property and exclusive dominion and sovereign jurisdiction of the Holy See over the Vatican as at present constituted.

"City of the Vatican."

"For this purpose, the 'City of the Vatican' is created, declaring that in its territory no interference by the Italian Government will be possible and that there will be no authority but the authority of the Holy see. St. Peter's Square, though forming part of the Vatican territory, will continue being normally open to the public and subject to the police powers of the Italian authorities. The boundaries of the Vatican City are indicated on a map annexed to the treaty.

"A special clause specifies that all public services with which the Vatican City will be endowed shall be by Italian connection with other states telegraph, telephone, wireless broadcasting and postal services.

"Another agreement was provided for between the Holy See and the Italian State for the circulation on Italian territory of terrestrial vehicles and aircraft belonging to the Vatican City.

"Another clause specifies persons subject to the sovereignty of the Holy See, namely those having stable residence in the Vatican City. The treaty also lays down the immunity which will be enjoyed even by those who do not reside in the above-mentioned city, namely all dignitaries of the Church, persons belonging to the pontifical court and Vatican officials declared indispensible by the Holy See.

"Territorial immunities also are provided for the patriarchal basilicas and certain edifices situated outside of the Vatican City in which the Holy See has housed or will house its congregations or offices and services necessary for its administration.

Diplomatic Relations.

"Italy recognized the Holy See's right to send its own diplomats to foreign countries and to receive foreign diplomats according to the general rules of international law. The two high contracting parties bind themselves to establish normal diplomatic relations by accrediting an Italian Ambassador to the Holy See and an apostolic nuncio to Italy who will be the dean of the diplomatic body according to customary procedure as recognized in the Congress of Vienna.

"It is also agreed that the artistic and scientific treasures existing in the Vatican City and Lateran Palace continue to remain visible to students and visitors.

"Another claus estates that if the Holy See requests it, either in any single case or as a general rule, the Italian Government will see to punishment in its own territory of crimes committed in the Vatican City. Similarly the Holy See will deliver to Italy persons who have taken refuge on Vatican territory accused of acts which are considered criminal by the laws of both States.

"Yet another clause states that the Vatican wishes to remain and will remain extraneous to temporal competitions between other States and from international congresses convened for this purpose unless the parties in conflict appeal unanimously to its mission of peace and reserving the right, in any case, to exercise its moral and spiritual power.

Vatican Declares Satisfaction.

"Then comes declaration as follows: 'The Holy See considers that with the agreements today signed it possesses guarantees necessary to provide with due liberty and independence the spiritual government of the diocese of Rome and of the Catholic church in Italy and the whole world, declares the Roman question definitely and irrevocably settled and therefore eliminated, and recognizes the Kingdom of Italy under the dynasty of the House of Savoy, with Rome as the capital of the Italian State. Italy on its side recognizes the state of the Vatican City under the sovereignty of the Supreme Pontiff. The law of guarantees and any other law or act contrary to the present treaty is abrogated.'

"The article concerning marriage is particularly interesting and says, 'The Italian State, wishing to give back to matrimony, which is the base of the family, dignity in agreement with the Catholic tradition of its people, recognizes matrimony as a sacrament regulated by canon law in its relation to civil law. The bans of marriage must appear in the parish church as well as in the municipality. Immediately after the celebration of marriage, the parish priest will explain to the married couple the civil consequences of marriage reading the articles of the civil code concerning the rights and duties of a married couple.

On Dissolution of Marriages.

"The parish priest must also send within five days the marriage certificate to the municipality and have it copied in the registers there."

"Cases concerning the nullity of marriage and the dissolution of marriages celebrated but not consummated are reserved to the ecclesiastical courts. Their sentences, before becoming definite, must be brought before the supreme Tribunal of Segnatura (a king or supreme court) which will determine if all the rules of canon law have been respected concerning the competence of the judge and whether the interested parties were represented before the court or judged by default. The decision of the supreme Tribunal of Segnatura will be sent to the Court of Appeal of the Italian State which will enforce the sentences of the ecclesiastical authority, ordering them to be annotated in the municipal marriage registers. With regard to cases of separation, the Holy See consents to judgment being given by the Italian civil authorities."

"The teaching of religion becomes compulsory, not only in the elementary schools but also in the secondary schools acording to the program established in the accord between the Holy See and Italy. Italy recognizes Catholic organizations forming part of 'Italian Catholic action' which according to instruction of the Holy See must keep their activity outside of any political party and under the immediate control of the hierarchy of the church for spreading and applying Catholic principles.

"Toward the end the concordat establishes that any future difficulty in the interpretation of the same, is to be solved by the Holy See and Italy through mutual and friendly understanding.

Pope Gets $87,500,000.

"The financial convention establishes that the Holy See, as definite settlement of all its financial relations with Italy in consequence of the fall of temporal power, accepts 750,000,000 lire (about $39,375,000) cash and 1,000,000,000 lire (about $48,125,000) in Italian State consols at 5 per cent. This sum is inferior to what Italy would have paid if the Holy See had accepted the allowance granted by the law of guarantees of May 13, 1871. The treaty of conciliation, the concordat and the financial convention must be ratified by the Supreme Pontiff and the King of Italy within four months from today's signature and will have effect from the moment of ratification."

LEAPS TO DEATH DAY AFTER MOTHER DIES

Miss Mary Saum, 53, Killed Self in 8-Story Jump, Coroner Decides.

A Coroner's verdict of suicide was returned today in the death of Miss Mary Saum, 53 years old, whose body was found at 7:30 o'clock yesterday morning on the roof of a one-story dining room on the north side of the Saum Hotel, 1919 South Grand boulevard.

The jury found that Miss Saum died of shock and a fractured skull suffered in jumping from a window on the ninth floor of the hotel while suffering from temporary mental aberration.

Frank J. Saum, her brother, one of the owners of the hotel, testified at the inquest. He told of the death of their mother, Mrs. Agnes Saum, 83 years old, at the hotel Saturday night of infirmities of age. Saum said his sister, who had been under treatment for nervousness for several years, was prostrated by the mother's death and retired to her room on the north side of the building at 11:30 p. m.

Saum said that when he sought to arouse his sister yesterday he received no response, and an investigation disclosed that she was not in the apartment or anywhere in the hotel. Saum telephoned police. An officer was sent to the hotel and was inspecting Miss Saum's apartment with Saum when a casement window was blown open, disclosing that it had been unfastened. Saum said he looked out of the window and saw his sister's body lying on the roof of the dining room, eight floors below.

An elevator operator at the hotel testified he heard a noise from the direction of the dining room at 2 a. m., but found nothing on investigating. When found the body was dressed in night clothing and a heavy coat.

Mrs. Agnes Saum was the widow of Philip Saum, hat manufacturer, who died in 1911. In addition to her sons, Frank and Thomas, she is survived by two other sons, Dr. Paul D. and Stephen Saum, and two daughters, Mrs. Joseph Katheim and Miss Anna Saum.

Double funeral services will be held at 9 o'clock tomorrow morning from an undertaking establishment at 2201 South Grand boulevard to St. Margaret's Catholic Church. Burial will be in SS. Peter and Paul's Cemetery.

Vatican and Italy Sign Concordat

changed a few compliments on the occasion.

There was a crowd of many thousands outside in the great square, but there was a light rain falling and there was no great excitement. Students in the various colleges and numerous priests were in the crowd and the police had comparatively little to do.

Official Communique Issued.

When the brief signing, which took place with a gold mounted quill, was over, an official communique was issued, reading as follows:

Today, at 12 o'clock in the Lateran Apostolic Palace, there has been signed by His Eminence, the Most Rev. Cardinal Pietro Gasparri, plenipotentiary of His Holiness, Pius XI, and by his Excellency, Chevalier Benito Mussolini, Prime Minister and chief of Government, plenipotentiary of his majesty Victor Emmanuel III, King of Italy, a political treaty which solves and eliminates the "Roman question"; a concordat intended to regulate the conditions of religion and of the church in Italy and a convention which definitely settles the financial relations between the Holy See and Italy in reference to the events of 1870.

There were present for the signing—For the Holy See: The Most Illustrious and Rev. Francesco Borgongini-Duca, secretary of Extraordinary Ecclesiastical Affairs; the Illustrious and Rev. Mgr. Giuseppe Pizzardo, undersecretary of State, and Prof. Lawyer Francesco Pacelli, consulting jurist of the Holy See. For Italy: His Excellency Alfred Rocco, Minister of Justice; His Excellency Dino Grandi, Undersecretary for Foreign Affairs, and His Excellency Francesco Giunta, undersecretary to the Prime Minister.

Out of consideration for the customs of the Holy See not to publish international conventions before they are presented for discussion to the legislative assembly, the text of the aforesaid convention will not be published at present, but tomorrow there will be given an exhaustive and precise synopsis.

Newspapers Print Special Editions.

The Rome newspapers appeared at noon with the first word of the accord which they had printed thus far. In special editions the papers varied their usual conservative headlines with 7-column display heads. They contented themselves, however, with merely printing the official announcement, together with quotations from Osservatore Romano, official Vatican organ, and did not give any details of the agreement.

With serried ranks theological students, baring their heads, sang the Te Deum under the rainy sky and 100 black-shirted militia shouted th eFascist battle cry in honor of the momentous scene being enacted within the Lateran Palace. The crowd, numbering almost 4000, watched the entrance and exit of the plenipotentiaries but the arrival of both Cardinal Gasparri and Mussolini was made so swiftly that the onlookers could scarcely catch their breaths. When they left, however, the crowd roundly cheered them.

The actual signing by the Cardinal and the Premier took about 25 minutes, the populace below waiting in the rain in the hope that the Cardinal and Duce would come to the big balcony overlooking the Lateran Square to receive their plaudits, but it was in vain.

The ceremony was marked by cordiality on both sides, but was business-like in its execution.

Scene in Papal Council Hall.

Climbing a great staircase 30 feet wide and having on both sides rows of antique marble sarcophagi, 40 in number, the various officials entered the Papal Council Hall.

Once in the large hall, into which the light came through 10 immense windows, Cardinal Gasparri and Mussolini, who had been preceded by Mgr. Ercole, director of the Lateran Museum, exchanged a few compliments after which they immediately proceeded to the presentation of their respective credentials.

Cardinal Gasparri greeted the Premier most warmly, saying that he was glad to welcome him in the oldest palace of the Popes on such an occasion. The Premier, with equal cordiality, answered that he was glad to be an instrument for re-establishment of peace between the church and state. The only outsiders present were Mgr. Enrico Pucci, representing the Vatican press, and Dr. Ferretti, head of the Press Bureau of the Premier.

Cardinal Signs, Then Premier.

Texts of the documents written in Italian, were then read, one by Ernesto Pacelli, the advocate, who represented the Holy See, and the other by Undersecretary Grandi, representing the State. Then came the solemn moment when Cardinal Gasparri signed the historical documents followed by the Premier.

The pen with which the agreements were signed was presented by Cardinal Gasparri to Mussolini, who thanked him and said that he would keep it among his most precious possessions.

The Cardinal, Premier and other principals signed the visitors' book in the museum in a special page illuminated for the occasion.

After the three treaties had been signed, the seals were placed upon them and the documents enclosed in a case of red damask.

When this had been concluded the party spent some time inspecting the museum which contains numerous articles from the missionary field.

Just as the plenipotentiaries were about to affix their signatures the great bells of St. John Lateran, "The Mother Church of Christendom," pealed joyously announcing "to the city and world" that the old difference of 1870 had finally been settled.

The treaty specifies that the Italian Government acknowledges as absolute property of the Holy See the churches of St. John Lateran, St. Mary Major and the palaces Cancelleria, Dateria, St. Calixtus and that of the congregation of the Oriental Church. In 1870 the Government confiscated property adjoining the churches of the Holy Apostles, Saint Andrew Della Valle, and St. Charles Catinari, using them for its own purposes, and now the treaty returns them to the Holy See.

The Franciscan order's basilica of St. Francis Assisi and the nearby monastery also return to the Holy See, but the "Holy Grotto" where St. Francis prayed, now enclosed in the large church of St. Mary of the Angels a few miles from Assisi, was not included in the restitution.

Pope Negotiated Concordat Without Consulting Cardinals

ROME, Feb. 11.—Signing of the treaty of conciliation and concordat between the Vatican and the Italian Government is being hailed in Rome as the consummation of the best act of secret diplomacy of modern times.

Considerable stress is placed by high prelates upon the fact that Pope Pius XI officially consulted neither the Sacred College nor the episcopate, taking upon himself entire responsibility for the settlement of the Roman question. A cautious minority is reserving judgment until the contents of the two documents are published in full, but it is generally thought that it is a bigger triumph for Mussolini than for the Pope.

Politicians concerned with the effect the settlement will have on future relations between Italy and the Vatican are interested in the report that Mussolini is considering the appointment of Senator Luigi Federzoni as the first Italian Ambassador to the Vatican. Federzoni's stanch friendship for the reigning house of Savoy is well known.

Everybody connected with the Vatican is anxious to learn exactly how the interests of particular departments will fare in the concordat, the clauses of which remain carefully guarded secrets. While heads of religious communities are at the highest pitch of expectancy as to whether the real estate their houses lost in 1870 will be restored by the secular government, members of the Sacred College also wish to exchange views with the papal secretary of state on questions of great concern to them.

In taking upon himself the entire responsibility for the settlement, the Pope gave an example of political sovereignty without the council, in contrast to the traditional sovereignty over the council. It is natural that the sacred college and the episcopate would like to hear something of the terms on which Pius XI and Premier Mussolini concluded the pact.

The secular and papal press remains silent on the situation. Now that the news of the reconciliation is such public property that even buyers and sellers in the market discuss its points, it is possible to form some idea of public opinion. From politicians down to peasants who have puzzled for years over the disturbing problem of the breach between Church and State, the reconciliation is equally welcome.

Masons' Views.

The prospect of Italy's having control over missions instead of France is a pleasing prospect for all.

Masons talk about the peril of having an independent sovereign state inside Rome. They foresee the election of a foreign Pope with disturbing developments for both Church and State.

Some of the Cardinals residing in Rome fear the Church may be called upon to face a dilemma. The Church cannot be free without territorial sovereignty, they say, but it cannot be theoretically free unless it can depend upon its own means of defense or find foreign defenders. They hint that the constitution of the papal state may cause administrative and judicial complications, which might tend to lessen instead of increasing its sovereign independence.

Citizens of Rome, whose sense of humor is proverbial, greatly enjoy the fact that many inhabitants of the old Ghetto, or Jewish quarter, are busy making small papal flags to sell in St. Peter's Square tomorrow, while mass is celebrated inside the church.

DISPUTED PICTURE HAS NO EYELASHES, DUVEEN DECLARES

And Mouth of "La Belle" Is Flat and Lifeless, Says Defendant in $500,000 Libel Suit.

PAINTING COMPARED WITH THE MONA LISA

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Feb. 11. — Refreshed by a week-end's respite from legal controversy, Sir Joseph Duveen took the stand in Supreme Court this morning for his fifth day of testimony in the $500,000 slander of title suit brought against him by Mrs. Andree Lardoux Hahn of Kansas City and Paris.

In 1920 the art expert said that a painting owned by Mrs. Hahn, "La Belle Ferronniere," was not a Leonardo da Vinci. Mrs. Hahn disagreeing, contended that that printed remark spoiled her sale of the picture to the Kansas City Art Museum.

The disputed picture and a photograph of another "La Belle" in the Louvre—Duveen holds that the latter is a real Leonardo and Mrs. Hahn's only a copy—were again in the courtroom as S. Lawrence Miller, Mrs. Hahn's counsel, resumed his examination of the Baronet.

Discussion of Eyelashes.

The first questions concerned the eyelashes of the young woman in the Hahn canvas.

"Do you see any indication of eyelashes?" asked Miller. "No," answered Duveen. "I don't feel they are there at all."

"You said the lack of these is one proof it is not a Da Vinci?"

"It's not a requirement, but Da Vinci always painted his eye-lashes as they are in nature," replied the critic.

Then Duveen, pointer in hand, left his chair to instruct the jury in the "feel" of Da Vinci masterpieces.

"How do you describe the eyelashes in the Louvre painting?" asked Mr. Miller. "In the real Leonardo," answered Duveen, "they make you feel that they grow out of the flesh.

"In the Hahn painting what do they grow out of?" "Not out of anything except some paint."

Compares Two Paintings.

A photograph of the Mona Lisa was shown Duveen.

"Does that picture have any eyebrows or any eyelashes?" asked Mr. Miller. "Can you see the eyebrows, Sir Joseph?" Yes, I see them indicated."

"Do they seem to spring from the flesh?" "Yes, naturally, quite lifelike."

Some of the questions were so exceedingly professional — Miller had evidently been giving some attention to the study of art—that the witness was forced to request the attorney not to make queries of that sort. It was then that he asserted:

After a lengthy discussion of the eyes of the Hahn picture Miller switched to the mouth.

Duveen in answer to questions, said that the mouth of the painting in controversy lacked the purity of line found in all the portraits of Leonardo. Miller asked whether the critic saw a smile on the photograph of the Louvre's "La Belle," and Duveen replied:

"Don't you see a smile on the Hahn painting?" Duveen's answer was that he saw "a certain smile in the left eye" and Miller suggested that perhaps the lady was winking. Duveen and the jury laughed.

Duveen couldn't see that the mouth of the Hahn portrait was smiling, and he affirmed that the mouth could not function if it were alive.

"Don't you think it (the mouth) is beautiful, really, Sir Joseph?" asked the lawyer, finally.

Duveen replied: "I only see blotches of black. I see only a piece of red and a block of black paint. It's as flat as a pancake."

Miller then got extremely technical, asking Duveen whether Leonardo had used "tempera" and what "gesso" meant.

"Don't ask me those questions, Mr. Miller," requested Duveen. "I don't know. I can't tell you. I'm not a specialist, only an expert."

The questioning got so technical that Justice Black, presiding, admonished Miller not to "get into the Einstein theory."

Then the lawyer took an excursion into the history of art, but the Court decided that that was rather irrelevant.

"If you keep that up," said Justice Black, "we will be studying art here for years."

They talked a bit about certain features of the Hahn canvas and Duveen asserted that it was "very flat," that it had no relief and that it had not been painted from life.

"Can you tell how old the Hahn painting is?" asked Miller. "I can tell you within 30 or 40 years," replied the witness. "I should say the picture was never painted before 1680, but between the years 1680 to 1750 or 1760." (Leonardo died in 1519.)

Pinned down for a more definite answer, Duveen said he thought the Hahn painting was done between 1700 and 1760.

"Where was it painted?" "France."

"Can you say by whom?" "No."

He said he was basing his opinion not on the technique, but on the character, details and border.

TRAIN BEARING PRESIDENT OF MEXICO BOMBED

attempt on Portes Gil's life was made in retaliation for his refusal to commute Toral's death sentence. While the Mexican President was not injured by the explosion of the dynamite bomb, which derailed the engine and two coaches, a fireman was killed when the engine overturned and four members of the presidential party were slightly injured.

The dynamiting occurred soon after 7 a. m., about 150 miles from Mexico City.

The bomb was placed on the tracks near a bridge over which a train carrying the President back from an official visit to the State of Tamaulipas was scheduled to pass. The force of the explosion overturned the engine and two of the foremost Pullmans in the train, in one of which the Director-General of Railroads was riding.

President Apparently Unshaken.

President Gil, apparently unshaken by his narrow escape, stepped from the car in which he had been riding with his wife and their baby daughter, and walked along the tracks, accompanied by the Secretary of War, to inspect the damage done by the explosion.

"The revolution is in luck," was his dry comment, spoken with a shrug as he gazed upon the destruction. (The President is a member of the National Revolutionary party.)

At San Luis Potosi a person dressed as a nun had approached the President, slipped a note into his hand and then disappeared. The note read: "Commend your soul to God. You will never arrive in Mexico City." The contents of the message, forgotten the moment after it was read, were recalled at the scene where the presidential train was wrecked.

About the time the attack was made on Portes Gil's train, surreptitious masses for the repose of Toral's soul were being said in thousands of homes in Mexico City. From dawn the churches were filled with praying Catholics. By noon—five hours before the time scheduled for the funeral—a police cordon stretching five blocks in every direction was drawn around the home of Toral's parents, where the body had rested since the previous evening in a flower-filled room.

Capt. Fernandez Raviel of the mounted police, who commanded the firing squad at Toral's execution in the courtyard of the Mexico City penitentiary and who himself gave the coup de grace with his pistol, was in command of the cordon and also of the police guards that surrounded the coffin on its way to the cemetery.

Clashes With Police.

From the moment the funeral cortage started from the elder Toral's home the assassin of Gen. Obregon received the acclaim of a martyr. Long before it was time for the hearse to start its three-mile journey to the Spanish cemetery thousands struggled so hard to get near the house in which his body lay that fire hose was turned on them to keep them back. The crowds, their frenzy growing, retaliated by stoning police and firemen. Shots fired over their heads could not hold them in check.

Along the long route traversed by the funeral cortege, clashes between the police and the crowds were constant. Mourners would try to break through the police lines to throw flowers on the coffin and were held back by the leveled bayonets and drawn sabers of the mounted police.

At the cemetery 50,000 emotional mourners hailed the arrival of the hearse with cries of "Viva Toral! Viva Cristo rey!" (Long live Toral! Long live Christ the King!)

As they were repulsed in their frantic efforts to reach the coffin their cry became "Death to the police!" Passage way for the automobiles in the funeral cortege was blocked as the cemetery was approached. Within half a mile of the grave police with bayonets trying to divert the mourners into side streets were the target for imprecations. There were innumerable altercations, many of them resulting in arrests and wounds.

Body Buried Hastily.

The immense throng that succeeded in entering the cemetery awaited the body shouting "Viva Christo rey!" When the hearse drove up there were more frenzied shouts of "Viva Toral!" The body was buried with great haste. As the coffin disappeared from sight mourners from all walks of life uncovered and as if by a prearranged signal broke into the hymn to the Virgin.

Secretary Kellogg also instructed the American Embassy at Mexico City to convey to President Gil the "sincere felicitations on the part of the Government and people of this country at his escape."

KIND OF WHISKY MUST BE PROVED, COURT DECLARES

Missouri Supreme Tribunal Grants New Trial Because Corn Was Specified but Not Shown.

By the Jefferson City Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

JEFFERSON CITY, Feb. 11.—Prosecutors of liquor cases brought under the State "bone dry" law must prove that any whisky involved is of the kind specifically named in the indictment, the Supreme Court in banc ruled today in ordering a new trial for a defendant because the evidence established only a sale of "whisky" and not "corn whisky" as charged.

Contrary to its appearance of a hair-splitting opinion, the ruling is of importance in clarifying the distinction between cases in which only misdemeanor penalties may be imposed and those in which felony convictions may be had, under existing laws. The Court went to some length in discussing its precedents for the ruling, and the difference between the misdemeanor section on "intoxicating liquors," and the felony section on "hootch," "moonshine" or "corn whisky."

The Court reversed the felony conviction of W. H. (Big Bill) Kroeger of Sedalia, who had been sentenced to two years in the penitentiary on a charge of selling a pint of "corn whisky," and remanded the case for new trial. This decision affirmed a previous ruling by Division No. 2 of the Court in the same case, which was transferred to court in banc for rehearing because of a dissent by Judge Robert F. Walker, who again dissented from the ruling today. The Court went more fully into the law involved, in the opinion delivered today.

Separate Opinion by White.

All the other Judges of Court in banc concurred in the majority opinion by Judge David E. Blair. A separate concurring opinion was filed by Judge J. T. White.

Three young witnesses testified concerning the purchase of a pint of whisky at Kroeger's filling station in Sedalia, one identifying Kroeger but none described the liquor as "corn whisky," the specific name used in the indictment.

Judge Blair held the evidence was insufficient to authorize a verdict by the jury that Kroeger had sold "whisky," which would have been a misdemeanor, but was not sufficient to justify a conviction of selling "corn whisky." He held Kroeger was improperly convicted of a felony under the proof made.

He stated Section 21 of the "Bone Dry law," enacted in 1923, made it a felony to manufacture, transport, sell or give away "hootch," "moonshine" or "corn whisky," and provided penalties ranging from two years to five years in the penitentiary, or a fine or jail sentence. These beverages had previously come within the term "intoxicating liquors," the manufacture, sale, transportation or giving away of which was made a misdemeanor by a law enacted in 1921, which still is in effect, Judge Blair said.

"The sale of intoxicating liquor, except 'hootch,' 'moonshine' or 'corn whisky,' is still only a misdemeanor in this State," the Judge stated.

The Judge held that before the State was entitled to convict a defendant of a felony, on a charge involving "hootch," "moonshine" or "corn whisky," it must prove that the liquor involved in the case was of the character described in the felony section. He pointed out that the section involved proof of unlawful traffic in such liquor, because the section exempts "corn whisky lawfully manufactured, transported or sold."

Judge White, in his separate concurring opinion, held the Legislature, by enacting the felony section covering "hootch," "moonshine" or "corn whisky" clearly intended to provide more severe penalties for traffic in them, and thereby had lifted these beverages out of the misdemeanor section covering all "intoxicating liquors." Otherwise the Legislature would have added "whisky" to the felony section, he said.

In his dissenting opinion Judge Walker declared the courts in former decisions had held "hootch," "moonshine" or "corn whisky" were simply whisky, and that the terms were synonymous. He declared the variance between charge and proof in this case were not prejudicial.

"Whisky, as defined and as uniformly regarded in this county, is an alcoholic liquid obtained by distilling the mash of fermented grain, usually either corn, rye, wheat or barley," Judge Walker said. "The term is, therefore, generic, and while the prohibitory statute is directed in terms against hootch, moonshine and corn whisky, each of these is whisky. The first is a slang designation of the general term; the second indicative of the time or conditions under which the liquor was made, and the third, the ingredient used in its manufacture.

"The purpose of the statute was evidently not to necessarily limit the prohibitory ban upon these liquors as specifically designated, but to forbid the manufacture, possession, gift or sale of whisky. Whether, therefore, it be called hootch, moonshine, booze, white mule, mountain dew or coffin varnish in the vernacular of the underworld, or that it was made in April's ivory moonlight, beneath the oak tree's shade, or that it was distilled from dextrose or the blood quickening juice of the fermented corn, it is, in its last analysis and under its generic title, simply whisky."

DOG BITES FOUR PERSONS; KILLED WITH BASEBALL BAT

Victims Treated at City Hospital and Advised to Take Pasteur Treatment.

Four persons were bitten yesterday afternoon by a dog which finally was killed by a policeman with a baseball bat.

Mrs. Emma Doerrer, 2105 Palm street, was bitten on the hand when she opened the kitchen door after hearing the animal, a fox terrier, moaning on the back porch. The dog then ran to the corner of Twenty-first and Palm, where it bit Mrs. Mae Huddlesen, 1415 Dillon street, on the right leg. It then entered a filling station lot across the street, where it bit William Spilker, 1435 Sullivan avenue, on the left hand, and Theodore Keneke, 3235 North Twentieth street, on the right leg.

A call brought two policemen to the corner. Patrolman Gibbons found the animal in the rear yard of 2117 Palm street, where he killed it. The four injured persons were treated at the City Hospital and advised to take the Pasteur treatment.

BAR OWNER SHOOTS MAN, SAYS HE WAS THREATENED

Tony Capriglione Declares Forest Claggett Advanced on Him With Gas Pipe.

Forest Claggett, 40 years old, 1203 South Vandeventer avenue, was shot in the left thigh yesterday afternoon by Tony Capriglione, 43, proprietor of a saloon at 1243 South Vandeventer avenue. Capriglione said Claggett had threatened to kill him.

Capriglione told police Claggett entered the saloon at 3:45 p. m. and struck at him with a piece of iron pipe. "If you snitch I'll kill you at 5 o'clock," Claggett said, according to Capriglione. The latter said he did not know what Claggett was referring to, but believing that he was in danger, got his revolver and fired two shots. Claggett is held a prisoner at City Hospital, where he declined to make a statement.

of the two institutions, and it is expected that the customers of both institutions will be served in the banking room of the First National Bank at Broadway and Locust street on or about the middle of March.

"F. O. Watts, the present chairman of the board of the First National Bank will continue in that capacity; F. E. Gunter, president of the Liberty Central Trust Co., will become vice-chairman of the board, and W. W. Smith, president of the First National Bank, will continue as president of the consolidated bank.

"All officers and employes of the Trust Co. will continue with the First National Bank, so that the customers of each institution can look forward to a continuation of business relations with those officers and employes that have served them in the past.

"It will be the definite purpose of every director, officer and employe to insure to the customers of the respective banks the same courteous treatment that they have enjoyed in the past.

"The directorate will include the members of the board of the present First National Bank and 13 of the directors of the Liberty Central Trust Co. These directors are leaders in commerce and industry in the Middle West and bring to the bank the broadest possible knowledge of business affairs and financial experience.

"We believe that this consolidation will be helpful to the city of St. Louis and that the location of the bank at Broadway and Locust will be in a measure stabilize real estate values in that section.

"We bespeak the continued patronage of our customers and express our appreciation of business intrusted to us."

First National Bank shares sold today on the St. Louis Stock Exchange at 401, a gain of 25 points over the last previous sale. During the session odd lots advanced as high as 420. Liberty Central, which is not listed, sold as high as 155 last week, a gain of about 20 points over the last previous sale.

The Liberty-Central Trust Co. will be moved from its present quarters at the southwest corner of Broadway and Olive streets and merged with the First National, at the southwest corner of Broadway and Locust street, a block north.

Other Mergers.

In the last two years there have been several large bank mergers in St. Louis, including the merger of the Franklin Bank and the American Trust Co., to form the Franklin-American Trust Co.; the Mississippi Valley Trust Co. and the Merchants-Laclede National Bank to form the Mississippi Valley Merchants Trust Co., now in the process of organization, and the Mercantile Trust-Bank of Commerce combine for which a name has not yet been selected.

The First National, formed 10 years ago by a merger of the Third National and Mechanics-American Banks and the St. Louis Union Trust Co., later absorbed the International Bank, while the Liberty Central was formed subsequently by a merger of the Liberty and Central National Banks.

10-OZ. OF ALCOHOL CHARGE DISMISSED

No Evidence to Hold Bussman Brothers, U. S. Commissioner Rules.

Charges of joint possession of 10 ounces of alcohol were dismissed by United States Commissioner Atkins today against Leo, Frank and Joseph Bussmann, brothers, who operate an electrical appliance factory at 2550W Sullivan avenue, upon the recommendation of Assistant District Attorney Hapke following a preliminary hearing.

Prohibition Agents Niebrugge and Stanley were the only witnesses at the hearing. They testified that they entered the Bussmann factory with a search warrant on Jan. 22. They had gained admission to he plant previously by a ruse, they said, and had seen a barrel of what they thought to be whisky "being swished about" on a rocking device—a process for aging whisky.

The agents testified that at the time of making the raid the barrel and the rocking apparatus could not be found. A search disclosed only 10 ounces of what they say was alcohol in two five-gallon tins.

The Bussmann brothers, who were present at the hearing, were not placed on the stand, Commissioner Atkins and Assistant District Attorney Hapke agreeing that the evidence was not sufficient to warrant taking the case before a Federal grand jury.

At the time of their release on $500 bond each the Bussmanns charged that Agents Niebrugge, Stanley and Byrd used profane language and that one of them carried an ax with which he threatened to smash factory equipment unless "the evidence" was produced. Byrd was not present at today's hearing.

Congressman John J. Cochran of St. Louis cited the Bussmann case before Congress as one reason for his opposition to the proposed $24,000,000 appropriation for prohibition enforcement.

WILLIAMSON COUNTY WILL SUE BOSWELL

$10,000 in Fines and Judgments Are Due, His Successor Says.

State's Attorney Browning of Williamson County, Ill., in East St. Louis today, announced he would file a suit in Circuit Court at Marion this afternoon to recover about $10,000 from his predecessor, Arlie O. Boswell, and nine bondsmen.

Browning said the sum represented money which Boswell had collected in fines and judgments and failed to account for to the County Treasurer. Boswell, now serving a two-year term in Leavenworth Penitentiary for conspiracy to violate the national prohibition law, denied during his recent trial that he owed money to the county, maintaining that when an audit was completed the county would be indebted to him.

Browning said the suit would be based on the audit which was in progress at the time of the trial and is now completed. Before Boswell left office on Dec. 3, last, Browning declared, he received his salary and expenses in the form of warrants, because the county was short of funds, and withheld his collections on the contention that the warrants might prove to be worthless. However, the audit showed that Boswell had discounted the warrants at banks, according to Browning.

FIRE DAMAGES HOME OF MAN WOUNDED IN GANG FIGHT

Charles Freese and Wife Routed by Blaze Which Is Being Investigated.

Charles Freese, alias Camelo Fresina, and his wife, Louisa, were routed to the street by a fire in their home at 2736 Semple avenue, at 12:50 a. m. today. Damage to the brick cottage and contents was estimated at $2200. Cause of the first is being investigated.

Freese is known as "the man with the pillow." He suffered a wound in a gang fight, and wherever he goes he carries a pillow with him to ease the pain when he sits down.

Freese was shot and two companions, Dominic Cataldo and Tony Ditrapani, were killed in a gang fight at 6129 Clayton avenue, Jan. 19, 1928.

COURT ACTION IS O K'D IN COMMITTEE CONTEST

Primary Is an Election to This Office, State Tribunal Rules.

JEFFERSON CITY, Feb. 11.—The Supreme Court in banc today ruled the St. Louis Circuit Court had authority to proceed with a contest filed by George J. Weber of the election of Henry Dawson as a member of the St. Louis Republican City Committee, in the primary election last August. The court quashed a preliminary writ of prohibition it had issued, restraining Circuit Judge Falkenhainer from hearing the contest.

Dawson was declared elected over Weber by a plurality of 37 votes, on the face of official returns in the Twenty-seventh Ward. Dawson received 2372 votes, Weber 2335, and a third candidate 292 votes.

The court overruled a contention by Dawson, raised in his application for a writ of prohibition, that the primary was not an election, within the meaning of the law, and that there was no means of contesting the result of the primary election.

Chief Justice J. T. White, who wrote the opinion, ruled the primary was an election for political committeemen, although a nominating procedure for other candidates. So far as committeemen were concerned, the primary vote was the final vote determining their right to the office, the Judge said. He stated that the Supreme Court previously had ruled that a political committeeman was a public officer, within the meaning of the law governing election contests. "It is just as important that he be honestly elected as any other official," the Judge said.

A contention that Judge Falkenhainer had no jurisdiction to issue any orders in the case because Dawson had not entered his pleadings in the contest, was overruled. This was raised in attacking an order issued by Judge Falkenhainer directing a recount of the ballots by the Board of Election Commissioners. Filing of the application for a writ in Supreme Court held up the recount. Judge White held the Circuit Judge had authority to issue the order as soon as the contest was pending in his court, and that it was "pending" after the petition had been filed and the notice served on Dawson.

COURT DEPLORES 'FUTILE LAWSUITS' BY PEPER HEIRS

Supreme Bench Again Upholds Title of Mrs. Estelle P. Barlow to $500,000 Property.

By the Jefferson City Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

JEFFERSON CITY, Feb. 11.—A pointed suggestion that dissatisfied heirs of Mrs. Caroline J. Peper of St. Louis should abandon "futile lawsuits" over control of her estate, and show some regard for the finality of previous decisions of the Missouri Supreme Court in the prolonged litigation, was made today by the Supreme Court en banc, in again ruling against a receivership for part of the property.

This is the fourth time that litigation over the estate has been before the Supreme Court, and the court, in an opinion by Judge Robert F. Walker, pointed out that questions raised in the case decided today had been passed upon by the Supreme Court in two previous decisions. Judge Walker held the case had no merit. The other Judges of court en banc concurred, except Judge Frank, not sitting.

"It would seem, aside from the resultant depletion of this estate by reason of the futile lawsuits to which it has been subjected," Judge Walker stated in the opinion, "that the trite but none the less true maxim should apply, that, in the interest of the public there should be an end to this controversy so far as concerns the control and management of the property belonging to this estate."

Suit Against Sister Fails.

The court sustained a ruling by St. Louis Circuit Court, dismissing a suit filed by the late Christian Peper Bushman against his sister, Mrs. Estelle Peper Barlow, to set aside deeds made by their mother, Mrs. Caroline J. Peper, conveying more than $500,000 in St. Louis real estate to Mrs. Barlow, and to have a receiver appointed.

Christian Peper Bushman died in January, 1926, while the suit was pending in the lower court, and it was continued in the names of his widow, Mrs. Anna Bushman, and their daughter, Ruth Bushman.

Mrs. Peper was the divorced wife of F. W. Bushman and resumed her maiden name of Peper after the divorce. She died in 1920. The children of the marriage retained the name of Bushman, with the exception of another son, Clarence, now deceased, who used the name of Peper. Christian Peper, a minor son of Clarence Peper, was a defendant with Mrs. Barlow in the suit.

Undue Influence Charged.

The petition filed by Bushman in the case decided today charged Mrs. Barlow had conceived a plan to defraud her mother of her property, and, through alleged undue influence, persuaded Mrs. Peper to convey to her, Mrs. Peper's interest in 10 parcels of St. Louis real estate, on Jan. 14, 1911.

The Circuit Court sustained a defense demurrer, after the petition had been amended four times by the plaintiffs, and entered a judgment for Mrs. Barlow.

Judge Walker said the charges made in an effort to have the deeds set aside, and a receiver appointed for the property, were raised in the first receivership action, decided in 1925, and in a contest of the will of Mrs. Peper, decided by the court in March, 1927. Both of these cases were instituted by Christian Peper Bushman and both were decided against him.

The Judge said the court, in those cases, had found no credible evidence supporting the charges of fraud, mental incapacity on the part of Mrs. Peper, and undue influence on the part of Mrs. Barlow.

The petition in the present case, Judge Walker said, was "more copious in verbiage," but "less definite in fraud allegations," than in the previous cases.

Record of Suits

Mrs. Peper's will was sustained in the second of the series of cases before the Supreme Court. The will disposed of approximately $225,000 in property she had inherited from her father, Christian Peper, millionaire tobacco merchant. Nine years before her death she had conveyed the real estate involved in the present case, valued at more than $500,000, to Mrs. Barlow.

Property conveyed by the will was divided into three equal shares. One share was bequeathed to Mrs. Barlow, one to Christian Peper Bushman, and one to a grandson, Christian Peper son of Clarence Peper. The will named Mrs. Barlow as trustee for the shares bequeathed to Bushman and Christian Peper.

The third case before the Supreme Court involving the estate concerned a suit filed in St. Louis Circuit Court by K. P. Spencer, administrator pendente lite of the estate, to compel Mrs. Barlow to return to the estate 789 shares of stock of the Christian Peper Tobacco Co. Mrs. Barlow said the stock was given to her by her mother in March, 1915. The lower court ordered a new trial on a motion by Spencer, after the jury returned a verdict for Mrs. Barlow. Upon appeal by Mrs. Barlow the Supreme Court sustained the new trial order.

Listerine kills 200,000,000 germs in 15 seconds

Did you realize that Listerine was so powerful?

Hard to believe, isn't it, when you reflect how pleasant and safe Listerine is?

Yet in repeated tests employing the stubborn B. Typhosus (typhoid) germs, used by the Government to test antiseptics, full strength Listerine killed 200 millions in 15 seconds!

Now you can understand why you should use Listerine to check ordinary colds and sore throat—both caused by germs.

Keep a bottle handy and use it daily, especially after exposure to germ-laden crowds. It helps you ward off trouble. Write for our elaborate free book: "Personal Hygiene."

FUNERAL OF EDWIN DENBY

Hundreds Unable to Gain Admittance to Services.

DETROIT, Mich., Feb. 11.—A host of friends, including officials of the city, State and nation, today attended the funeral of Edwin Denby, former Secretary of the Navy, who died suddenly here Friday.

Hundreds of persons stood outside Christ Episcopal Church unable to gain admittance while the service was read by the Rev. Dr. William D. Maxan, rector. Veterans of the crew fo the U. S. S. Yosemite on which Mr. Denby served as gunner's mate during the Spanish-American War, marched to the church in a body and occupied a special section of seats. Representatives of numerous fraternal, patriotic, philanthropic, civic, military and naval organizations to which Mr. Denby belonged had seats in the church, and members of the Army, Navy and Marine Corps in uniforms were conspicuous in the crowd.

106-POUND WOMAN STRIKES ROBBER ON NOSE AND RUNS

Miss Hazel Pellett, 4129 Shenandoah, Gets License Number of Car After Routing Thieves.

Miss Hazel Pellett, 4129 Shenandoah avenue, who is 22 years old and weighs 106 pounds, fought off a highwayman in front of her home at 10 o'clock last night. Miss Pellett is employed by the Wabash railroad as a comptometer operator.

"I was two doors east of my home," she related, "when an auto occupied by two young men pulled up to the curb. One man stepped out and pressed something—a revolver, I suppose—against my side.

"'Stick 'em up, and don't you squeal,' he said.

"I raised my left hand and struck him on the nose. He was standing on the ice and the blow made him slip a little. I dashed for my front door, yelling for help, and rang the doorbell. He followed me, then changed his mind and ran back to the auto.

Gets License Number.

"My mother opened the door, and I said: 'I've been held up—get their number.' Then I stepped back out on the porch and got the license number of their car before the men turned off their lights as they drove away."

The license number obtained by Miss Pellett was that of a car stolen previously from Harry W. Berg, 2411 McNair avenue.

A new record for criminal activity was set over the week-end, 16 holdups being reported yesterday and last night. Miss Pellett was one of five women held up in succession by two young men.

Woman Knocked Down.

The same highwaymen stopped Mrs. Mildred Rolten, 5066 Milentz avenue, near her home and demanded her purse, which contained $14 and papers belonging to her husband. She screamed and one of the men struck her. She fell to the ground with the purse under her. The men drove away.

Miss Minnie Buttman, 4068A Lafayette avenue, and her mother, Mrs. Bertha Buttman, were held up near their home by the highwaymen, who escaped with a purse, $5 and a wedding ring.

Miss Virginia Linsemann, 4120A Oregon avenue, was robbed of her purse, 70 cents and gloves, near her home.

Emory Lembach, 1150 Kingshighway Park, and Miss Gladys Hatchett, 3517 Shenandoah avenue, seated in his Packard sedan on Weber road near Gravois road, were held up by two men who robbed her of jewelry valued at $100. The robbers drove away in the Packard, which they later abandoned.

John Tobey, 408 South Third street, Yellow taxicab driver, was held up by two men passengers who made him drive to an alley at 3169 North Thirteenth street, where they gagged and tied him to a fence with rope and robbed him of $12 and his machine, which later was found abandoned.

Tied to a Fence.

Louis Ostertag, 3139 Whittier street, another Yellow taxicab driver, was held up by the same men and forced to drive to an alley at Nineteenth street and Bremen avenue, where he was tied to a fence and robbed of $8, his overcoat, scarf, cap, badge and car.

Both drivers untied themselves.

William Newman, 62-year-old proprietor of a restaurant at 2701 Madison street, suffered a probable skull fracture when he was struck on the head with a soda bottle and rendered unconscious for an hour by two Negro robbers who escaped with $12.

Frank Baffaro, 5740 West Park avenue, was held up near his home by two men in an auto who robbed him of $27 and his watch and took him to Forest Park, where they ejected him from the car.

Albert Bosteck, 2623 South Broadway, and four customers were held up in his saloon by three men who escaped with $150.

Other holdups: Peter Klingle, 1111 North Seventh street, robbed of $8 and watch; John Mullane, 2212 South Fourth street, $10; Julius Hunnell, 3620 Minnesota avenue, and Robert Habick, 4122 Michigan avenue, robbed of two coats and 58 cents.

Hotel Clerk Held Up.

A robber who entered the Manhattan Hotel, 103 North Eighteenth street, early yesterday, held up the clerk, Theodore Stieglitz, and escaped with $25. A holdup at the drug store at 6072 Maple avenue, netted $90.

John Mound, Valley Park theater owner, and his wife, Rose, were held up by three men early yesterday, and were driven to 9000 South Broadway, where the robbers took their car and $120. The robbers were armed with a shotgun and two revolvers.

Louis Cole and Andrew Peterson, salesmen for the Athletic Tea Co., 611 Chouteau avenue, were held up in front of that address and robbed of $38 at 6:30 a. m. today. The robber drove away in an automobile and outdistanced pursuers.

W. H. Niederluecke Jr. to Chicago.

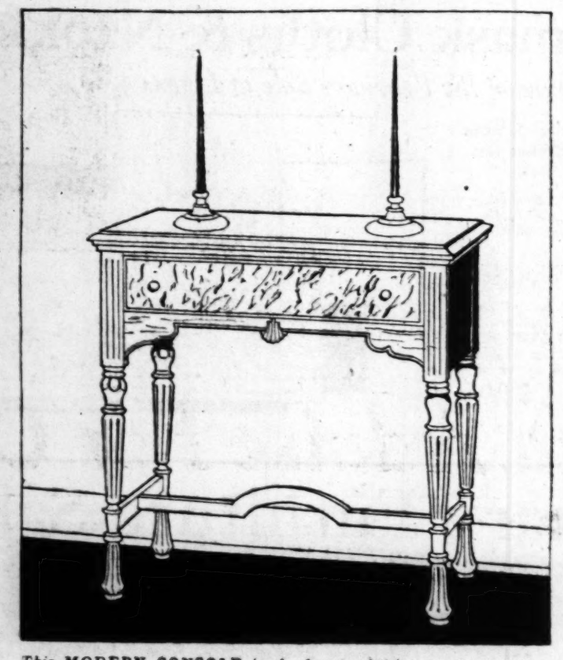

William H. Niederluecke Jr., 22 years old, arrested at 3642 Washington boulevard Jan. 29, when found in possession of various firearms, was taken to Chicago yesterday to face trial for a $26,000 jewelry store holdup.

TESTS BY PHYSICIANS SHOW MANY HERE QUICKEST WAY TO END COLDS AT HOME

Doctors Give Public Reliable Guide in Choosing Quickest Way to Relieve Colds, Coughs and Bronchitis

Results in Extreme Hospital Cases and Home Use Among Thousands of Adults and Children Here Offer Reliable Guide in Choosing Quickest Way to End Head Colds, Coughs, Chest Colds.

A method that is inexpensive and pleasant to use at home—yet so effective it has relieved even the most extreme hospital cases—now makes it possible to get almost instant relief from head colds, coughs or chest colds.

This, briefly, is the substance of reports showing what has been accomplished in hospital tests and in home use among hundreds of people here through use of Ayer's Cherry Pectoral—a concentrated mixture of wild cherry, terpin hydrate and other ingredients which hospitals have selected as the most effective to end colds.

Goes Straight to the Seat of a Threatening Cold

Test cases in the hospital cold clinic (reported elsewhere on this page) show that Pectoral is quick, safe and sure. It not only stops a cough almost instantly but goes straight to the seat of a stubborn cold and drives it out of the system. This is due to the fact that the medication penetrates thru and thru the irritated linings of throat, chest and bronchial tubes—and is then absorbed into the blood itself. Its double action drives out cold congestion wherever it has settled—in any part of your system.

Drives Out Congestion—Clears Up Air Passages

Miss Edith Dennis, for example, had neglected her cold for three days in the hope it would clear up without treatment. Instead, it got worse, spreading so fast and causing so much congestion she feared pneumonia and called the family doctor.

Relief began almost immediately, the doctor reported, when she took double strength doses of Ayer's Pectoral. Within an hour or so the medication had been absorbed by her system, loosening up the congestion. By night her temperature was normal and she woke up feeling like a different person. In another day or so, the report continues, congestion was gone and there was no trace left of the cold.

ENDED COLD BEFORE PNEUMONIA SET IN

Relief Began Instantly When Doctor Advised Home Use of Pleasant Hospital Method

By taking the timely advice of his doctor, E. H. Harding, like numbers of people here, has found that it is not necessary to go thru the needless misery of a cold. Nor is there any necessity for needless fear if the right steps are taken to end a cold quickly before danger sets in.

Mr. Harding contracted a severe cold which nothing seemed to relieve. Examination showed that his nose tubes were badly congested; his throat was inflamed and the cold was rapidly spreading. Fearing pneumonia then he called a doctor, who gave him double strength doses of Ayer's Pectoral. In a few minutes this hospital certified medicine brought welcome relief. Next day he was sufficiently relieved to get up, and in another day or so congestion cleared up and he was back to work—as well as ever.

Cold Caught At Dance Ended Pleasant Way!

A tempting taste! Almost instant relief. Then the joy of seeing a stubborn head cold or chest cold disappear quickly—often in just a few hours—when treated by a pleasant hospital method which doctors now advise for home use. And this experience of Miss Julia Barr has been shared by vast numbers of people in St. Louis, East St. Louis and vicinity.

Pleasant to Take—Gave Instant Relief

Miss Barr, for example, had neglected for three days a severe cold which she caught while overheated at a recent dance. Instead of getting better the cold grew worse and started spreading so fast that she was forced to stay in bed. Then she called her doctor who advised double strength doses of Ayer's Cherry Pectoral—a hospital certified formula composed of wild cherry, terpin hydrate and other ingredients recognized as the quickest and most effective to end colds.

The first pleasant swallow gave instant relief when she felt its soothing, healing warmth — from nose passages deep down into her chest. Within an hour or so the medication had been absorbed by her system, loosening up congestion and relieving the "achy" feeling. By night her fever was gone—and in another day or so, the doctor reports, there was no trace left of the cold.

Note: See other cases—all certified by the attending physician.

EASY WAY TO AVOID HAVING A BAD COLD

Glad that he took the advice of his doctor, Chas. H. Wilkins, like numbers of people here, now realizes how easily the needless misery of a cold can be avoided.

Mr. Wilkins used to catch cold easily ever since he had acute bronchitis. On the advice of his doctor, then, he started taking Ayer's Pectoral the minute he felt a cold coming on—and in this way he prevents a cold from getting a start.

This helpful medication, doctors find, quickly checks congestion, drives out a threatening cold and restores linings of the air passages. In this way it builds up resistance so that the cold may be ended before the miserable feeling begins. Used in time, Ayer's Pectoral is helping vast numbers here to go thru the winter without ever having a bad cold.

MOTHER ALARMED OVER SEVERE COUGH

Urging the need to play safe in dealing with a cold during changeable weather, doctors are now advising home use of a hospital method which hundreds of St. Louis children have found pleasant to taste and dependable for quick, sure relief.

Albert, Jr., son of Mrs. A. H. Wooster, had such severe chest pains his mother called the doctor. Examination showed a great deal of congestion and thoracic pains due to strain of coughing. He liked the pleasant taste of Cherry Pectoral, the doctor reports, and it stopped the harsh coughing almost immediately. In a few hours his cough and cold began to clear up rapidly and in a day or so he was back at school—entirely rid of the threatening cold.

Night Nurse Relieved Head Cold Instantly!

INSTANT RELIEF—THEN COLD DISAPPEARED!

Experience of Miss Bertha Lee, Trained Nurse, Shows How Quickly St. Louis People Now End Colds by Method Doctors Advise for Home Use.

Realizing the needless misery and risk caused by neglecting a cold, doctors are now recommending a method that brings almost instant relief—then quickly drives out the cold. And the experience of Miss Bertha Lee, trained nurse, is typical of what is being accomplished not only in home use by numbers of people in St. Louis, East St. Louis and vicinity, but in extreme hospital cases.

Soon Ended "Achy" "Feverish" Feeling

Miss Lee, for example, awoke with a slight fever and an "achy," irritated feeling in her nose, throat and chest. Instead of ending it at once by prompt treatment, she neglected the cold to nurse a patient who was seriously ill. That night the cold bothered her so she could not sleep and by morning congestion caused her to fear pneumonia and call one of the hospital physicians.

Acting on his advice she took double strength doses of Ayer's Pectoral — the hospital certified medication of wild cherry, terpin hydrate and other ingredients used to help reduce fever, clear up congestion and drive the cold out of one's system.

Relief began almost instantly when she felt its comforting, healing warmth—from her nose passages deep down into her chest. Congestion began to clear up and by night her fever was normal and the "achy" feeling had disappeared. Next morning she was able to go back on duty and in just a day or so all trace of the cold and cough had cleared up entirely.

QUICKER THAN WHISKY TO BREAK UP A COLD

Goes Straight to Seat of Cold and Drives It Out of System—Brings Quick, Sure Relief!

In one's own home it is now possible to get quick relief—often in a few hours—from a stuffy head cold, cough or chest cold. For doctors are now recommending for home use a hospital certified remedy that is inexpensive, pleasant to take and ideally suited to the delicate stomachs of old folks and children.

E. H. Newman, for example, asked his doctor for a prescription when his cold got so bad he felt "achy" all over. The doctor immediately gave him a large dose of Ayer's Pectoral and advised him to continue the treatment every half hour until the "feverish," "achy" feeling was gone, then once every two hours. In just a few minutes he began to feel better and slept comfortably all night. In another day or so the cold congestion had disappeared entirely and he was back at work.

CHILD CAUGHT COLD; PNEUMONIA FEARED

Worried Mother Grateful as Doctor Shows How to Give Quick Relief at Home

No longer is it necessary to stand by helplessly when children's colds bring fear of pneumonia. For hospital physicians now recommend to mothers a pleasant home treatment for colds—and hundreds of St. Louis children have been given the same quick, sure relief that came to the little daughter of Mrs. Robt. Gordon.

Little Estelle caught a severe cold while out riding. On the third day the child coughed so deep Mrs. Gordon feared pneumonia and called her doctor, who advised double doses of Ayer's Cherry Pectoral—the pleasantly flavored mixture of wild cherry, terpin hydrate and other ingredients which have relieved even the most extreme children's cases in the hospital.

By night the child felt like playing for the first time in several days. The next morning she looked more cheerful and like herself—and by the following day, doctors report, all traces of the cold were gone.

Druggists Here Feature Method Doctors Advise For Colds

Realize Need of Preparation Sufficiently Quick to Stop a Cold Before Serious Illness Has Time to Develop

Co-operating with doctors who are advising for public use a safe, sure method of treating head colds, coughs and chest colds, leading druggists of the city are now featuring Ayer's Cherry Pectoral—a hospital certified medication "used more extensively than any preparation to alleviate coughing, help reduce fever and drive out a head cold or chest cold."

For druggists realize the need of a preparation sufficiently powerful and quick in action to stop colds before they develop into something more dangerous. And they know that Cherry Pectoral not only meets this need, but that it is safe, even for children, as the food they eat. They know that it is entirely free from dangerous opiates which make so many drug preparations unsafe.

So leading druggists are featuring Ayer's Pectoral under guarantee that unless you find it offers the quickest and most pleasant relief from a cold, they will promptly refund the small cost without question or delay.

If you have a cold—if you feel one coming on—remember that relief is no further away than the nearest drug store.

President-Elect and Inventor Ride in Parade Over Fort Myers, Fla., With Stops at Schools.

By the Associated Press.

FORT MYERS, Fla., Feb. 11.—Thomas A. Edison, observing his eighty-second birthday at his winter home here, received congratulations this morning from President-elect Hoover and Mrs. Hoover, who came here by boat from Belle Isle, Miami Beach, for the occasion.

The Hoover party landed at the dock at Edison's estate, Seminole Lodge, at 10:35 o'clock, and walked up the 1400-foot runway to the shore, where they were greeted by Mrs. Edison. They proceeded to a fountain near Edison's new office, a birthday present from his wife, where the President-elect chatted for a short time with Edison, Henry Ford and Harvey S. Firestone before going into the Edison home to prepare for a motor ride through Fort Myers.

Ford and Firestone, who for several years have made it a practice to visit Edison on his birthday, had preceded the President-elect and Mrs. Hoover here.

Edison Greets His Guests.

"Hello, fisherman," Edison exclaimed with a smile, as Hoover advanced to shake hands with him. The other members of the party from the Saunterer congratulated the inventor on his having attained his eighthy-second year.

Mrs. Hoover waved photographers back as they advanced more closely to the party.

"That's quite close enough," she said, and asked them not to crowd in on the President-elect and his host.

Writes Answers in Pencil.

The inventor spent 20 minutes writing in pencil his answers to the questions previously prepared and submitted by newspaper men. All except two of the questions were answered in writing.

One question brought an exclamation of astonishment from the inventor. It referred to development of medicinal lights for general use.

"I won't answer that," he declared, laughing. "It's too damn ridiculous."

In a verbal answer to the other question, which sought his opinion of progress during the next 50 years through men's genius, Edison declared:

"It's impossible to tell anything about it. We don't know a millionth of 1 per cent about anything. Sound is the only feature that has been revealing to the men who have studied it."

Edison's only verbal comment of the morning concerning his experiments with rubber was made as he talken into a microphone for talking pictures.

"We have been experimenting for some time down here with rubber," he said. "We have found among other things that there are from 1200 to 1400 rubber-producing plants in the United States, and that golden rod, which grows wild throughout the nation, is one of the best producers.

"Mr. Ford has given me the use of 22,000 acres of his land in Georgia, and we're going to plant it to rubber producing plants, then breed them and make them work."

Party at Edison Home.

Hoover's party, consisting of Mr. and Mrs. Hoover, their son Herbert Jr., Mr. and Mrs. Edgar Ricard and Mr. and Mrs. Jeremiah Milbank, went with the three famous friends and Mrs. Edison and Mrs. Firestone to the Edison home.

After a short visit in the house, they entered automobiles and toured Fort Myers, stopping for two minutes at each of the city's schools to enable school children to give their congratulations to Edison and their greeting to Hoover. The President-elect and the inventor rode in the first automobile in the parade. In cars immediately following were other members of the birthday party.

At the conclusion of the parade, the party returned to the Edison home, where the inventor's birthday luncheon was held. The feature of the luncheon was a large pound-cake, Edison's favorite, with white icing, surmounted by a single green candle.

Ford came to the new office building early to give birthday greetings to his friend and stayed in the building for some time while Edison was answering the questions submitted to him. Mr. and Mrs. Firestone came to the estate while photographers were taking pictures of Edison.

Tonight a radio program had been arranged and promptly at 9 o'clock the aged inventor expects to open "Edison hour" over a chain of 26 stations.

After Hoover's short visit today with Edison, he will return to the Saunterer for a fishing expedition off the lower coast in hope of taking one or more tarpon.

Waiter Accidentally Pulls Trigger and William Lubic Is Dangerously Wounded.

William Lubic, 30 years old, cook in a restaurant at 615½ Walnut street, was accidentally shot in the abdomen last night by Earl Liebman, 18, a waiter in the restaurant, while they were discussing a plan to surprise robbers in the event of a holdup.

Lubic, who is in a serious condition at City Hospital, told police that he and Liebman were handling a shotgun and a .45 caliber revolver while discussing a plan of action in case they were ever held up. Liebman accidentally pulled the trigger of the revolver, according to Lubic, the bullet passing through the latter's abdomen.

OFFERED HIS DAUGHTER AS PRIZE IN BOMB PLOT

By the Associated Press.

FLINT, Mich., Feb. 11.—A plot in which Amos Jury, 36 years old, offered his 17-year-old daughter in marriage to a mechanic for contriving a bomb to kill Jury's rival, was disclosed here yesterday when Jury, according to police, confessed his part in the plot and also implicated John Carrigan, 41, of Hasslet. Both are under arrest.

The bomb was mailed to Everett Baller, whose bride of a week had been Jury's sweetheart, with instructions to open it when alone. Baller opened it in the presence of his wife and several other persons, but noticed in time a chain which would have set off three sticks of dynamite, if he had opened the handbag in which the bomb was.

Jury, according to police, planned to marry Mrs. Baller after killing her husband. Carrigan was to have Jury's aid in winning Irene, if the plot succeeded. Jury confessed after hearing his roommate, Malcolm Cameron, tell of writing the note which told Baller to be alone when he opened the "present."

"I was desperately in love with Catherine (Mrs. Baller)," Jury said, "and I bought a marriage license before she married Baller. John Carrigan made the bomb and he was to marry my daughter if the plan worked and I was to marry Mrs. Baller."

EXPERIMENTING WITH A COLD MAY PROVE EXPENSIVE

Colds are dangerous—often developing into some one of those many serious diseases that last year caused more than 150,000 deaths in the United States. Don't take a chance. Treat your cold properly as soon as you feel it coming on.

Vapex has become accepted widely as the modern way to treat a cold. It is easy and pleasant to use. Put a drop on your folded handkerchief — breathe the vapor deeply through your nose. It will give you immediate relief. A drop on the ends of your pillow at night will fight the cold while you sleep.

Vapex is a product of the war. Discovered by chance while the influenza epidemic was at its height, this new method of cold treatment was quickly adopted throughout England and America. Many people now use Vapex regularly as a means of keeping free from the many epidemics prevalent at this time of the year.

Insist on the genuine Vapex in the little square bottle and the package with the green triangle. Vapex costs a dollar the bottle containing 50 treatments. It is distributed by E. Fougera & Co., Inc., New York City

MASSÉ of Paris

Distinguished Authority on Beauty Culture

urges his patrons to use this one treatment to keep the skin lovely

This celebrated authority on the technique of acquiring personal loveliness advises a simple but unfailing rule for complexion beauty

Emile Massé, skillful head of the establishment bearing his name, on the Rue Daunou, Paris. M. Massé makes a careful study of modern care of the skin. His word on such matters is authoritative.

"Efficient but gentle cleansing of the skin at home is an absolute requirement of success in our work. We have investigated many methods by which this may be done and have decided that the simplest method is by far the best of all. That is the consistent, thorough use of the soap which combines deep cleansing with the well-known cosmetic effects of palm and olive oils."

E. Massé

16 Rue Daunou, Paris

The sheen of the fine old inlaid floor, the grandeur of typical Parisian decoration characterize the Massé salon at 16 Rue Daunou. Fittings are essentially feminine, designed to appeal to the discriminating clientele of M. Massé.

AT 16 Rue Daunou, Paris, many of the world's most distinguished women are accustomed to consult E. Massé on problems of skin care. Massé gives much time and thought to home beauty methods, as well as to the treatments given in his artistic salon de beauté.

"Efficient but gentle cleansing of the skin at home is an absolute requirement of success in our work," says Massé. "Clients who follow our advice, never use any soap except that which blends oils of palm and olives. They are the ones whose skin shows the greatest improvement as a result of the treatments we give in the salon."

Other authorities agree

All the leading figures in the Parisian world of beauty culture agree with M Massé Lina Cavalieri, Vincent, Mme. Valentin le Brun—these are just a few of the many French authorities who recommend this same treatment. And in Berlin, Vienna, London—in all the cosmopolitan centers of culture—one meets this same advice.

What palm and olive oils do

The need for thorough, but gentle, cleansing of the skin is universally recognized. Oil secretions, dust, dirt, make-up, clog the pores. Unless they are removed daily, they will harden into blackheads and pimples or cause sallow ness and a dull, lifeless skin.

In Palmolive Soap beauty experts—in America and all over the world—find just the correct blending of those oils which are so beneficial to the skin. This soap, as Massé says, "combines deep cleansing with the well-known cosmetic effects of palm and olive oils."

Massé also prepares an astringent, Elixor Camphre and Creme Massé, specially for home use . . . but always he suggests, and his most famous colleagues agree upon, the following treatment, twice-a-day, to retain skin loveliness: first, a rich lather of Palmolive Soap and warm water, to be rubbed, with both hands, well into the skin. Two minutes of soap massage, a rinse, first with warm water, then with cold. A final ice water rinse as astringent. Dry skin usually needs some oily cream at least once a day. Oily skin requires an astringent lotion and the use of a day cream with drying effect.

In this 2-minute treatment millions of women find a solution to their problems of skin care. Palmolive is now the leading complexion soap not only in the United States but also in 48 other countries.

A precious formula embodying the precious oils of palm and olive, famous since the days of Cleopatra for prolonging health and beauty.

OIL MEN MEET FOR DISCUSSION OF TRADE ETHICS

Member of Federal Trade Commission Presides Over a National Conference at Hotel Statler.

A national conference of representatives of the oil industry began at Hotel Statler today for discussion of the adoption of a "code of ethics," formulated by the American Petroleum Institute, which seeks to eliminate methods of competition considered unfair or "otherwise bad." Edgar McCulloch, one of the five members of the Federal Trade Commission, presided.

The meeting, scheduled for one day, may be extended if opposition to the code develops.

Briefly, the code condemns the furnishing of free equipment, such as gasoline pumps, to retailers, a practice which is held to have resulted in a multiplication of filling stations, to the detriment of the industry; the refusal of some dealers to post their prices so that secret rebates may be granted to favored customers; inducements offered to get dealers to break existing contracts; substitution of products other than those advertised, and bonuses and premiums given on special sale days and opening days to attract customers.

M. Markham Flannery, director of trade practices of the Federal Trade Commission, explained that the oil industry had appealed to the commission in December for assistance in eliminating the practices frowned upon by the code.

Movement Is Voluntary.

"It is purely a voluntary movement on the part of the oil men," he declared, "to eliminate, by common agreement, practices which are largely outside the pale of the law. In the case of practices obviously illegal, the commission deals with them by a compulsory process. It brings a formal complaint and holds a trial. This is done in the cases of all corporations except railroads and banks.

"A movement of the type of this conference, however, is one that arises from the industry itself. The commission helps as best it can, as it has done in the case of other industries. The resolutions adopted here will not become law, merely a voluntary code by which members of the industry will be bound."

Sinclair Attends.

DOUBTS SIGNIFICANCE IN NEW EINSTEIN THEORY

Dr. Silberstein Says Idea Is Interesting Only in Mathematical Sense.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

ROCHESTER, N. Y., Feb. 11.—The new Einstein theory in which electro-magnetism and gravitation are fused in a single law, while interesting mathematically, cannot lead to any predictions of verifiable new phenomena in the opinion of Dr. Ludwik Silberstein, research mathematical physicist at the Eastman Kodak Co.

Dr. Silberstein, whose studies and investigations of the theory of relativity paralleled those of Dr. Einstein, does not believe the new theory as announced has substantial significance, the essence of the problem being purely formal.

"I believe now that what Einstein has done is to give a mathematical expansion of a theory proposed to the Prussian Academy of Science by him June 14, 1928," said Dr. Silberstein. "In this paper he succeeded in writing down a single set of rather complicated equations which give in a first approximation Maxwell's electrical equations and also Einstein's own gravitational field equation.

"This solution has the disadvantage that it forces us, in Einstein's own words, to give up his original broad concept of the general relativity theory."

"KONJOLA IS FINE AS THOROUGHBRED HORSE," HE SAYS

Former Jockey Has Remarkable Experience With Famous Medicine; Freed of Kidney Trouble After Many Years.

"What is there about this new medicine, Konjola, that causes it to perform such wonders?" Daily this question is asked by men and women who are eagerly seeking relief from ailments of the stomach, liver, kidneys and bowels. And daily this same question is being answered by the Konjola Man, who has been sent to St. Louis as a personal representative of the new medicine, Konjola. He is at the Walgreen Drug Store, 515 Olive street, where he is meeting men and women daily, explaining the merits of this master medicine. He will tell how the 32 ingredients of Konjola, 22 of which are the juices from roots and herbs work on the ailing system—each with a special mission and all working simultaneously. The Konjola Man makes no promises, or claims—he points out facts, shows actual accomplishments of Konjola. What a wonderful thing it would be for all who suffer to know of the amazing experience that Mr. J. R. Corder, 3750 Westminster street, St. Louis, had with Konjola. Mr. Corder who is a former jockey and racing devotee, called on the Konjola man just a few days ago and made this astounding report:

MR. J. R. CORDER

"I have found that Konjola is just as fine as a thoroughbred horse—and I have come in contact with many of them. I called on Konjola to perform wonders when my case seemed almost hopeless. Do you think it faltered? Not a bit of it—that is why I am enjoying glorious health today. Previously to taking Konjola, I suffered many years from kidney trouble, that pulled down my general health. My back was sore and achy—amateur horsemen know how that is. My kidneys also worked too freely, causing me to rise four or five times a night. Naturally I lost a lot of rest. For two years I dragged myself through life—a physical wreck, tired and worn-out all the time. I was running a losing race—hopeless and without faith.

"Then Konjola came to my attention—it was recommended so sincerely that I felt it might help me. I decided to give it a trial—a decision that proved the wisest I ever made. Konjola worked like a charm—right from the barrier. I began feeling better with each passing day and knew that, at last, I was on the road to health and traveling fast. Working at the root of my trouble, Konjola strengthened and invigorated my kidneys. All soreness and pains have vanished and my sleep is peaceful, throughout the night, every night. No more night rising. New strength and energy are mine. Indeed, I have every right to praise Konjola and want to tell everyone that it is a medicine so far ahead of the field the others look like selling-platers."

Indorsements like that of Mr. Corder, are but common occurances for Konjola. Hundreds, yes thousands, have been received—all going to show that this medicine does all and more than is claimed for it. What a world of hope and cheer it holds for all who suffer and who would be well again.

The Konjola Man is at the Walgreen Drug Store, 515 Olive street, this city, where he is meeting the public daily introducing and explaining the merits of this master medicine.

SAYS STANDARD OIL HELPED BOOTLEGGERS

Post-Dispatch Bureau.
201-205 Kellogg Building.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 11.—An investigation by the Federal Trade Commission of the relations between certain oil refining companies and large wholesale bootleggers was demanded in a resolution introduced in the House today by Representative W. H. Sproul (Rep.), Kansas.

Sproul specifically mentioned the Standard Oil Co. of Indiana as one of the oil companies which had done business with bootleggers through the sale of stanolax, a chemical compound, said to be capable of removing foreign substances from certain grades of industrial alcohol.

The resolution provides that if President-elect Hoover should call a general prohibition investigation, the Trade Commission's investigation could be stopped.

In his resolution, Sproul cited the connection of Col. Robert W. Stewart of the Standard Oil Co. of Indiana with the Continental Trading Co. Ltd., of Canada, and observed: "Col. Stewart has evidenced such a culpable contempt for acceptable business ethics as to warrant the assumption that he holds any profit to be its own justification."

Details of Charge

"It is currently reported and verified by the experience of the prohibition enforcement officials," the resolution says, "that manufacturers of crude oil extracts and medicinal oils, such as stanolax, made and marketed by the Standard Oil Co., sell these products in large quantities to persons who attempt to use them in the process of recovering drinkable alcohol from industrial alcohol sold on Government license and made on Government formulas.

"These purchases are popularly believed to be in considerable volume in Chicago, St. Louis Cincinnati, New York, Philadelphia and other large cities, as shown by the fact that a former salesman of the Standard Oil Co. has said that with full knowledge of local officials in Kansas City, Mo., he sold approximately $200,000 worth of stanolax to a notorious bootlegger in that locality to be used to remove foreign substances from No. 6 grade of industrial alcohol so as to make it usable in the manufacture of intoxicating beverages.

Reported Chemists Lent Aid.

"It is reported that Standard chemists worked out the technical problems involved in these experiments and in other ways co-operated with the bootlegger-purchasers of this medicinal oil and that this source of sales appears to have been exploited by the Standard during the time Col. Robert W. Stewart was nominal and actual head of the Standard Oil Co. of Indiana, producing substantial profits to the company and greatly enhancing Col. Stewart's reputation as a successful executive.

"It is also reported that No. 6 grade of industrial alcohol finally was withdrawn from the market by action of the Federal Government."

Commenting on Col. Stewart's connection with the Standard Oil Co., the resolution continued, "It is in the interest of sound public policy to know what devices are used by manufacturing concerns to defeat the purposes of the eighteenth amendment, and whether or not Col. Robert W. Stewart, as directing official of the Standard, originated, approved or had knowledge of any sale promotion policy which contemplated augmented profits of his company through sales of Stanolax to any person or persons known to have been engaged in the manufacture of intoxicating beverages in violation of the Volstead act."

Under the terms of the resolution, the Trade Commission is directed to co-operate wit hthe Federal prohibition unit.

Dry Chief Here Says He Has Not Heard of Practice.

Sam S. Haley, prohibition administrator here, said today he had not heard of the use of Stanolax by bootleggers. James Dillon, chief of the prohibition staff, said he had heard gossip to the effect that it was used, but had found none of the oil at any places he had raided. At the offices of the Standard Oil Co. of Indiana here it was stated that little of the oil was sold in this territory. It was described as an internal lubricant somewhat similar to Nujol, manufactured by the Standard Oil Co. of New Jersey, and sold widely in this territory.

INSURANCE FIRM LOSES SUIT OVER ASSESSMENT

Supreme Court Holds Its Valuation Is $40,000 Higher Than City Claims.

By the Jefferson City Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

JEFFERSON CITY, Feb. 11.—An insurance company is not entitled to deduct its total liabilities from its taxable assets alone, and disregard assets invested in nontaxable securities, when making its return of personal property for taxation, the Missouri Supreme Court en banc ruled today, in sustaining an assessment by the St. Louis Board of Equalization against the Missouri Insurance Co.

The Court rules the liabilities of the company were a charge against all of its assets, and in taking advantage of the exemptions permitted by the laws on taxation of insurance companies, it could deduct only that proportion of the liabilities that the taxable assets bore to the total assets.

The Missouri Insurance Co. made a personal property return of $448,265, including $94,000 in nontaxable Government bonds and $354,265 in taxable assets. It excluded the $94,000 in bonds and from the $354,265 in taxable assets deducted its liabilities of $333,486, under the law authorizing insurance companies to deduct their legally required reserves for reinsurance of risks, and their unpaid policy claims, from their personal property returns. These deductions left $20,779 subject to taxation. The Board of Equalization increased the amount to $50,000, and the company sought a review of the assessment by the Supreme Court.

Judge W. T. Ragland, who wrote the opinion, held that surplus, earnings, individual profits and such items were mere bookkeeping terms and that the reserve was a measure of liability or indebtedness. He ruled all of the company's legal reserve, indebtedness and unpaid claims constituted a charge against all of its assets, taxable and non-taxable.

The most equitable method of determining the net value of the taxable assets, he said, was to apportion the total liabilities between the taxable and non-taxable assets, and to deduct from the taxable assets only that part of the liability apportioned to them.

He found the assets taxable of the company, $354,265, to be 79.03 per cent of the total assets, and that 79.03 per cent of the total liabilities was $263,554. Deduction of the latter amount from the taxable assets left $90,711 subject to taxation, he held.

As this amount was greater than the $50,000 assessment made by the Board of Equalization, Judge Ragland ruled the company's claim of an excessive assessment was without merit. All of the other Judges concurred in the opinion.

Decision Will Increase City Income by $75,000, Counsellor Says.

The City Counselor's office today announced the point decided in the city's favor by the Supreme Court, in the Missouri Insurance Co. case, would apply to the tax returns of other St. Louis insurance companies, and would make a total increase of about $3,000,000 in local taxable values, thus adding from $75,000 to $80,000 annually to city, State and school revenues. The added taxable value involved in the Missouri Insurance Co. case was $53,024.

According to the Law Department, the insurance companies have been deducting their reserve from their tax returns, as they have the right under the law to do, and, in addition, have deducted all nontaxable Government securities held by them. In cases where the securities were part of the reserve, this has constituted a double deduction, as the city has contended and the Court has now held.

DR. L. C. OBROCK MADE COUNTY HEALTH OFFICER

Chosen in Secret Session to Succeed Dr. A. E. Walters Who Was Also a Candidate.

Dr. Louis C. Obrock, 779 Lemay Ferry road, was appointed Health Commissioner of St. Louis County, at $4500 a year, by the County Court today, for a three-year term beginning March 1. He succeeds Dr. A. E. Walters against whom he was an unsuccessful candidate for t[illegible] post three years ago.

Today's appointment was made by the court in executive session after a public hearing attended by 50 men and women. Most of the men seeming to favor Dr. Obrock and the women Dr. Walters.

Dr. Robert Denny said that the St. Louis County Medical Society at a recent meeting unanimously indorsed Dr. Obrock for the position. Under questioning, he said there were 18 members at the meeting. He declared Dr. Obrock, a member of the society, would receive more co-operation from physicians than Dr. Walters, a nonmember.

Mrs. John H. Herron, president of the County League of Women Voters, and Taylor R. Young, attorney, were among those who spoke for Dr. Walters.

WORKS OF EUROPEAN PHOTOGRAPHERS SEEN

Richard N. Speaight of London Will Lecture on Exhibit at Hotel Chase Tonight.

An exhibition of photographs notable for their famous subjects and the reputation of the English and European photographers who made them is being displayed at Hotel Chase today by Richard N. Speaight of London. Speaight, a fellow of the Royal Photographical Society and photographer to the British royalty, has many of his own works on exhibit and will lecture on the collection at 8 o'clock tonight.

He is touring the United States under the auspices of the Eastman Kodak Co., and will exhibit his collection in Omaha, Los Angeles, Portland, Ore., and Minneapolis.

The portraits attract interest not only because they present intimate studies of such persons as President Coolidge, the King and Queen of England, the Queen of Afghanistan and other members of royalty, but because they are excellent examples of leading craftsmen of many foreign capitals.

The Coolidge portrait, which was among several in the collection that appeared in the rotogravure section of yesterday's Post-Dispatch, is particularly noteworthy. It shows a half-front bust view of the President, with each detail of his appearance carefully delineated. Speaight took the picture in the Cabinet room at the White House.

Another picture that interests Americans is that of Helen Wills, the tennis player, taken in London by Dorothy Wilding. Miss Wilding contributes a portrait of Bernard Shaw, one of Lady Louise Mountbatten and Prince George. Other English photographers whose work is shown are Marcus Adams, Bertram Park, who has a portrait of Queen Marie of Roumania; Vandyke, with one of the Pope and one of the Infanta Beatrice of Spain; Hugh Cecil and Reginal Haines.

"The exhibition is not competitive nor commercial," Speaight said. "It is being shown in this country for the purpose of acquainting American photographers with European technique and results."

Two St. Louis women were refused requests for sittings. Others attempted unsuccessfully to purchase some of the exhibits.

SINUS TROUBLE FOLLOWS THE FLU

Even Common Colds Start Trail of "Focal" Infections in Head

In the immediate trail of influenza comes an attack upon the delicate mucous membranes which line the nose. All the symptoms common to an acute attack of Sinus Trouble follow the "flu", such as a discharge of mucus in the nose, inflammation, and congestion of the nasal cavities. The openings of the sinuses become blocked, and you have that stuffy condition, with headaches and pain over the eyes.

The mucous discharge from the nose finds its way into the throat, and is absorbed into the system. It's the toxins in these vile secretions that cause all the trouble that follows the "flu", LaGrippe and common headcolds. Get rid of these foul secretions as quickly as they accumulate. Wash them away with Sinuseptic. Order a glass nasal douche for a few cents at any drug store, put in about one teaspoonful of Sinuseptic, fill the rest of the glass douche with warm water, and appiy it to your nose, and you will keep the nasal cavities clean and clear of the offending secretions that drain from the sinuses.

MODERN APARTMENT

LOOK for the General Electric Refrigerator sign when you're renting an apartment. For this refrigerator, the latest development of the General Electric Research Laboratories, is an outstanding contribution to the comfort, economy and health of the modern home.

Today every truly modern apartment should have its individual, portable General Electric Refrigerator. Its operation is not in any way dependent upon the janitor or upon any other installation in the same building. You can place it where you will, move it where you will. You can simply turn it off by the pressing of a switch, if you should plan to be away from home for any length of time. Otherwise, it operates without any thought from you. You never even have to oil it!

The unique construction of the General Electric Refrigerator has actually done away with all annoying sounds. It has made it possible to enclose all the machinery—together with a permanent supply of metal protecting oil—in an hermetically sealed steel casing. This is mounted on top of the refrigerator, leaving the cabinet free for greatest food storage space.

If you are renting an apartment, you will wish to enjoy the modern refrigeration that makes housekeeping lighter, entertaining easier, that safeguards health and provides an ample supply of ice cubes. You can have this perfect refrigeration, wherever you find the General Electric Refrigerator sign.

GOVERNOR'S TRIAL BEFORE OKLAHOMA SENATE IS BEGUN

Chairman of House Managing Committee Promises Unfolding of Tale of Political Intrigue.

By the Associated Press.

OKLAHOMA CITY, Ok., Feb. 11.—Henry S. Johnston, Oklahoma's suspended Governor, was brought to trial today before the Senate court of impeachment, which will decide whether he shall be removed from office on charges of official misconduct preferred by the House of Representatives.

The House board of managers, directing the prosecution, elected to try Johnston first on a charge of general incompetency, one of the 11 impeachment articles pending.

Representative John Head, chairman of the House board, outlined the case against Johnston, declaring "if the House has been correctly informed we will unfold a tale of political intrigue and chicanery on the part of the Governor since he has been in office."

"The evidence," he said, "will show that the respondent has surrounded himself with political parasites for political expediency drawing their sustenance from the people of the State.

Hand in Public Purse.

"The board of managers intends to prove that the Governor was made aware of misconduct of subordinates and had refused to act against them, adopting instead a vacillating attitude." These subordinates had retained their positions with "their hand in the public purse," he charged.

"When questions of right and wrong were presented, he was incensed, yet when brought face to face with them he agreed and did nothing to right the wrongs.

"The respondent must admit that he did these things knowingly and they were wrong, or he must admit that he did not have the mentality to realize what he was doing.

"In either event, he must be convicted."

Head then enumerated the charges, explaining in detail the story as revealed by evidence taken before the general investigating committee of the House.

The suspended Governor sat with his counsel in the center of the Senate chamber, at the same table with the House managers.

Secretary in Back Seat.

Mrs. O. O. Hammonds, former confidential secretary to Johnston and storm center of his administration, sat in the back row of the balcony. She was dressed in a gray coat and gray hat.

"I want to get a seat where I can hear well," she said, as she came into the Senate chamber with a clerk from the Governor's office.

A contest arose at the outset as to whether witnesses, excepting the one testifying, should be excluded from the chamber. Representative Head insisted that this be done. R. L. Davidson of Johnston's counsel said he had summoned no witnesses pending the introduction of the State's case.

Chief Justice Charles W. Mason, presiding, ruled that all witnesses should be sworn at the outset of the trial, and all but one at a time excluded.

"A Good Lawyer."

A motion was adopted giving Gov. Johnston until tomorrow morning to produce a list of his witnesses.

The prosecution won its point on the first roll call vote of the court. By a vote of 29 to 14 defense objections to testimony purporting to reveal a conspiracy between Johnston and J. R. Armstrong, an adviser, were overruled.

Johnston joked with newspaper men before he entered the Senate chambers.

"You look like a regular attorney, Governor," said a newspaper man as the suspended executive picked up a heavy brief case.

WHY JOHN D. JR. LOST CONFIDENCE IN R. W. STEWART

71-PAGE LETTER SENT STOCKHOLDERS

Statement Says Officer Broke His Promise to Resign—Senate Testimony Detailed.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Feb. 11.—Concealment of bonds by Robert W. Stewart is stressed in a 71-page letter sent to stockholders of the Standard Oil Co. of Indiana today by Winthrop W. Aldrich of the Proxy Committee, headed by John D. Rockefeller Jr.

The document includes excerpts from testimony before the Senate committee which investigated the Teapot Dome scandal and quotations from the opinion of the Supreme Court in which the purpose of the Continental Trading Co., Ltd., of Canada, was declared to have been illegitimate.

The letter sets forth in detail the connection of Stewart with the Continental company and charges that he concealed from the directors of the Standard of Indiana for six years that part of the profits which had been turned over to him in the form of Liberty bonds "which he knew as early as November, 1921, belonged either to the Sinclair Crude Oil Purchasing Co. or the Standard Oil Co. of Indiana."

Says Stewart Promised to Quit.

It goes on to say that Stewart "instead of disclosing this fact to his board of directors and turning over the bonds, immediately created a secret trust making a subordinate employe of the company trustee, and did not himself keep nor did he require the trustee to keep, any record whatever of the transaction except the 'trust agreement written in pencil which was kept in his (Stewart's) own safe deposit box."

"The request for the resignation by Mr. Rockefeller was based upon a personal promise of Col. Stewart that if Mr. Rockefeller manifested a loss of confidence in his management he would resign."

The letter adds that more than a majority of stockholders have sent proxies to the committee which Mr. Rockefeller heads. Rockefeller is trying to oust Stewart as chairman.

"In view of the statement issued yesterday by Col. Stewart in regard to his connection with the Continental Trading Co. transaction," the letter dated Feb. 8 says, "this letter is mailed to the stockholders of the Standard Oil Co. of Indiana for their information. The facts are all matters of public record in the minutes of the hearings before the Committee on Public Lands and Surveys of the United States Senate. Col Stewart's relation to these transactions is to a large extent set forth in his own testimony before that committee.

Stewart's Testimony Quoted.

"Certain portions of the testimony of Col. Stewart appearing in the published records of the hearings of the committee are hereinafter set forth, together with such facts with regard to the surrounding circumstances brought out at the hearings of the committee or in the record in the Teapot Dome suit as are essential to an understanding of the subject matter of this testimony.

"In appendix 'A' at the end of this letter a quotation is made from the opinion of the United States Supreme Court in the Teapot Dome suit (Mammoth Oil Co., vs. United States, 275 U. S. 13, at page 47); in which the United States Supreme Court characterizes the transactions of the Continental Trading Co. ending with the statements that the facts made it plain that the company was created for some illegitimate purpose."

"After Col. Stewart testified before the Senate Committee he was tried under indictments for contempt of the Senate and for perjury in his testimony before the Senate Committee, and was acquitted in both trials.

Reason for Loss of Confidence.

"It was not, however, the charge of contempt of the Senate or of perjury, but his conduct over a period of years in connection with the transactions of the Continental Trading Co., and his attitude toward his own company, toward the public and toward public authority, which caused loss of confidence in Col. Stewart."

The letter then lists all those who had any connection with the Continental Trading Co. Ltd., of Canada, which was formed to purchase oil from the Humphreys Oil Companies at $1.50 a barrel and sell it to the Sinclair Crude Oil Purchasing Co. and the Prairie Oil and Gas Co., for $1.75 a barrel. This list included Stewart, Harry W. Blackmer, James E. O'Neil and Harry F. Sinclair.

Follows then in chronological order the events from the negotiation for the Humphreys Oil in June-November, 1921, to May 1, 1928, when "Sinclair, recalled by the Senate Committee admits receiving the same amount of Liberty bonds of the Continental Trading Co. as Blackmer, O'Neil and tSewart."

Following this chronological listing is a detailed description of the conferences leading up to the contract for the sale of the oil to the Continental, the contracts the Continental signed to sell the oil to the other companies and the fact that Stewart and Sinclair guaranteed the $50,000,000 transaction when A. E. Humphreys Sr., asked for time in which to look into the credit of the Continental Company.

Recalls Osler Testimony.

It calls attention to the fact that H. S. Osler, Toronto, Canada, lawyer, who was the listed president of the Continental Company and its incorporator, refused to testify in the Mammoth Oil suit as to who he was acting for when he incorporated the company and that after the court had ruled he must testify the Mammoth Oil suit had already been settled due to the refusal of the District Court at Cheyenne, Wyo., to await the outcome of the Osler litigation.

The performance of the Humphreys companies in delivering the oil through the Continental, which received its $1.75 a barrel on the first of each month for the oil delivered and then on the 15th paid the Humphreys companies $1.50, is then recited. The profits from these transactions were put into the Continental Liberty bonds, which were divided equally between Stewart, Sinclair, O'Neil and Blackmer. Part of Sinclair's share of the bonds later were traced to Albert B. Fall, former Secretary of the Interior, and the man who leased Teapot Dome to Sinclair.

$400,000 for $4,000,000 Contract.

The sale of its contracts to the Prairie Oil & Gas Co. and the Sinclair Crude Oil Purchasing Co. is told in the following paragraph:

"he procedure under the contracts stopped in June, 1923, because the Continental Trading Co. at that time assigned the contract with the Humphreys companies for the purchase of the oil at $1.50 a barrel to the Prairie-Sinclair companies for $400,000. After this assignment the delivery of the oil by the Humphrey companies to the Prairie-Sinclair companies continued as before but the Prairie-Sinclair companies, instead of remitting purchase price of $1.75 to the Continental Trading Co., remitted to the Humphreys companies the purchase price of $1.50 per barrel. Between the time of the assignment as of June 1, 1923 and Feb. 1, 1928, the Humphreys companies delivered about 16,000,000 barrels of oil under the assigned contract on which the Continental Trading Co. would have made a profit, but for the assignment, of about $4,000,000. In other words a $4,000,000 contract was sold by the Continental Trading

STEWART COUNSEL CHARGES SENATORS ALTERED RECORDS

Names Cutting of New Mexico as One—Calls Rockefeller Committee Statement "Cowardly and Dastardly Libel."

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, Feb. 11.—Robert W. Stewart, through his personal attorney, last night pronounced as "nothing short of a cowardly and dastardly libel" statements made public in New York opposing Stewart's re-election to the Standard Oil Co. of Indiana's board of directors.

Albert W. Hopkins, the attorney, issued a statement which he said was in answer to two attacks upon Stewart published in New York, one unsigned, the other by Winthrop W. Aldrich, New York lawyer, a brother-in-law of John D. Rockefeller Jr., and chairman of the Rockefeller Proxies Committee seeking Stewart's defeat at the stockholders' meeting March 7.

The Aldrich statement was described by Hopkins as "a cunningly drawn document to deceive the stockholders and the public," and the lawyer further described it as "untrue in many places."

Calls It Cowardly Libel.

Taking up the lengthy statement by Aldrich, Stewart's lawyer noted "the intermingling of matters with which Col. Stewart had no more to do than Aldrich himself, in an apparent effort to cast reflections on Col. Stewart." "This," Hopkins said, "is nothing short of a cowardly and dastardly libel."

The Chicago attorney went again into the Consolidated Trading Co. transaction, which played a prominent part in the attack upon Stewart, and reiterated denials that the oil company head made any concealment of his part therein or that any action by him was taken except with the interests of the Standard company in mind.

Hopkins was asked about the Aldrich statement that Stewart for six years did not tell about the bonds received in the Consolidated deal.

"That is not true, either," Hopkins said. "Col. Stewart told L. L. Stephens, general counsel for the Standard Oil of Indiana about them in 1924. He didn't tell the rest of the board of directors because the investigation was on and because of the publicity, and he didn't wish to put any further responsibility on the directors' shoulders."

Regarding the New York statement that Rockefeller already held a majority of stockholders' proxies, Hopkins said:

"We say that that is untrue, and we charge them to prove it."

Denies Promise to Resign.

The attorney pointed out also that Stewart already had denied promising Rockefeller he would resign whenever the latter "manifest a loss of confidence in his (Stewart's) management."

Hopkins' statement follows:

"A copy of the statement by Mr. Aldrich, Mr. Rockefeller's brother-in-law, has come to our attention. It is a cunningly drawn document, the whole purpose of which is to deceive stockholders and public. Many pages of it are supposedly quotations from testimony. It was proven in Washington that in the Stewart testimony alone there were over 600 errors made by court stenographers, some of them made purposely by or under the direction of certain Senators. Mr. Aldrich knew this fact, but he noted the corrections in this document only to serve his own purpose and omitted the other errors.

"The intermingling of matters with which Col. Stewart had no more to do than Aldrich himself in an apparent effort to cast reflection on Col. Stewart is nothing less than cowardly and dastardly libel.

"The misstatements of fact cannot be accidental.

"Simultaneously with the release of the document, newspapers have received a statement from New York, evidently prepared by a press agent, but unsigned, and it shows what was attempted and desired by the perpetaration of the longer document."

Misstatements Charged.

Hopkins said that there were numerous misstatements in the Aldrich statement.

"As an example," he continued, "the document quotes Mr. Rockefeller as saying: 'Stewart promised me to resign at my request.' This is shown to be false by Rockefeller's own letter to Senator Walsh, written two days after the alleged promise."

"The press agent story says that 'more than a majority of the stockholders' have sent their proixes to the Rockefeller committee. We say that this is untrue and we challenge them to immediate proof. I am so sure of this that I am willing to quit if Mr. Aldrich is right and he can quit if he is wrong.

"Another misstatement is that saying Col. Stewart kept the bonds and turned them over to the company. The trustee of the Standard Oil Co. kept the bonds and turned them over to the company."

Asked who he meant by "certain Senators" in his reference to the oil testimony, Hopkins said that "Senator Cutting of New Mexico was one."

Version of Continental Deal.

Describing the events leading up to the Continental Trading Co. connection, Hopkins related that the land in Texas had been owned by Col. A. E. Humphrey, who wanted to sell it.

"Finally," Hopkins continued, "The Pure Oil Co. bought half the land and obtained the right to half the oil. Then Blackmer got an option to buy the rest of the oil at $1.50 a barrel, and told Col. Stewart he would sell to the Sinclair Crude Oil Purchasing Co. or the Prairie Oil and Gas Co. at $1.75 a barrel because they controlled pipe lines, but would not sell to the Standard Oil of Indiana.

"The Standard Oil of Indiana controlled half of the Sinclair Oil Co. and naturally Stewart was eager to buy all the oil he could at this price as it was under the market. Mr. Stewart had no connection with the Continental Trading Co., which was making 25 cents a barrel on all oil sold by the Humphrey interests.

"Then H. S. Osler, attorney and president of the Continental Trading Co., came to Col. Stewart and told him that he (Stewart) was in on the Continental profits. Col Stewart told him he did not want them and Osler answered 'All right, they are coming to you, so do as you like.'

"Stewart then called in Roy Barnett, Tax Commissioner for the Standard Oil of Indiana, and told him he had to have the oil and asked him to take the share of the profits as trustee for the company. Barnett agreed and later Osler handed Col. Stewart a package of bonds, which Col. Stewart turned over to Barnett as trustee.

"The reason Col. Stewart did not tell the directors of the arrangement was that, in view of all the publicity and investigations then under way, he did not want to place the responsibility on them."

EUROPE FROZEN IN FROM BALTIC TO THE BALKANS

MANY DEATHS FROM COLD IN GERMANY

Boy and Woman Killed by Wolves in Czecho-Slovakia — 40 Below in Silesia.

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, Feb. 11.—Ice and snow stretched today across Europe from Scandinavia to the Balkans.

Some towns frozen in faced food and fuel shortage. Ice was piled high in rivers. In the Baltic 140 ships of various sizes were held tight in an ice crush.

In Jugo-Slavia the Moslem town of Gradsko, near Sarajevo, was dug out of the snow after being buried for nine days. Food and fuel were gone and many of the 3000 inhabitants were delicious. Army sappers reached the marooned villagers after others had failed.

Passengers on the Simplon Express, which a week ago was buried in an avalanche near Tchutaldja, arrived at Constantinople from Rodosto little the worse for their experience. Among them was Sir Gilbert Clayton, new British High Commissioner to Irak.

Denmark had the worst ice conditions since 1893. Many islands were cut off. One of them, Pelvorm, has been isolated since Jan. 11. Ice-breakers had the greatest difficulty keeping channels open. Two skaters crossed the sound to Sweden.

Rescued From Ice-Bound Liner.

An ice breaker rescued the passengers of a liner frozen in the Kattegat. The ferry Mecklenburg was stranded with a ship load of passengers from Germany.

Germany suffered severely from the ice and cold. Many rivers were frozen over. River traffic almost everywhere stopped. There were many deaths. Danzig harbor froze over. At Kiel three battleships worked to keep a channel clear.

From Hamburg came word that traffic between the Nordstrand and the mainland was maintained by means of motor busses, running on the ice.

The Baltic Canal was frozen over. At Kassel storks arriving from the south were fed by the populace to prevent their starving.

15 Below Near Berlin.

The temperature in the environs of Berlin yesterday was 15 below zero Fahrenheit, and in the Silesian mountains 40 below.

Twelve hundred miles of the Danube River was frozen over and blocked with ice which in many places piled several feet high, giving rise to fears of disastrous floods when the thaw comes.

Hungary experienced the lowest temperatures since 1860, ranging from zero Fahrenheit at Budapest to 22 degrees below at Mateszalla.

Four women died in Thessaly, Greece, where 16 feet of snow demoralized all transportation and made prisoners of the inhabitants.

Attacked by Wolves.

There were scattered reports of depredations from famished wolves. The worst came from Bratislava, Czecho-Slovakia, where both human beings and cattle were attacked in small towns and villages. At Galanta villagers had to barricade themselves against the wolves. The town reported a 19-year-old boy killed by the animals after he had exhausted ammunition for a pistol he carried. A woman also was killed and several persons were badly mutilated.

Warsaw experienced the worst cold in more than 100 years. Telephone and telegraph service over all of Poland was interrupted. A coal shortage was threatened by interrupted railroad traffic.

Frost, snow and fog spread over a large part of France and some airplanes from Croydon were unable to find the Le Bourget Air drome and had to alight at Abbeville.

Southern and Western England, on the other hand, for the most part enjoyed several hours of warm sunshine.

Snowbound Constantinople Now Threatened by Famine.

VIENNA, Feb. 11.—Terrible reports of conditions in Constantinople due to the recent storms have reached here by wireless which is the only remaining means of communication with the Turkish metropolis. All telephone, telegraph and cable lines are out of service. Ships are prevented from leaving the harbor by a tornado. Snow lies nine feet deep in the suburbs.

Troops were employed Saturday night to disperse the packs of wolves which haunted the environs of the city. Dogs also are giving much trouble. Many homeless people have been frozen to death in the streets. Attempts to remove the snow from the streets have failed, the workers being unable to cope with the extraordinary conditions.

There is danger of a famine, as the supply of flour is limited and no more is procurable. Most of the shops and theaters are closed and the streets abandoned to the snowdrifts and bitter winds.

SENATE DISCUSSES LOANS TO SPECULATORS

Asks Federal Reserve Board for Suggestions on Curbing Them.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 11.—The Senate asked the Federal Reserve Board today to propose corrective legislation in line with its recent warning against the excessive use of the funds and credit of the reserve system for stock market speculation.

A resolution by Senator Heflin (Dem.) of Alabama, asking the Board to submit suggestions, was adopted without a dissenting voice after brief debate. The Alabaman said his resolution was not a criticism of the Board's warning.

Senator Glass (Dem.) of Virginia, former Secretary of the Treasury, expressed doubt that, the Heflin resolution would do any good, but added that "it can do no harm." Glass described the entire stock exchange system as a gambling organization which is "menacing the entire commercial structure of the nation." He said the Reserve Board should have issued its warning against brokers' loans a year ago. The Virginian declared that until a statutory definition could be drawn between investments and speculation, he doubted that the Federal Reserve Board or Congress could take steps to control the issuance of loans by reserve banks to brokers and dealers.

"If the Federal Reserve Board had the wisdom and the courage which it ought to have had," said Glass, "it would have acted long ago, and we never would have had this startling situation of almost $6,000,000,000 in brokers' loans out of reserve funds."

Senator Barkley (Dem.) of Kentucky remarked that "nothing could be more damaging or more difficult for Congress to undertake than to define what is and what is not speculation."

"I doubt if anything more harmful could occur to the credit system of the nation," he added, "than for Congress to tinker with the subject of speculation."

Studebaker Enters Radio Field.

NEW YORK, Feb. 11.—The Studebaker Mail Order Corporation, South Bend, Ind., announced today its entry into the radio field through purchase of Colin B. Kennedy, Inc., of Highland, Ill., radio manufacturer. A new corporation known as the Colin B. IRISH AND BRITISH CATHOLICS OBSERVE DAY OF EMANCIPATION

National Celebration of Centenary to Take Place Throughout Erin in June.

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, Feb. 11.—Cardinal Bourne and the Catholic hierarchy of England and Wales, in a joint pastoral letter read in all Catholic churches yesterday, the day of the centenary of Catholic emancipation in Britain, said the political emancipation of the Catholics had been the mental emancipation of many Protestants.

The pastoral lamented the endless variety and strange contradictions in divine worship which had replaced the former unity and uniformity in Britain under the Catholic Church.

DUBLIN, Feb. 11.—Lenten pastoral letters from the Bishops of Ireland were read in all Roman Catholic churches of the country today. In each letter reference is made to the fact that 1929 is the centenary of Catholic emancipation in Ireland.

Archbishop Joseph MacRory of Belfast announced that a national celebration of the centenary would be held next June, beginning with a general celebration of the holy communion throughout the country, June 16.

FLU SPREADING IN VIENNA

By the Associated Press.

VIENNA, Feb. 11.—The city government has opened a huge emergency hospital, consisting of a group of wooden huts containing 8500 beds, to accommodate the increasing number of influenza victims. This hospital is reserved for women, of whom it is estimated 70 per cent are afflicted with the disease.

By the Associated Press.

BUDAPEST, Feb. 11.—An alarming epidemic of influenza has appeared again throughout Hungary. In Budapest 1000 patients were admitted to hospitals during the last 24 hours. The percentage of school children, ill with the disease, has increased in three days from 20 to 30 per cent. More than 20 per cent of the Government employes are suffering from the disease and many trials have been suspended because Judges, lawyers and court attendants are ill. Emergency hospitals have been improvised.

MARSHAL FOCH IMPROVING

By the Associated Press.

PARIS, Feb. 11.—Marshal Ferdinand Foch was well enough this morning to worry about the vast number of flowers he has received from the American colony here. "Does that mean," he asked, "that they think my end is here?" Dr. Heitz-Boyer, his physician, reassured him, telling him that Americans usually cheered convalescents in that fashion.

Dr. Heitz-Boyer, Daveniere, and Degennes had an hour's visit with the Marshal. They said they found his general condition improved and that he was able to eat almost normally. His temperature this morning was 99.3; his pulse 82. Visits of friends to the sick room will be prohibited for a long while, one of the doctors said.

COL. LINDBERGH LANDS IN BRITISH HONDURAS

Arrives at Belize From Managua, on Way Back to U. S.

By the Associated Press.

BELIZE, British Honduras, Feb. 11.—Col. Charles A. Lindbergh, homeward bound from his inaugural Panama air mail flight, arrived here today at 10:50 a. m., St. Louis time, from Managua, Nicaragua, where he spent last night.

The Colonel came here without stopping at Tela, Honduras, but a plane which accompanied him from Managua, halted there. Lindbergh made the 600-mile flight from Managua in six hours and 57 minutes. His decision to remain here overnight instead of at Tela interrupted the work of widening the landing ramp in the local harbor. The ramp was only 20 feet wide and Lindbergh had some difficulty with it on his journey south.

By the Associated Press.

MANAGUA, Feb. 11. — Col. Charles A. Lindbergh, on a return flight from Panama after inaugurating the first air mail service between the United States and the Canal Zone, took off from Managua for Belize, British Honduras, at 6 o'clock this morning.

The flyer, who left the Canal Zone yesterday, spent the night at Managua.

Accompanying Col. Lindbergh on his return flight to the United States is a plane piloted by Raymond J. Merritt. Another companion is Lieut. Christian Schilt, Marine Corps aviator, who is going to Miami to become district superintendent of the Pan-American Airways mail route.

Lindbergh has with him 803 pounds of mail from Panama to the United States.

The two planes, which left Panama City yesterday morning, swooped down out of a clear sky yesterday at 1:35 p. m., fully three hours ahead of the time they were expected. The flyers drove up to the United States Legation in a Marine Corps automobile long before Charles C. Eberhardt, Minister, had even intended starting for the flying field to greet them.

Stops were made on the way here at David, Panama, and Puntarenas, Costa Rica.

BAY OF WHALES, Antartica, Feb. 9. (by wireless).—The bay is a dim and shadowlike place today, across which the City of New York moves, crusted in ice, like a ghost ship with no home. It is snowing and foggy so that the high white cliffs are invisible except when they loom suddenly out of the sea to warn us away from their crumbling sides. The wind has died and a sepulchral silence envelops us, broken only by the occasional splash of a wave or the creaking of a stay. Men's voices sound hollow and their steps are muffled by the sodden slush and snow on our decks.

Two days we have been wandering in this dismal half-world, and the sky shows no sign of opening and letting in the gloom-dispelling sun. We jog about to one side of the bay and back again, under jib, stay sails and spanker, ice hanging from the sides. The wind is from the north, and in this inverted region it brings warm air instead of cold, so that the temperature today is 28 above. There is nothing to do but wait and try to be patient, hoping that the wind will not blow hard before switching to the south, and drive us down into the bay ice.

Dog Teams Vanish in Fog.

This doleful interim began Thursday, when a strong wind came up in the East, somehow associated with a severe storm in the Ross Sea to the north. For a time we lay anchored to the edge of the pack, secure under the shelter of the barrier half a mile away. The dog sleds made only one trip that day over the snow-shrouded trail. When they left they disappeared in the white drift that obliterated everything only 100 yards away. It was impossible to see the trail, however, and they all reached the base safely.

As the wind increased, the three lines which held us to the ice grew taut under the incessant buffeting. The rigging sang and the ship lay over a little under the pressure.

Only the man on watch was on deck. It was bitterly cold during the first of the storm. Down below men were writing or reading, trying to make the best of their unaccustomed leisure, when there was a thud against the side and the scraping of ice. We all knew that sound now, and there was an outpouring from cabin and forecastle. The ice had given away under the slight swell and our tugging, and the ice anchors were caught on the far side of the floes. The ship began to drift along the edge and the ice to pack around us.

Orders Anchor Lines Cut.

There was no time to save the anchors if the propeller was to be kept clear of the thick, heavy ice, and Commander Byrd ordered the

The name and address of the author must accompany every contribution, but on request will not be published. Letters not exceeding 200 words will receive preference.

As to a Certain Drama.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

PERMIT me to commend you for your editorial on "Strange Interlude," which was not really a discussion of the O'Neill play at all but an analysis of the trend of modern literature. As such, it was excellent. It exhibited a spirit of sympathy and understanding of what young authors are attempting to do nowadays that is too rarely encountered.

I was particularly impressed, however, with your extreme caution on the subject of the play itself. You handled it gingerly and at arm's length and gave readers the impression that, while you regarded it as a symptom of literary progress, you were loath to do more. I think you were right, though the New York critics greeted it with what might conservatively be called wild abandon. They said it has the hugeness of mills of the gods, "one of the most astonishing adventures a stage ever held," "dazzlingly brilliant with the sunshine of words that sing," "the complications are almost Wagnerian in their formidable grandeur," and otherwise strewed adjectives all over the place.

Perhaps this is because O'Neill is the first American playwright to rise above mediocrity. Perhaps after enduring thousands of Bronson Howards, Clyde Fitches, Owen Davises and other playwrighting descendants of Dion Boucicault, the contrast which O'Neill offers is a signal for smiting the lyre and tearing the hair. This would explain what seems to me gross over-emphasis of O'Neill, at least so far as "Strange Interlude" is concerned. I thought it was a freakish exposition of psycho-analysis that trailed off rather badly into melodrama.

I grant you that O'Neill is to the theater what Monet and Constable were to painting, but what I hope to see before I die is the theatrical equivalent of such true revolutionaries as Cezanne and Matisse. I don't think O'Neill has quite made that grade yet. R. C.

We Blush.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

THE Post-Dispatch editorial page of Feb. 7 ought to be framed as a model of excellence in weight of opinion, brilliant satire and vivid "vox populi." It is a masterpiece—portraying all the vintage of the wine press of human experience, tinged with spiritual resignation.

A Bridge Which Looks Shaky.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

ATTENTION should be called, I think, to the condition of the long bridge on the Manchester car line, between Maplewood and Webster Groves.

In some places ties are rotted, many bolts have been shaken out through the vibration of the cars, and if a person carries curiosity a step farther and examines the iron supports that are near the ground, they will be found deeply rusted in places. Paint peeling and cracking all over the whole structure makes one wonder how long before rot and vibration will so weaken the bridge that a serious accident will occur. I can think of pleasanter things than a fall from such a height.

A Confusion in Names.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

SOMETIME ago you published a letter signed "Uneducated Mother" containing a tribute to "Miss Gallagher, who teaches English at night at Soldan High." This no doubt referred to Miss Grace Gallagher. A few days later a letter signed "An Appreciative Pupil" pointed out that Miss Gallagher was killed by an automobile early in November. This reference is to Miss Mary Gallagher. Miss Mary Gallagher also taught night classes at Soldan. This explains the confusion.

Major Lambert's Services.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

TO take cognisance of Maj. Lambert's knowledge of aviation problems offered the city fathers opportunity to show in a small way appreciation of his generous contributions to the development of aeronautics and his efforts to put "Saint Louis to the front" in aviation.

The difference between the sum necessary to provide adequate lighting—as determined by the men who fly—and that required to carry out the lighting plan proposed by city officials would go a long way toward employing men trained in the science of aviation.

If the cost of each item in the development of the airport is so needlessly expensive as the lighting, how far will the amount authorized by the bond issue go? E. M. A.

Zoo and Sanitarium.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

DURING the last four years while millions of dollars were being spent on zoo buildings, they practiced economy at the City Sanitarium. Three underpaid nurses are expected to take care of 84 insane sick. Tell me, can this be done?

NEEDED, A MINORITY PARTY.

A good Hoover Republican, Alden Freeman of Santa Barbara, Cal., has sent his check for $1000 to the Democratic National Committee in response to the recent radio appeal of former Gov. Smith. He has done this because he believes Mr. Hoover as President will "need a strong Democratic party to uphold his hands against the machinations of the Teapot Dome group * * * in both parties."

The expression, "Teapot Dome group," is, we assume, used in a generic sense. Certainly there are selfish interests in both parties who seek special privileges from the Government, regardless of which party is in power, and are not scrupulous in getting what they want. Their modus operandi, however, is seldom as flagrant as were the tactics of the Teapot Domers. Often their technique is the essence of finesse. It may even be granted that some of our special-privilegists are wholly honest, according to their lights. They thoroughly believe, many of them, in the philosophy so frankly expressed years ago by that Pennsylvania railroad and coal magnate, that men of wealth are trustees of the Lord; that as such they can do no wrong; that it is the first duty of Government to safeguard their possessions and prerogatives. In other words, the late Mr. Baer of Reading renown argued for a dictatorship of wealth.

The menace of such a creed, its calloused denial of democracy, does not have to be labored. How can democracy meet it? How can a popular Government such as ours safeguard itself against the power of money? Manifestly there must be a vital minority party. When the Teapot Domers come, as they did in the confusion and moral chaos following the war, it was the minority party that made the fight. But the Sinclairs and Dohenys and the faithless Falls are not necessary to justify the existence of a minority party. Nor is it necessary for a public officer to belong to the minority party to serve as a minority leader or spokesman. Notwithstanding his all but lifelong affiliation with the Republican or majority party, Robert Marion LaFollette's career was one of almost continuous opposition to his party's policies in the major issues. The public service of another Republican, Senator Norris, has been identical in spirit with that of LaFollette, and somewhere in this category, too, Senator Borah may be written. Unique in our history, perhaps, was that last year of Senator Dolliver's, when, a regular of tried and proven regulars, he suddenly cast aside his orthodoxy in a gay, brilliant, delightful but serious effort to save his party from the deadly blunder of the Payne-Aldrich tariff act. But the irregulars or insurgents, or bolters, if you will, would accomplish little without a minority party and the division of public sentiment which a minority party embodies and typifies.

This California Republican is right. Mr. Hoover needs a minority party. The country needs a minority party; not a mere heckling political maverick, but a minority party with a philosophy and a purpose and an intellectual and moral capacity to restrain the majority party, to compel its adherence to the fundamentals of our democracy—a party robust enough always to be a contender for popular preferment when the dominant party runs amuck.

A BUSINESS ANOMALY.

For several years the oil industry has been in the doldrums. Like the coal mining industry, it has been suffering from over-production. Emphasis was given to that condition by the news in Friday's papers that the oil operators of Oklahoma had entered into an agreement to restrict production.

The same papers carried the report of Senator Norris' speech on the Rockefeller-Stewart fight which discussed at some length the enormous profits of the Standard Oil Co. of Indiana under Mr. Stewart's management. In Mr. Norris' judgment, such profits resulted from an excessive price for gasoline.

Mr. Norris' point seems to us to be well taken. There is something wrong in the scheme of things where the producers of a raw material are complaining of hard times while the manufacturers of the finished products of that raw material are reaping bonanza rewards. And the anomaly is not confined to oil. The farmer is the classic victim of that condition. When the farmer, for example, lets his apples rot, as he often has done, because he could not sell them, while the price of apples to the consumer in the city was prohibitive, there is something economically wrong.

The condition—whether in oil or apples or whatnot—is one which our boasted business genius should correct in justice to both the producer and consumer.

SAFER FLYING IN 1929.

The air-minded public has enjoyed its share of thrills in the new year, and has applauded feats all the more noteworthy because the element of recklessness has been pushed aside in favor of common sense. Safety was one of the minor considerations of daredevil flyers who in 1927 and 1928 tried to follow the pioneering flights of the capable Lindbergh, Chamberlin and Byrd. The result was a needless loss of life which cast a dubious light on all aviation and threatened to delay for many years acceptance of aircraft as a practical carrier for travel and commerce

The outstanding accomplishment of the year thus far is, of course, the flight of the Question Mark. Aside from the fact that records were broken, after all a minor consideration in a broad view of aviation, the stay of more than six days aloft proved the success of refueling in air and the endurance of airplane motors. There were thrills and suspense, but not of the deadly sort involved in the futile Dole race to Hawaii, in which three planes were lost at sea and only one finished.

When Miss Elinor Smith, 17 years old, set a new endurance mark for women the other day, she made a contribution to the future of flying. Pilot Tuxhorn's experiments at Marshall, Mo., in picking up mail sacks and fuel shot from a "synchronizing cannon" on the ground were thrilling and practical, although the flyer early in the test disqualified himself from setting a record by touching the earth on one of his downward swoops. Capt. Street and Capt. Stevens, army pilots of Wright Field, registered another forward step when they flew to an altitude of seven miles and proved it possible to take clear pictures of the earth, although clouds obscured it from the naked eye. The Wilkins and Byrd flights in the Antarctic also have been noteworthy, and succeeded by careful planning ahead and due consideration of safety.

Of course, there is nothing to prevent another flyer from setting out, as did the late Commander Mc-Donald last October, in a tiny Moth plane, without capacity for enough gasoline to carry him across the Atlantic, but the present tendency is to play safe and sane. Research is constantly making aviation safer, and the pioneers now can advance in their chosen field without undue risk of life.

UNDER-COVER MEN IN PRISONS.

The special committee of the House of Representatives appointed to investigate the existing conditions relative to Federal prisoners in Federal, state, county and municipal prisons and jails, apparently learned a great deal more than it cares to incorporate in its report. Its revelations of extreme congestion, of enforced idleness and the absence of any parole machinery in 86 of the 92 Federal judicial districts, were probably considered sufficiently damning in their totality.

Yet Representative John J. Boylan of New York, a member of the committee, felt it his duty to make one more disclosure on his own responsibility which every lover of our free institutions would wish to see embodied in that report, in the hope of immediate remedy. It is that Mrs. Willebrandt, Assistant Attorney-General in charge of Federal prisons, as well as of prohibition, has introduced the despicable practice of placing her "under-cover" men in the Federal prisons to spy upon officials and inmates. Congressman Boylan even charges that she procured false commitment papers from a Federal Judge in Detroit for one "under-cover" man, in order to give a seeming regularity to one of her espionage plots.

Knowing the reputation of the Federal judiciary, it seems inconceivable that a member of that body would knowingly be a party to so outrageous an assault upon our institutions as this involves, and, if he were imposed upon, jealousy of that same reputation would seem to hold the hope of a citation to this erratic woman for contempt.

Mr. Boylan says that it is his understanding that both President Coolidge and Attorney-General Sargent highly disapprove of this new practice. Apparently they are helpless so long as the Anti-Saloon League approves.

BILL TILDEN'S RETURN.

We do not know why the United States Lawn Tennis Association changed its mind and readmitted Bill Tilden into the ranks of so-called amateur tennis. It might have been inspired by either of the following motives:

1. A sense of abstract justice. Bill Tilden is no simon-pure amateur, but who is? How many of the young men listed among the first twenty players of the country have failed to capitalize their reputations in one way or another? Bill Tilden's offense was a technical violation of the player-writer rule, which is merely a legalistic manner of differentiating amateurs from professionals. He should never have been suspended and the Tennis Association showed the weakness of its position by lifting the suspension to permit Tilden to play in the Davis Cup finals.

2. A sense of expediency. Bill Tilden is the most colorful figure in tennis. His absence from major tournaments is a terrific blow to the box office. This was demonstrated last year at the flat Tilden-less events in the latter part of the season.

No person or institution, and that includes the United States Lawn Tennis Association, has done nearly as much for tennis as Tilden. Without him, the game is like Hamlet without the Prince of Denmark. He is, of course, cantankerous, temperamental and perhaps almost insufferable at times, but how the gallery does enjoy hearing him rave, and how it likes to watch his long, gaunt figure cover the court!

RECREATION IN MISSOURI.

How fast recreation is increasing in Missouri, and how wonderfully the State lends itself to hunting, fishing, camping, etc., are indicated by the last annual report of the State Game and Fish Commissioner, Mr. Keith McCanse.

From the feebleness of a few years ago, when it was little better than a bench at the political pie counter, the Game and Fish Department has achieved a dignity and importance that are not to be overlooked. It has in its care twelve State parks, is the custodian of some of the finest of the big springs, conducts 26 game refuges and auxiliaries, propagates and distributes game fish from six State hatcheries, conserves fur-bearing animals, and enforces the fish and game laws. Getting a late start, it is fast bringing Missouri abreast of the states which have made recreation an asset.

What general participation there is in recreation of this type by the people of the State is shown by the number of licenses issued to hunters and fishermen. They total 280,580. St. Louisans, for instance, took out in 1928 State hunting and fishing licenses to the number of 22,431, and State fishing licenses to the number of 20,130. That is, 43,556 St. Louisans either hunt or fish, so the hunting and fishing hereabouts must be good.

Kansas City and Jefferson City, or that is Jackson and Cole counties, follow us rather leisurely in this respect. In Jackson there are 22,623, and in Cole County 9148 persons who walk in the footsteps of the great Nimrod and the inimitable Izaak Walton. The State officeholders seem to have the most time for it. The revenue of the department from all hunting and fishing licenses in 1928 was $325,513.52.

A happy feature of the McCanse regime is the Fish and Game News, which makes public all the affairs of a department once as secretive as Thibet.

KING ALEXANDER AND THE BALKANS.

King Alexander of Jugo-Slavia, who recently reopened the frontier between his country and Bulgaria, now will propose a formal pact of "amity and friendship" with that neighbor country. It is predicted that such an agreement may lead to a treaty among Jugo-Slavia, Bulgaria, Rumania and Greece, "whereby each would guarantee the security of the others, thus creating a Balkan understanding."

Since King Alexander, a short time ago, was impelled by continual disagreement among the various peoples of his kingdom, and their legislators, to assume a dictatorship, he has, besides his already mentioned international advances, pardoned several Croatian separatists, pardoned those who attacked the Serbian flag at a parade in Zagreb, and extended forgiveness to Madame Stefan Raditch, widow of the murdered Croatian leader, who denounced the former Belgrade Government in a communication to the League of Nations.

Alexander has, in short, proved himself, it would seem, to be the democratic, intelligent and humane man he is reputed to be. Perhaps through Alexander the Balkans will be saved from themselves.

FORGETTING THE TWO WHO WERE HANGED.

Why the Chain Store?

Mass distribution, the sequel to mass production, is exemplified by the chain store; critics of it are prone to exaggerate what they consider its evils and to overlook some of its benefits, such as the reduction of waste in distribution, which has been estimated at $8,000,000,000 a year.

RALPH W. GWINN, Chain Store Executive, in The New York Herald Tribune Magazine.

CHAINS started at about the same time that mass production began, as might have been expected. However, their rate of growth was much slower. They depended wholly upon the speed with which buyers and managers, salesmen and saleswomen, could be trained and co-ordinated for group action. Capital was not as important here as it was in production. Neither was there much possibility of the use of machinery and mechanical technique as it was known to production. A new technique—not for uniting metals and mechanical power, but for relating and organizing human elements—had to be found before chains could be established on a sectional and national scale.

By now all have adjusted themselves to the hardships involved in the change from the old hand labor to the new factory system. There is, in general, a widespread appreciation of the higher scale of living which this evolution has made possible.

The chain system, which is the device for mass distribution paralleling improved production, has still to be understood and its possibilities in the modern scheme of living appreciated. Mass production brought down materially the costs of food and clothing, but until the chains came we had no parallel mass distributing system. We lost in our unco-ordinated, wasteful distribution outlets what we saved in mass production.

The factory has been accepted as good, but to some the chain system seems inimical to the best interests of the individual American as he is typified by the single-store merchant. Yet it follows that if the factory system is good, then the chain system is just as desirable. It is, in fact, a necessary complement to the factory if all of the latter's advantages are to be realized by the public. Certain old-fashioned groups with new-fangled propaganda charge the chains with forcing thousands of retail merchants out of business annually. They would make it appear that chains threaten the very bulwarks of American society.

What do the contrary facts show? Ninety per cent of all retail merchants have always failed. That was true before the advent of the chain system. This high percentage is still about the rate of failure today. Many have voluntarily paid up their debts and quit a business for which they were not trained at the start. Still others have gone through the bankruptcy courts. Chains are now being blamed because it is easier to lay the burden there than it is to think and state the fundamental reason for these unfortunate failures, which have been the greatest single cause of poverty, hardship and extreme waste affecting the public.

In 1914 there were 12,851 merchants who went into bankruptcy. They failed owing $165,865,000. There was very little chain store competition then. At about the same rate of failure, in 1927, there were 16,082 merchants who went into bankruptcy owing $225,194,000 to their creditors. But even now the chains altogether do only about 15 per cent of the mercantile business. So they are scarcely to be held responsible for those failing in a territory where approximately $5 per cent of the business still is conducted by the independent merchant.

During the last 27 years it is estimated that out of every thousand merchants who started in the mercantile business 900 have failed—a total of 90 per cent. One of the national chains, now operating over 1000 stores, doing business at the rate of $240,000,000 per year, has, during the same 27 years, closed only 23 stores which have been failures in the same sense as the 900 stores mentioned above. This represents a total of failures for the chain of 2.3 per cent. During this 27-year period no bank, no landlord, no employe, no manufacturer, has lost one penny through failure of that chain to pay its debts. In one of the large food chain organizations, operating many thousands of stores, this same record has been maintained for approximately 70 years.

The chain distribution machine, like the production machine, is designed to work as close as possible to 100 per cent capacity. It is bound to succeed if it keeps working toward that mark. A factory which is busy only 50 per cent of the time would be discontinued promptly as unprofitable, because factory accountants know month by month exactly what the business is showing. It is different in average single stores. Tens of thousands of them operate at less than 50 per cent capacity. Clerks are busy only half the time. A charge of 50 per cent for the cost of the rent, clerk hire, taxes, interest, executives' salaries, traveling salesmen's salaries and advertising is excessive, but, of course, it must be added to the sales price of every bit of food and clothing sold through the incompletely functioning store.

In a study completed in May, 1928, conducted by the United States Bureau of Census, it was found that in 11 cities 28 per cent of the concerns annually did less than $5000 worth of business each, and that 18 per cent of them did between $5000 and $10,000. It was found that 44 per cent of the total number of stores in operation in these 11 cities did only 5 per cent of the total business. In these same cities the chain units constituted only 15 per cent of the total number of stores and their sales amounted to 28.7 per cent of the total volume. It is safe, therefore, to assert that there are at least twice as many retail outlets as are economically necessary. This refutes the widespread fallacy that the prosperity of a community is determined by the number of retail merchants that it supports.

In the face of these figures it is impossible for retailers to bask in the illusion that they create wealth in the broadest sense. Their chief function is to bring down costs and eliminate waste so as to leave the wealth with those who create it. The fundamental wealth of every community is created by products from the farms, factories, mines, forests and fisheries. The secret of good merchandising is to take as little of that as possible.

So these losses and wastes in distribution prevent us from boasting very much of the savings made in production. We are still in that amazing position of overproducing food and clothing, while, because of the excessive costs of our inadequate system of distribution, great strata of society still are without adequate food and clothing, even in this period of prosperity. Mr. Hoover's engineering committee estimated that $8,000,000,000 is the annual loss for waste in distribution of all commodities. The chain store is designed materially to reduce that figure.

WASHINGTON DAY BY DAY

WASHINGTON, Feb. 11.

CHARLIE DAWES attempted to make the United States Senate a more business-like body. Charlie Curtis will try to make this august assembly a more polite body of gentlemen.

Whether the latter will get the raspberry as did the former remains to be seen.

Curtis will not employ the two-fisted methods of "Hell and Maria." The Kansan does not relish being hazed as only the Senate can haze one. He has been a Senator too long and knows his colleagues too well for any such tactics.

But the Vice President-elect does hope to see an improvement in Senate etiquette during his tenure.

Judging from past actions, he will insist that clause I of rule XIX is adhered to. This rule provides that when a Senator speaks "he shall arise and address the presiding officer, and shall not proceed until he is recognized."

THIS rule is perhaps more often violated by Senators than any other one in the manual. It is a favorite trick to put questions at a colleague, while he is on his feet, without addressing the chair. When members get into a protracted interchange with a Senator who has the floor, indeed, at times they seem to ignore the fact that the President exists. It is not an uncommon sight to see three or four Senators gibing a colleague at one time. At such times they also forget to use the required third person style.

Dawes has been inclined to be more or less lenient on such occasions, and let them have a good time. Curtis, however, takes an opposite view. When the Kellogg peace treaty was before the Senate for consideration, the Vice President-elect was in the chair several times.

WHEN his colleagues cavorted around and neglected the fact that rule XIX was in existence, Curtis repeatedly warned them that, whether they had given it thought or not, the Senate is supposed to be conducted along parliamentary lines and that those gentlemen on their feet without permission from the chair were out of order and would kindly be seated.

Trouble probably will be encountered if he becomes too zealous. For that matter, anyone who attempts to tell the Senate where to get off soon finds himself in hot water. Dawes' crusade to limit debate is a shining example.

Incidentally, Curtis will be the first Senator to become Vice President since the days of Charles W. Fairbanks.

Of Making Many Books

JOHN G. NEIHARDT

Fewer and Better Books

ELLIOT HOLT, formerly vice president of Henry Holt & Co. and the last member of the family to remain in the book publishing business, will issue only one book a month. Concerning the radical change in publishing methods Mr. Holt says:

"The essential problems of book publishing have been so obvious to everyone in the business that it is hard to realize the book reading public has never understood these simple questions. Publishers make an ineffectual effort to acquaint a careless public with a new book they consider really good. Their efforts generally fail, simply because they cannot afford to concentrate on one book they believe in at the expense of the many new volumes clamoring for recognition. Prestige advertising rates preclude more than the brief initial flare-up of enthusiasm. If there is no immediate response from the public, the publisher must drop the book to make room for many new titles crowding his 'list,' each demanding a trial. Many publishing houses haven't time for one book."

"The result? An over-abundance of books beyond possible public consumption: financial failure of four novels and biographies in ten; a glutting of bookstores with unsalable remainders; a serious loss on titles which never pay for themselves; endless overhead maintained in the hectic effort to sell a book which 'catches on' and pay for the failures. The reading public is reaching the absorption point. To say the situation is uneconomic is too mild a definition. What can book-buyers believe when publishers continue to tout that all their books on the enormous list are excellent, when they generally believe it themselves and always hope they are? It is an endless variation of robbing Peter to pay Paul. No successful book should be made to shoulder the burdens of the failures or have its promotion compensated by any other than its own special popular and financial considerations. Wouldn't it be more rational if publishers confined their efforts to fewer titles, each one commanding their most loyal backing and honest respect? Might not the method be better for the chosen authors themselves than being included in the deluge of publications from most firms that swell the public?"

Elliot Holt is the son of the late Henry Holt, dean of American publishers, who founded Henry Holt and Company 62 years ago. He is starting this new venture as his father's concern was recently sold by the interest of the heirs to its majority holdings, of which he was an equal sharer.

THE MEMOIRS OF J. M. DENT. (Dutton.)

Some years before his death in 1926, J. M. Dent, the distinguished London publisher, wrote these memoirs for a small circle of intimate friends. He thought of the manuscript as a collection of personal letters and had no thought of its being published after his death. In 1921 a small edition of the memoirs was issued privately. It is to the son, Hugh it. Dent, who has succeeded his father as head of J. M. Dent & Sons, Ltd., that we now owe the privilege of becoming intimately acquainted with so rare a spirit as that which the memoirs modestly reveal.

The Memoirs, as originally written, were concerned chiefly with the high spots in the life of the writer, who was not the sort of man to assume that anything about himself would necessarily be worth recording. Consequently there were gaps in the narrative, and many of these have been filled by the son under whose editorship the volume was prepared.

J. M. Dent was far more than a successful book manufacturer and merchant. He was of that high company of publishers of which the late Henry Holt was dean in America for so many years, and of which the elder George P. Brett of the Macmillan Company is now a shining example. In publishing a book, as his record shows, he always had the welfare of the reading public in mind, and had he done no more in his whole career than create Everyman's Library he would have been a great benefactor.

Richly literate, finely human in all his relations and intimately acquainted with the greatest men of his time, J. M. Dent was a man good to know; and here in his Memoirs we may know him.

BARE HANDS. By Hawthorne Daniel. (Coward McCann.)

Boys should get a fine thrill out of this rather incredible but perhaps not wholly impossible yarn. Three Seattle men are cast upon a lonely island somewhere in the Aleutian group, and with "bare hands" they set about to build a steamboat. Once the reader has consented to an amiable truce with the author, agreeing to play the story game as offered, the details of the building of the boat become almost plausible. Fancy the difficulties to be overcome—the building of a furnace, the smelting of iron, the making of metal tools, the casting of the cylinder, the forging of the pistons, the making of boiler plate and rivets, etc. It seems a big order, but, according to the author, six months of toil sufficed for triumph.

SYMPHONY AT BEST IN SUNDAY CONCERT

By THOMAS B. SHERMAN.

A moving performance of Cesar Franck's D Minor symphony made yesterday afternoon's performance of the St. Louis Symphony the most gratifying of any yet given at this season's popular concerts. It was a performance rich in sonorities, just in design and accurate in the revelation of that strangely appealing mystic quality in the Belgian composer's music. The audience responded readily and E. Fernandez Arbos, the visiting Spanish conductor who had again demonstrated strikingly his ability to get what he wanted from the players, was paid a tribute that seemed heartfelt.

The D Minor symphony was the only composition in that style composed by the Belgian master, but it was enough to notify the world that the interpretation of the spiritual quality in life was not an exclusive function of the German temperament. This composition—as does most of Franck's music—has an inner relationship to the works of Sebastian Bach. It has, for the most part, the same impersonal devotion and the same tenderness. Outwardly, of course, the D Minor is a symphony in the general manner of the romantic symphonic writers, even though it has only three movements.

Besides the Franck symphony, Mr. Arbos presented the familiar Andante Cantabile from Tschaikowsky's string quartet, Liadow's "Music Box," in which an alarm clock was introduced into the orchestration; the stirring Polovstian dances from Borodin's opera, "Prince Igor," and a repetition of the Meistersinger Prelude.

A third hearing of the Spanish conductor's Meistersinger overture convinced this reviewer that Arbos knew what he was doing when he raised the "King David" theme, played by the second violins, to the same level as the other principal themes in the involved polyphonic section which precedes the conclusion.

The whole overture was given a glowing presentation.

Violinist Gives Pleasing Programs in Week-end Recitals, One Being for Children.

Efram Zimbalist, the violinist, gave two recitals over the week-end in the concert hall of the Young Men's Hebrew Association. The Saturday afternoon recital was addressed largely to children. Sunday evening was given over to the adults of the association and the general public. A well-filled house greeted him on both occasions.

The works of Haendel, Gazounow, Achron, Chopin, Glinka and Bazzini figured in the evening program, together with numbers by Schubert and Kreisler, which the violinist supplied in the form of encores. Mr. Zimbalist's technique was impressive enough to arouse the stunt lovers without overshadowing the fact that his style sense and his emotional equipment are of the best. Perfectionists may point out that his tone was not always pure, but without damaging the fact that he was always true to the high obligation of an artist.

The most interesting group on his program was that contained in the suite by Achron—first name not given—but who may be identified as the gentleman who acts as Jascha Heifetz's accompanist. This, of course, does not mean that they had a greater musical value, but that they were new, original and uncannily apt in living up to their titles.

Mr. Zimbalist was accompanied by Emanuel Bay. T. B. S.

Day by Day in Monte Carlo

By O. O. McIntyre

MONTE CARLO, Feb. 11.

MORNING on the sun-dappled Terrace of Monte Carlo, with the trembling tinted blue of the Mediterranean in the offing has the giddy headiness of a before-breakfast cocktail. The French express the idea with their "Oo, la, la!" The most sedate turn pagan to whoop and dance over life.

This same climatic and scenic wallop offsets the depression of heavy losses at the gaming table here. People lose staggering sums and still feel exhilarated. But Monte Carlo's glitter reminds me of the phosphorescent glow of a beautiful and rotting fish. The veins of Monaco run cold with ice water.

Dotting various tables were Elsie Janis and her mother, Alistair Mackintosh, Maybelle Corey Gilman, Fritz Kreisler and, of course, that ever-present delineator of international intrigue, E. Phillips Oppenheim, the novelist. It is the straggly season on the French Riviera, but colorful just the same.

At luncheon I met Monsieur Chiappe, the energetic and spectacular Prefect of Police of Paris—incognito for a day's relief from crook hunting. He is a Corsican, an idealist and a determined protector of middle classes. Just now he is warring on peep show guides and gigolos of Paris. He suggests the cricket.

Monte Carlo continues to wax expensive. There is a Palm Beach tilt to cafe and hotel tariffs. Various cocktails have advanced one franc fifty over last year. The head porter at the Hotel de Paris explained it frankly with: "We want to make it impossible for all save the very rich." And I didn't care for the sharp look he gave me and my dog.

AN American lady stepped from a motor at her Monte Carlo hotel this afternoon in semi hysterics. She had been driving along the famous Corniche road and alighted for a closer view of a peaceful little lake a short distance away. Accompanying her was a faithful and valuable Scotch terrier. She tossed a stick into the water for the dog to retrieve and was horrified to see a swan glide up, clutch the animal in its talons and hold it under water until it drowned. She learned from a game keeper this was the fate of almost every dog that approached swans in water. Add permanent dislikes—swans.

MONTE CARLO'S dream of gold is an invincible distraction, but there are other pleasant diversions. Such as fishing, trap shooting, horseback riding, motoring, tennis, golf and listening to those people at adjoining tables who try to create a wordliness for your benefit. The ordinary fibber becomes a grandiose liar at Monte Carlo. I have spoken twice carelessly of an imaginary yacht. But 99 per cent of the visitors come here solely to —business of coining an original phrase—woo the goddess of chance. They seem to be straining, like hounds on leashes, until the casinos are thrown open for the day.

THERE is nothing, despite his suave and imperturbable manner, quite so pathetic to me as a gambling casino croupier. His employers make distrust of him so humiliatingly obvious. Every pocket in his evening clothes is tightly sewed up with thread that is plainly discernable. After he finishes for the day, he must strip and walk through an alley of inspectors to reach his going home attire. He has no chance to steal and is paid a miserable wage. But he does see life!

MONTE CARLO is stimulating and one is clutched by its beauty for a day, but unless one is thrilled by gambling it seems long enough. It is no place for a boob. Interwoven in its great splendor are sordid splotches of ugliness and despairing misery. Last night, for instance, all Monte Carlo knows there were two attempts—one successful—at suicide over gaming losses. But the rest of the world will never know it. And one cannot forget those ancient crones with clawlike fingers who sit at small play tables, gulping fiery brandy to sustain their courage. What a terrible old age!

MRS. HATCH of Hingham, Mass., who with her two young daughters has been visiting her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Paul Jones of Webster Groves, will depart Wednesday for her home.

FUNERAL OF HENRY D. GOSHERT

Expert Penman, 66, Buried in Oak Grove Cemetery.

The funeral of Henry D. Goshert, expert penman and inscriber of elaborate invitations and testimonials such as were presented to Marshal Foch, Gen. Pershing and Col. Linbergh, was held today at a funeral establishment at 5966 Easton avenue. Burial was in Oak Grove Cemetery.

Mr. Goshert, who was 66 years old and lived at 8106 Washington avenue, Vinita Park, died Saturday morning at the Missouri Baptist Hospital of bronchial pneumonia contracted after an operation. He is survived by his widow, Mrs. Florence M. Goshert. Before he came to St. Louis, 33 years ago, he taught in a business college in Quincy, Ill.

JEFFERSON CITY, Feb. 11.—Edgar W. Blair, 81 years old, father of Judge David E. Blair of the Missouri Supreme Court, died suddenly here last night of heart disease. Funeral services probably will be here tomorrow and burial will be in Salina, Kan. Mr. Blair practiced law in Salina for many years and was County Attorney of Saline County, Kan. He later practiced law in Joplin.

Latin Composition to Be Topic.

A round-table discussion of Latin composition will be held at the meeting of the Classical Club of St. Louis in the St. Louis University Law School, 3642 Lindell boulevard, next Saturday evening at 8:15. Dr. Thomas Duncan of Washington University will read a paper on "A Reconsideration of the Claims of Greek."

ANTONIO AND NINA DE MARCO HEADLINERS AT THE ST. LOUIS

Eubie Blake, Pianist-Composer, Offers Negro Revue; Movie Is "The Jazz Age."

A little bit of everything at the St. Louis Theater this week includes most notably Antonio and Nina de Marco, dancers extraordinary, and a high-brown miniature revue put together by Eubie Blake, pianist-composer of "Shuffle Along" fame. The De Marcos are, as they have been for years, the last word in graceful stepping. Blake has re-enforced his act with a number of Aframerican stage stars—sonorous Broadway Jones, Dewey Brown, a clever pantomimist; Marion and Dade, Katie Crippen and a chorus of Panama Pansies.

In addition, there are Gracie Deagon and Charles Cannefax in some amusing nonsense; Jimmy Savo, comedian, with Joan Franzo; Corinne Tilton, singing comedienne, and Fink's Mules, one of the few animal acts of the circuit not hard to watch.

SOCIAL ACTIVITIES

AN interesting visitor in St. Louis is Mrs. Frank Peckham of Asheville, N. C., who is visiting her sister-in-law, Mrs. Samuel Graham Wilson Jr., 4382 Westminster place. She arrived Saturday night with Mrs. Wilson, who had been her guest for two weeks, and will remain three or four weeks. Mrs. Peckham was formerly Miss Isabel Wyman of St. Louis, and is a sister of Mr. Allan Wyman, 7160 Washington boulevard. This is her first visit here in several years and a number of parties are being arranged in her honor.

Mrs. Wilson will have a bridge party for her guest tomorrow afternoon, and Thursday night Mr. and Mrs. Wyman will give a small party for her at the Valentine dinner dance at Bellerive Country Club. Next Monday Mrs. Dudley Bragdon, 5510 Cates avenue, will be hostess at a tea.

Mr. and Mrs. Wilson's daughters, Miss Frances and Miss Marie Peckham Wilson, who accompanied their mother to Asheville, have remained for a longer visit.

Mrs. John M. Wood, 5535 Clemens avenue, and her daughter, Miss Eleanor Wood, landed in New York last Monday on the George Washington, after a six-month trip abroad. They have been traveling in Eastern and Central Europe, spending some time in Italy, and more recently in Paris, where they have been guests at Hotel Lenox.

Miss Wood will make her home in New York, and her mother will spend several weeks with her, before returning to St. Louis. At present Mrs. Wood is visiting another daughter, Mrs. Charles E. Tirrell, in Boston.

Mr. and Mrs. Sharp Ezzell, who are spending their honeymoon abroad, are now in Paris, and are guest at Hotel Majestic. They crossed on the Ile de France, and are expected home in April. Mrs. Ezzell was Mrs. Florence Lambert Niedringhaus, 48 Portland place.

Mr. and Mrs. William Harold Hoover, 10 North Kingshighway, who are spending the season in Miami, Fla., will go to New Orleans late this week for a few days and will return home in a week.

The Junior League sponsored another of a series of Monday morning lectures today in its clubroom, 4914 Maryland avenue, when Edgar Curtis Taylor, formerly of the faculty of Washington University, spoke on "The Revolutionary Spirit in Russia," with much of the lecture on the works of Maxim Gorky.

The lectures are given on the second, third and fourth Monday mornings of the month during the social season, with Mr. Taylor occupying the speaker's platform on the second Monday. His March lecture will deal with the literature of France.

Mr. and Mrs. Chauncey P. Heath entertained a large group of friends at tea yesterday afternoon at their new home on Greenway avenue, University Hills.

The Women's Committee of the St. Louis Symphony Orchestra will give a reception this afternoon at the Forest Park Hotel in honor of Mr. and Mrs. E. Fernandez Arbos. Mr. Arbos who is the conductor of the Symphony Orchestra at Madrid, has come to St. Louis to conduct the local orchestra at a series of concerts.

Prior to the tea today he will give a talk on his next programs, to be given Feb. 15 and 16, and also about Spanish music.

Miss Mary Lionberger and Miss Emily Sproule will be hostesses for the tea, and the receiving line will include Mr. and Mrs. L. Warrington Baldwin, Miss Nellie Griswold, and Mrs. Harry E. Sprague, president of the Women's Committee. At the tea tables Mrs. H. Blaksley Collins, Mrs. Theron Catlin, Mrs. J. Lionberger Davis and Mrs. Guido Pantaleoni will preside.

Mrs. Marion S. Fuqua of the Chester apartments has returned to St. Louis from her ranch in Colorado. She will depart in March with Mr. Fuqua on a big game hunt, to obtain a lion for the St. Louis Zoological Society, similar to the one she presented to that organization several months ago.

The Week's New Films

—:— By NIE —:—

THE best of all of the films with aviation as a background is on view down at Loews this week. It's called "The Flying Fleet" and is a delightful story of the Navy in service in peace times with plenty of romance and a genuine kick to its big scenes. It follows the fortunes of Ramon Novarro and Ralph Graves from their days at Annapolis, through the latter's attempt to fly across the Pacific and up to Ramon's marriage with Anita Page. Some of these events have been kept from the public heretofore owing to the strictness with which the United States guards its air secrets no doubt, but as shown in this picture they are quite the less real and thrilling. Lieut. Commander Frank Wead, U. S. N., wrote the story for the screen and knew what he was writing about and whoever supplied the sub-titles—(for it is a silent movie except for the buzz of the airplane propellers—turned out one of the snappiest lines the camera has ever thrown upon a whitewashed sheet. All in all "The Flying Fleet" is first-class entertainment and should help to relieve some of the congestion out on Grand avenue where the uptown cinema palaces are staging a battle for supremacy. See it by all means.

Slimming the Lambs.

GEORGE BANCROFT, as may be seen in "The Wolf of Wall Street" at the Midtown Theater, could handle J. P. Morgan and the other boys in Our Set with one hand tied behind his back, but women were something else again and in the game of love George never reached first base. While he was busy separating the suckers from their coin and being a bum one minute and a bear the next, as the fancy suited him, his wife was engaged in plastering the wool over the eyes as fast as he clipped it from the innocent lambs in the stock market. When George got, among his many tips, a quiet hint about her carryings on with one of his partners, he left the office flat long enough to toss them both out into the street and then went back to the game he knew something about. "The Wolf of Wall Street" is a talkie and Bancroft has a fine voice for the screen. His wife is played by Baclanova, the Russian actress, and to allow for her shortcomings in the English tongue it is explained that she is a Russian princess. The picture is good entertainment, but the Jolson record of 352 weeks in the same theater with "The Singing Fool" is in no immediate danger.

Sin and Youth.

WILLIAM FOX, who, incidentally, dropped into St. Louis again last night just to take another look at his new $30,000,000—or was it $50,000,000, these press agents are so careless with their zeros—amusement cathedral, has provided another beautiful film for the second week of his local house in "Four Sons," a picture which was pretty generally named, elsewhere, as one of the 10 best of last year. It is the story of an old German woman in the days before the great war who is happy with her four boys. One of them comes to America and later, when the war arrives, goes back to fight against his brothers in the old country. It is a finely told story of love and old age and romance and the war part of it is not over stressed. Margaret Mann, a 60-year-old actress, is splendid as the mother, and the four sons were selected because they fitted the roles and not because their names meant something in Hollywood.

Sin in the Sewers.

HOW the sewer rats and their girl friends live and love in Paris is the theme of "The Redeeming Sin," a talkie, at the Ambassador with Conrad Nagel lending an air of respectability to the characters by playing a young doctor who fell in love with Dolores Costello and got a knife in his back for his pains. It takes more than an eight-inch stab between the shoulders to kill off a movie hero, however, and so Conrad lives on to lead Dolores to the altar in the fade out. Dolores monkeys around the sewers a lot in the early reels and even does a little stealing on the aside but otherwise, as it is pretty plainly shown, she is a good gal and worthy of such an upright young man as Mr. Nagel.

Still More Conversation.

ANOTHER talkie within hearing this week is "Fancy Baggage," at the Missouri, in which Audrey Ferris saves her father from financial ruin and prison after a series of breathtaking adventures on a yacht with rum runners and other kindly souls taking part in the proceedings. The sound accompaniment to the film not only allows Audrey and George Fawcett to talk themselves hoarse but brings to a waiting public the queer noises yachts and rum ships and revenue cutters make when working at top speed. This far from the ocean the movie fans may not recognize them but Charley Skouras, just back from New York, says they are the real thing.

JACOB M. LASHLY DECIDES NOT TO RUN FOR MAYOR

His Strength Likely to Go to Tom K. Smith if Latter Will Seek Democratic Nomination.

Jacob M. Lashly, president of the St. Louis Bar Association, whose candidacy for the Democratic nomination for Mayor had been favored by a number of civic and political leaders, announced today that he would not enter the contest. He issued this statement:

"In the phrase made famous by a very distinguished and also a very 'retiring' man, I do not choose to run."

Lashly's political strength is expected to go to Tom K. Smith, an investment broker, if Smith will run. Smith, a son-in-law of former Mayor Rolla Wells, also is being importuned by a civic and political group, although they have not communicated directly with him as yet. While he has made no move to stop the talk in his behalf, neither has he undertaken serious consideration of running.

Lawrence McDaniel, former Circuit Attorney, probably will decide this week whether he will seek the Democratic nomination. Lashly's withdrawal may be a factor moving him to run. There had been intimations for more than a week that Lashly would not become a candidate, but he did not remove himself from the field until today.

Dr. John H. Simon Files.

Dr. John H. Simon, who announced his candidacy last Friday, filed with the Election Board today. The only other Democratic candidate who has filed is former Federal Judge Henry S. Priest. Sam Ben Payne also is a candidate but has not filed. P. J. Cavanaugh has talked of entering the contest. Filing time expires Feb. 25.

In a statement today, Dr. Simon said:

"I am filing on the Democratic ticket because I have always been a Democrat, although I have voted for and supported Republicans when my conscience told me to do so. No party is infallible. Municipal elections should be nonpartisan. A man's politics have nothing to do with the qualifications to conduct the multifarious business of a big city. To fill the position of Mayor a man should be healthy, active and energetic, with education enough to hold his own against all comers. He should know something about civic government, business, both big and little, and the art of directing men. He should be wise in the ways of the world, honest and fair to a high degree and have a ready sympathy for the masses. Above all he should have an open mind and keep it open during the four years for which he is elected so that he may view each incoming problem with clarity and then act upon his best judgment.

"During the primary I shall confine myself to a few statements explanatory of my platform. My only competitor so far for the nomination is a scholarly gentleman and I respect him very much. Should no one else file in this primary it will be the friendliest primary contest ever held in this city, which would be most desirable for the Democratic party. Should others enter I hope they will be of the same high type as Judge Priest. Meantime, I request that, since all my aids and lieutenants will be volunteers, my old friends and supporters will send me their addresses for the purpose of immediate organization. Later on I shall give a complete analysis of my platform, the measures I stand for and the things I hope to accomplish."

Twentieth Ward Precinct Organization for Kiel.

The Republican precinct organization of the Twentieth Ward meeting yesterday at 4220A St Louis avenue, voted, 37 to 7, with four absent, to support former Mayor Kiel for the mayoralty nomination. City employes were among the minority voting to back Mayor Miller. John J. Hurley, Republican committeeman from the ward, accordingly announced that he was for Kiel, as had been understood, although Miller adherents had sought his allegiance. Mrs. Celeste T. Blesse, the committeewoman, has been working in Kiel's behalf for some time.

Replies to letters indicated to him that the Twentieth Ward voters are five to one in favor of Kiel, Hurley said. He supported the late Louis P. Aloes for the nomination four years ago and Aloes carried the ward by 500.

"We have been disappointed in Miller's administration," said Hurley. "He made a lot of promises this year in an effort to gain my support and the backing of the ward organization. People in my ward were strongly impressed with the skill and diplomacy shown by Kiel when Mayor. We feel that Miller broke faith with the voters by permitting costs of the Courthouse and lighting system to go beyond the amounts named in the bond issue. Our voters want their Mayor to hew the line outlined by the voters. Voters in my ward also object to the rumors so prevalent over the city relating to favoritism shown certain contractors."

As in other wards, Kiel men will be put to work in precincts, whose representatives favored Miller. Former Mayor Kreismann, chairman of Kiel's committee, declared that nine times out of 10 Miller adherents in precinct organizations are city employes. However, a statement from Kiel's headquarters said his committee is "jubilant over the number of city employes publicly supporting Kiel."

A canvass in eight localities by women in behalf of Mrs. W. T. Nardin, chairman of the women's division of the Miller campaign, gave the following results. Mrs. Nardin announced 1122 voters said they were for Miller, 187 were for Kiel, 286 were doubtful, 336 were Democrats and 93 were not home. The canvassers were instructed not to say they were from Miller's headquarters but to seek unbiased answers. In the tenth precinct of the Twenty-seventh Ward, one of the districts included, 378 were for Miller, 42 for Kiel, 88 doubtful and 89 Democrats. Other sections in the canvass were the second and fifth precincts of the Ninth Ward, the thirteenth precinct of the Eleventh Ward and portions of Maffitt, Lambdin, St. Louis and Newstead avenues.

Miller to Speak Over Station KWK Tonight.

Mayor Miller will deliver an address over radio station KWK at 9:30 o'clock tonight. Health Commissioner Starkloff, who is supporting Miller, will speak over KMOX at 6:45 o'clock. The Mayor will visit a dance of the Ladies' Auxiliary of Street Railway Employes at the Fairground Hotel at 10:30 o'clock.

No meetings for former Mayor Kiel were announced today.

Edison Predicts Greater Prosperity Under Hoover

Inventor Answers Series of Questions on 82d Birthday—Says He Knows No One Who Is Happy.

By the Associated Press.

FORT MYERS, Fla., Feb. 11.—Thomas A. Edison, celebrating his eighty-second birthday here, thinks the administration of President-elect Herbert Hoover will result in greater prosperity to the nation. He gave an affirmative answer to this, the first question of the list submitted for his written answers in his annual birthday interview.

Other questions submitted to Edison, and his answers, were:

Q. What are the dangers, if any, of the increasing stock speculation? A. Ultimate panic. Loss of confidence.

Q. Have you ever given any thought to the chemical development of synthetic rubber? A. No. It has no future when rubber is quoted at 23 cents a pound.

Q. Will the manufacture ever be extended to the point where it will be used for pavement and road service? A. Yes. Short sections have been in use in Scotland for five years, with great success.

Future in Rubber for Florida.

Q. How will the success of your rubber experiments effect the future agricultural prosperity of Florida? A. I believe those states bordering on the Gulf of Mexico can grow plant rubber with profit to the farmer in case of par prices, but it might be possible in the future to grow rubber and compete with the tropics.

Q. Is it true that you have found a plant which promises to solve the rubber production problem in the United States, and do you hope to develop it this winter? A.I have found more than 1200 plants to produce rubber. About 40 of them will be cultivated on a large scale.

Q. In cities comparable in size and general conditions to Fort Myers (20,000) should the municipality own and operate its own public utilities or purchase the service from private companies? A. Municipalities should not own or conduct the public utilities, but should control their operation.

Q.—Is it advisable to appropriate an additional $24,000,000 at this time for prohibition enforcement? A.—Yes.

Favors Naval Parity.

Q.—Should the United States try to have the most powerful navy in the world? A.—It should build in parity with England.

Q.—Do you believe that intelligent reading and home study can take the place of the high tension college education? A.—If the boy has ambition he doesn't need to go to college.

Q.—How will the approaching machine age affect the moral and physical living conditions of the so-called working class of people? A.—Very favorably.

Q.—Do you think that radio has been improved to any marked extent during the last year, and what do you see for it in the next year? A.—Improvements are being continually made every year.

Q.—Will it ever be possible to eliminate static completely? A.—It is improbable.

Q.—Have recent developments in aviation changed your opinion of air travel ever becoming as popular as auto travel? A.—No. Opinion not changed.

Likes Boys Who Experiment.

Q.—What characteristic of a youth is most likely to make him as a prospective leader? A.—When a boy around 15 or 16 is found trying all kinds of experiments he shows ambition and the will to work. This boy is safe for a good career.

Q. What one thing is most important to incorporate into the curriculum of a man who you are training for leadership? A. Capacity for leadership is born in a man.

Q. Please give briefly your formula for a happy life. A. I am not acquainted with anyone who is happy.

Q. Are you planning to go fishing with Mr. Hoover while he is in Fort Myers? A. No.

Q. With the experience of yourself, Mr. Hoover and Mr. Ford in mind, do you believe golf, tennis and other forms of physical exercise advisable for the assurance of health, usefulness and longevity? A. No.

WASHINGTON U. PLANS FOR STADIUM DELAYED

Passage of Adverse Ordinance Will Prevent Completion of Building by Fall.

The passage of an ordinance in University City, forbidding the erection of a stadium to hold more than 10,000 persons, has prevented Washington University from building its proposed $750,000 football stadium in time for the games next autumn, Joseph Zumbalen, treasurer of the university corporation, said today.

The university officials had planned to have the first section of the stadium, which would cost $450,000 and would seat 30,000 persons, ready for use by the latter part of September.

When it was learned that University City planned legislation against it, conferences were held between university and city officials. Zumbalen has charged that the University City Board of Aldermen broke faith with the university by passing the ordinance while negotiations were on and while the university officials were unaware that the ordinance had been introduced.

Zumbalen also disclosed that at the time of the first conference, the city officials made it known that they were desirous of obtaining a right-of-way for a street along university property between Big Bend and Skinker boulevards. The street would tend to relieve traffic congestion on Delmar and Forsythe boulevards, at present the only two streets giving a direct east and west passage through University City.

The university officers, Zumbalen said, did not favor the plan for the proposed street, although they agreed to donate a strip of university property along Big Bend boulevard, so that University City could widen that thoroughfare.

"I don't know how far this ordinance is intended as an effort to force us to turn over the land for an east and west street," he continued, "but if University City thinks it can whittle away at all sides of our property in return for giving us permission to build a stadium, it is mistaken."

Zumbalen said the university trustees had not decided on a course of action against the ordinance. He indicated the university might attack the legality of it, and then said:

"However, University City has an election in April. Some of those Aldermen will be going out of office. They may be replaced by men who will repeal the ordinance."

As has been told, only a portion of the site for the proposed stadium is in University City. The rest is in Central Township. The site is at the corner of Big Bend boulevard and University drive. University City aldermen have explained that the stadium would draw large crowds and that the automobiles of the spectators would cause a great traffic problem.

DISABLED SHIP ADRIFT IN GALE; 34 ON BOARD

Rescue Vessels, Standing by, Unable to Aid Japanese Freighter.

By the Associated Press.

SEATTLE, Feb. 11.—Risking their lives to the storm, a hull destined to be scrapped reaches Japan, 34 officers and aboard the disabled Japanese freighter Alloway today was fighting through a 90-mile an hour gale while rescue craft lay helplessly.

The exact plight of the ship was unknown here this morning as the radio had brought no word since late yesterday. The steamer Bronnoy, which yesterday made an attempt to tow the Alloway, under the helpless vessel had become unmanageable, presumably was still standing by. The Matson liner and other rescue ship also were reported to have reached the disabled vessel.

The Alloway's signals were so weak they could barely be heard by the naval radio station at Sand Harbor. It was assumed, from the absence of messages, that there was little change in the condition of the ship.

The last information received here was that the Alloway was in no immediate danger, but that it was being driven before the powerful wind toward the rocky coast of Alaska Island.

BYRD CUTS ANCHOR LINES; HIS SHIP RIDES OUT STORM

lines cut. Some of the crew wanted to get out on the heaving cakes to save them, but he ordered them back.

"I would rather lose all the anchors than have one of them go overboard in that mess," he said. Cutting was the only way to get out quickly, and after a few anxious moments, when it seemed we might drift against some heavy ice on our lee, it was possible to turn the propeller over and work out into open water.

The wind picked up in the night and shifted to the north, so that the New York keeled well over under her few sails. The sea also rose and some of us who were by disposition and experience landlubbers were persuaded to become seasick immediately. It was not a pleasant position, for if the storm became severe we had nothing but bay ice and barrier behind us, with no possible shelter.

Huge Ice Cakes Drift By.

All night long the ship rolled through this ice. The man at the wheel stood braced against it, ice crusting his helmet, his beard. The lookout could barely see through the curtain of fog and snow ahead of him. Huge cakes of ice drifted in and passed close to us, and sometimes far off on either side could be heard a rumble like distant thunder as a piece of the barrier broke off and plunged into the sea.

Already men listened for these sounds, for they showed how far away lay that danger. A few times the threatening gray cliff frowned suddenly ahead and the ship went round with a rattle of stays, plunging in the short waves like a startled thing.

The wind lasted all day yesterday and last night, but this morning had died down to a gentle breeze. The visibility is no better, however, and there seems little possibility of an immediate change. These days are valuable and everyone chafes under the delay, but weather commands down here and we can merely wait until it permits us to work again. And so far it has been so favorable that we cannot complain if it wishes to assert its authority for a time.

Snow Drifts Into House.

Out at the base the men are also weatherbound. They had dug part of the excavation for the large house, but they found yesterday that the snow had drifted it full again and the shoveling must be put off till the storm ends. They sleep there in the smaller house and keep the doors open for air—the doors will be closed tightly for many months—and when they awoke yesterday morning it was to find a large snow drift inside.

Snow has drifted around the planes and the snowmobile which has been running busily about pulling loaded sleds, is hiding under a snow-covered tarpaulin. The little automobile with skis and caterpillar tread has been so successful that Commander Byrd wishes he had two of them. It has made 25 miles an hour over the smooth barrier surface.

When the wind shifts, it will probably be to the south and low out the drift ice which now obstructs our approach to the edge of the bay ice. And with the south wind will come dry clear weather instead of this mournful gray shroud which hangs over us now. And the worst of having two weather men with us is that they cannot see any change for many hours. Having deprived us of hope for the time being, we drift and smoke and at times exercise a vocabulary which is growing in variety with each passing day.

Youthful Pep Comes Back in Middle Age

Phospho-Cod brings back lost vigor and energy to hundreds

Why let old age come on before its time? There's no reason why middle-aged people can't be as active, energetic and full of pep as young folks.

A fine old prescription, known as Phospho-Cod, does the trick. Its success has been so astounding that Walgreen Drug Stores guarantee it absolutely. They make you this offer: If, in twelve days, Phospho-Cod doesn't double your vim and energy, they will refund what you pay for it.

Phospho-Cod brings you the pep-restoring, health-building peptones of cod livers, together with purifying extracts and hypophosphites which help throw off the poisons that weaken the system. And, it's a pleasure to take it, for it has a flavor like rare old wine.

Don't be satisfied another day without your full share of pep and energy. Get Phospho-Cod, and let it bring you back to that condition of body and mind which makes you equal to any task, however big. MARRIES DAUGHTER OF FRENCH PRETENDER

By the Associated Press.

PALERMO, Italy, Feb. 11.—Religious ceremonies for the marriage of Prince Christopher of Greece and Princess Francoise of France brought here today a great gathering of royalty.

The ceremony at the Palatine chapel, following a civil ceremony last night, unites the daughter of the French pretender to the Grecian Prince who in 1920 married Mrs. William B. Leeds of Cleveland, O. Mrs. Leeds, who by her marriage became Princess Anastasia of Greece, died in 1923.

Wedding guests included former King Manuel, former Queen Victoria and former Queen Mother Amelia of Portugal; Crown Prince Humbert of Italy, former King George and Queen Elizabeth-Victoria, and former Queen Sophie of Greece; Prince Knud of Denmark, Princess-Mother Helen of Rumania, the Duke and Duchess of Guise, parents of the bride, and the Duke of Aosta.

NEGRO GETS 8-YEAR TERM FOR PART IN $175 HOLDUP

Chauncey Pruitt's Sentence Longer Than That of Co-defendant Because of Record.

Chauncey Pruitt, 25 years old, a Negro, 4438 Enright avenue, was sentenced to eight years in the penitentiary by Judge Hartman on his plea of guilty today, to participation in the holdup of Herman Weiss, a poultry dealer, of 2703 Franklin avenue, on July 21, last.

Three Negroes entered the store and escaped with $175 after holding up Weiss and several customers.

Pruitt, who had a police record, received a more severe sentence than a co-defendant, Edgar Miller, who was sentenced to five years in prison on pleading guilty in the case on Jan. 19. A third suspect arrested was not identified.

Stewart's testimony before the Senate Public Lands Committee of which Senator Nye was chairman and Senator T. J. Walsh was a member of Feb. 2 and 3 and April 24, 1928, was given almost in full. It was this testimony which led to Stewart being cited for contempt and perjury. He was acquitted in both cases, in the perjury trial on the technicality that a physical quorum of the committee was not present when he testified.

In his testimony April 24, the letter says, Stewart admitted that he had received $759,500 of the Continental bonds, that he had turned them over to a subordinate official of the Standard of Indiana to hold in trust and that in April, 1928, he turned an amount in bonds equal to the Continental Trading Co. bonds over to the Indiana company. No coupons have been clipped since December, 1923, because Stewart explained he wished to "avoid publicity." He said he could not remember why. The letter points out that it was during the fall and winter of 1928 that the Teapot Dome investigation, which led finally to the expose of the Continental Trading Co. and its activities, was in full swing.

Appeals for Proxies.

It then recites that on April 27, 1928, Rockefeller asked Stewart to resign to make good the promise "that you would resign at my request."

"It should be understood," Aldrich wrote in closing, "that Mr. Rockefeller's request for Col. Stewart's resignation was not made on the basis of any right to speak for other stockholders. Mr. Rockefeller did not and does not control more than a small minority of the stock of the company. The request for the resignation was based upon a personal promise of Col. Stewart that if Mr. Rockefeller manifested a loss of confidence in his management he would resign. The only legal power to terminate Col. Stewart's connection with the company resides in the majority in interest of the stockholders. Many thousands in number have already sent their proxies to the committee which Mr. Rockefeller heads."

Habeas Corpus Writ Quoted.

Two appendices are attached to the letter, "A" and "B." The first is the quotation from the decision of the United States Supreme Court in the Mammoth Oil case, which was referred to in the first part of the letter, the second excerpts from the writ of habeas corpus sworn to by Stewart, Feb. 4, after he had been arrested in the Senate contempt proceedings.

The excerpt says in part:

"* * * that said petitioner (Stewart) was asked by the chairman of said committee the following question: 'Mr. Stewart, do you know of anyone who received these bonds that the Continental Trading Co. are reported to have dealt in?' and petitioner replied that he did not personally profit or make a dollar out of the transaction in question; that he had never given any bonds of any description to any representatives of any political party, to any public office of the United States or of any State or territory, or any municipality inside of it; that he had never had anything to do with the Continental Trading Co.'s distribution of any bonds, and knew nothing about it, and that he later declined to tell what he knew if anything, about the disposition of the bonds of the Continental Trading Co., further than that."

Quick relief for COLDS since 1889

She woke up without her cold

Norma is just an average girl who works in a poorly ventilated office, dashes out for an ill-chosen lunch, gets her feet soaked, doesn't get enough sleep, and then develops a cold. Well-meaning friends suggest all sorts of things. She takes this, does that, sniffs the other. But the cold hangs on stubbornly and gets worse.

Why? Because none of the suggested treatments get to the root of the trouble: her physical condition.

GROVE'S BROMO QUININE is good for a cold because it aims at things far deeper than surface symptoms. Mildly laxative, it cleans the digestive tract and rids the system of accumulated poisons. Then it tones and builds up the body's defenses. No wonder millions have proved that when you come down with a cold, GROVE'S BROMO QUININE will help you wake up without it.

At the first hint of trouble, take the tiny tablets as directed. Powerful and stimulating, they help you side-step the cold entirely, or throw it off quickly. A big help in fortifying the system against grip and flu... Make sure of the genuine, of which 22,000,000 boxes were sold last year, by emphasizing GROVE'S, when asking for GROVE'S BROMO QUININE. Price 30c.

He now has the loveliest skin I ever saw—no unsightly blotches mar the beauty of his complexion." (Signed) Vivian M. Eagle. BEWARE OF COLDS Now!

whether you've had FLU . . . or not

This is the time of year when serious cold troubles, such as deep chest colds, bronchitis, and pneumonia are always at their worst.

Also, many people are run down after flu, so just now it is more important than ever to treat every cold promptly before complications can set in.

Quick Direct Treatment

At the first sign of a cold, melt some Vicks in a bowl of hot water and inhale its healing vapors. Also place some up each nostril and snuff well back. This quickly opens the air passages.

At bedtime, rub Vicks vigorously over throat and chest and cover with a warm flannel. Most colds yield overnight to Vicks two-fold action.

Acts 2 Ways at Once

(1) Its medicated vapors, released by the warmth of the body, are inhaled direct to inflamed air passages, loosening the phlegm and easing the difficult breathing.

(2) At the same time, Vicks acts through the skin like a poultice, "drawing out" tightness and soreness, and thus helping the vapors to break up the congestion.

Mothers especially appreciate this simple external treatment because it cannot upset children's delicate stomachs, as too much dosing is so apt to do.

EXPLOSION WRECKS CHURCH AFTER CONGREGATION LEAVES

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

BROOKFIELD, Mo., Feb. 11.—Five minutes after 200 members of the congregation were dismissed yesterday a terrific explosion wrecked the United Brethren Church here, blowing out all doors and windows and shaking houses within a radius of a block. Fire followed and before it could be brought under control the building was practically destroyed. The damage was estimated at $25,000.

Examination of the furnace showed that it had been blown to bits. Belief was that the fire started here.

ATTACKS EXPLANATION OF COURTHOUSE COST

Supporter of Kiel Says Kinsey Would Be Fired for It in Private Employ.

The controversy over the excess cost of the new Courthouse and the lighting system over bond issue provisions, which is being treated as a major issue of the mayoralty campaign, is carried on by Philip N. Moore, civil engineer, in a prepared statement.

Moore is an active supporter of former Mayor Kiel, and Mrs. Moore, a national leader of clubwomen, is vice chairman of the Kiel Campaign Committee. His statement is a reply to the radio speech delivered Saturday night by E. R. Kinsey, president of the Board of Public Service, in support of Mayor Miller. Kinsey said the reason for making the Courthouse cost more than the allotted $4,000,000 was the need of providing quarters for 12 more courtrooms than the present number. There are now 11 civil divisions of the Circuit Court in the Broadway Courthouse, and two Domestic Relations divisions which will be transferred from the Municipal Courts to the new Courthouse.

Moore contends that Kinsey and other city officials had no authority to add to the amount named without reference to the people. In spending more than the allotment, he charges, Mayor Miller's administration has "broken faith with the voters." He said that if Kinsey had offered such an explanation to the directors of an industrial plant he would have been discharged.

"The $4,000,000 estimate for the Courthouse was not just a guess, as Mr. Kinsey so lightly terms it," Moore says. "It was a definite amount named by the voters, and it was enough. If conditions had made a decided change as regards prices, then the proper method was for the city administration to take the matter to the people—permit them by their vote to say whether they were willing to spend additional sums or not.

"The city officials were only authorized to spend so much on a Courthouse. The people voted authority to spend only so much money for a lighting system. Now we are told all the money we voted for a lighting system has been expended and only two-thirds completed. That is bad business. In private life the officer responsible would lose his job. The same should be true, or more so, in public life.

"I believe the amount named in the bond issue was sufficient. It would have been in capable, careful hands."

DEAN SCARLETT LOOKING OVER DIOCESE OF PENNSYLVANIA

He Will Not Announce Whether He Will Accept Coadjutor Bishopric Until He Returns.

Dean William Scarlett of Christ Church Cathedral, recently elected Bishop coadjutor of the Episcopal diocese of Pennsylvania, is expected to return the latter part of this week from Philadelphia, where he is now looking over the field of diocesan work. He said before leaving St. Louis that he would withhold announcement of his acceptance or declination until after his return here.

Bishop F. F. Johnson of the Diocese of Missouri, in an article published in the current Church News of the local diocese, says:

"Dean Scarlett is in the seventh year of his fruitful ministry in St. Louis. His life interprets the Master to the people.

"In public utterance he speaks the word which Jesus speaks to him as they tarry together in the Holy Mount. His election to be the Bishop coadjutor of Pennsylvania is a call to high honor and great responsibility. He knows the love that all sorts of people bear him here. He must realize that we feel secure under his guidance and that we rejoice in his leadership.

"We believe that he can partly guess how almost irreparable his loss would be to this whole community and to this whole section of the country if he should go away. We have no right to tell him what his decision must be. But we surely may whisper our hopes and longings in his ear as he stands at the parting of the ways, saying to the Master, 'Show thou me the way that I should walk in as I lift up my soul unto thee.'"

WESLEY M. M'MURRY, STATE SENATOR, DIES

Succumbs to Liver Disease at Home in Rutledge, Mo.—Was 59 Years Old.

By the Jefferson City Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

JEFFERSON CITY, Feb. 11.—The upper house of the Missouri General Assembly waived all business today and adjourned shortly after it convened, out of respect to State Senator Wesley M. McMurry of Rutledge, Scotland County, who died yesterday in St. Louis.

Attendance was slight, inasmuch as many of the Senators had gone to Rutledge to attend the funeral of the veteran Democratic legislator. The Senate convened merely to meet the constitutional requirement that neither house shall be in adjournment more than three days.

Senator McMurry died at Barnes Hospital of a disease of the liver. He was 59 years old and had served at intervals in the State Legislature since 1907. He became seriously ill on the third day of the present session and was brought to St. Louis from Jefferson City, Feb. 1, accompanied by his wife, who remained here with him.

Born at Colony, Knox County, Sept. 25, 1870, Senator McMurry was educated in the public schools and the University of Missouri. As a young man he moved to Rutledge in Scotland County, from which district he served three terms in the House of Representatives.

In 1922 he was elected to the Senate for the Twelfth District and was re-elected in 1926. He was chairman of the Committee on Agriculture and a member of the Ways and Means Committee.

To fill the vacancy caused by his death, Gov. Caulfield will call a special election in the Twelfth District.

All drug stores are supplied with the wonderful elixir, so all you have to do is to step into the nearest drug store, hand the clerk 60c for a bottle of Aspironal and tell him to serve you two teaspoonsful. With your watch in your hand, take the drink at one swallow and call for your money back, in two minutes if you cannot feel the distressing symptoms of your cold fading away like a dream, within the time limit. Don't be bashful, for all druggists invite you and expect you to try it. Everybody's doing it.

ARMS EMBARGO FOR VIOLATION OF KELLOGG TREATY

Senator Capper to Introduce Measure Giving President Right to Stop Munition Shipments.

DECLARES PUBLIC DEMANDS THIS STEP

Other Nations Likely to Be Asked to Adopt Similar Plan to Make Pact Effective.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 11.—Senator Capper of Kansas has prepared for introduction today a resolution which would have the United States institute an armament embargo against any country violating the Kellogg peace pact recently ratified by the Senate.

The President would judge when the pact has been violated and would put the embargo into effect. A move to extend the scope of the resolution was seen in the provision which requests the chief executive to negotiate with other signers of the pact, with a view to having them adopt a similar policy.

Capper declared in a statement that he had prepared the resolution because of an insistent public demand and he asserted that when it becomes known that a nation, violating the pact, would not be able to buy munitions or supplies from the United States war could probably be averted.

"It should be impressed that war will not be a means of carrying on a profitable trade with the belligerent nations," Senator Capper said, "a profitable trade that in the end will cost the lives of our own youth and saddle another tremendous war debt upon the people of the earth.

"Rather it should be impressed upon the consciousness of every citizen that the effect of the pact will be to diminish or cut off that trade, so that it will no longer be in the interest of armament makers or the private traffickers in blood money to connive with a Government which in defiance of its obligations lets loose upon the world the pestilence of war."

Capper, a member of the Foreign Relations Committee, said he did not expect a vote on his resolution at this session, but that he thought it would stimulate public discussion "which would manifest itself in favor of the proposal."

TWO ARMY SERGEANTS HELD FOR SELLING POISON LIQUOR

Arrested at Baltimore Following Death of Soldier at Fort Leonard Wood.

By the Associated Press.

BALTIMORE, Feb. 11.—Two Sergeants of the United States Army stationed at Fort Leonard Wood, Md., are held by Baltimore police at the request of officers of the fort, in connection with the death of one soldier and the critical illness of another, said to have been caused by poison liquor sold to them by the accused men.

The Sergeants, Joseph Kent and William R. Manning, were arrested at the home of the latter's wife here. The dead man was Private Samuel L. Forsey, who failed to recover after being admitted to the hospital at the fort Friday morning. Several other soldiers were given treatment for illness said to have been caused by the liquor.

Kent and Manning will be charged with involuntary manslaughter and bootlegging, police here said they were informed by Government officers.

By the Associated Press.

MANAGUA, Nicaragua, Feb. 11.—A Marine detachment has been sent to Telpaneca, Neuva Segovia, where outlaws killed four Nicaraguans Saturday.

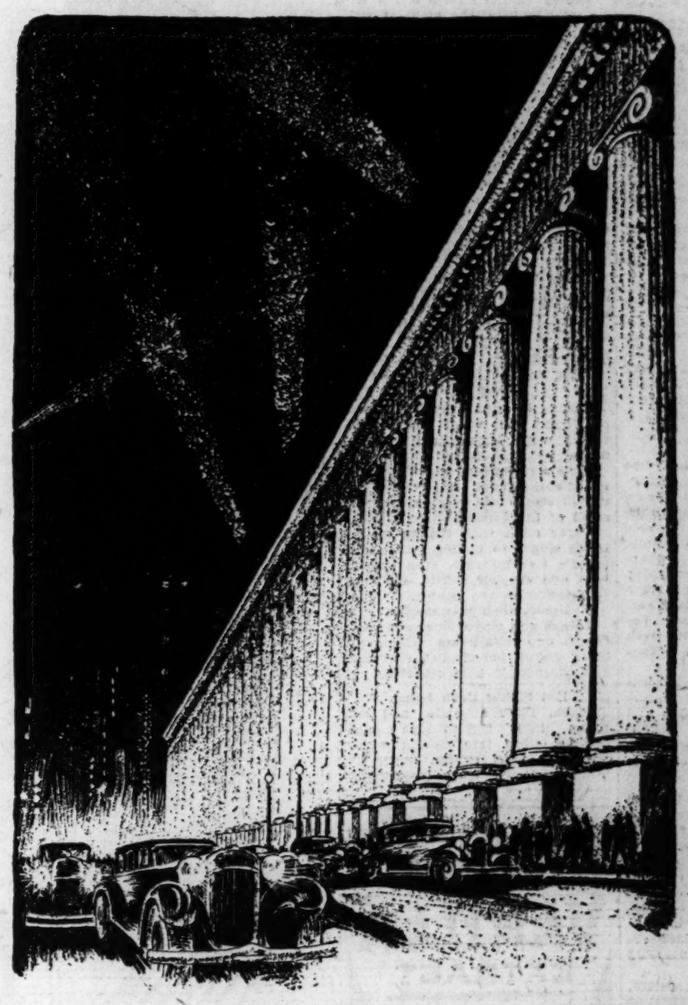

Marine headquarters' information is that desertions have greatly reduced the forces of Augustino Sandino. It is said, however, that many desertions are temporary, the soldiers leaving for a while and then returning.

Admiral David Foote Sellers, who has been in charge of naval operations here, has gone aboard the cruiser Rochester and will leave for Panama tomorrow.

Bowers to Speak at Springfield, Ill.

By the Associated Press.

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., Feb. 11.—Claude G. Bowers, keynoter at the Democratic national convention, will be the chief speaker at the annual Lincoln's birthday session of the Lincoln Centennial Association tomorrow. Miss Helen Nicolay, historian, daughter of Lincoln's private secretary, John G. Nicolay, will speak at the banquet Tuesday evening.

Monuments to "Mercantile Service"

The Mercantile Trust Company is as much a part of St. Louis business as its stone columns are a part of the vista of Locust Street.

From its modest start in a corner store to the present pinnacle of service in a block-long building, it has been a bank dedicated to the progress of the city it has served. In St. Louis there are many monuments to "Mercantile Service."

Here the president of the great corporation and his lowliest employee have found the financial service they required. If in service the bank has grown to great dimensions, that is well, because its capacity makes it better able to serve business, and its strength makes it better able to protect the worker.

On past achievement, but only on the past insofar as it proves present ability and forecasts future performance, the Mercantile Trust Company offers its complete financial service to St. Louis, and to St. Louisans.

SALAD COMBINATIONS FOR COMPANY MEALS

This Most Useful of All Dishes Is Capable of Tempting Variety.

The hostess finds salads one of the most useful types of foods to use in supplying appetizing and attractive meals.

They can usually be prepared ahead of time; their cool crispness is especially welcome in hot weather and they have the added attraction of being wholesome and generally readily digested.

There are a great many salad combinations, and I am going to give just a few suggestions today. Others will undoubtedly occur to the ingenious hostess.

The main thing to remember in putting combinations together is that some hard or crisp fruit or vegetable should be used in combination with soft ones. All hard vegetables or fruits or all soft ones do not make as appetizing salads as when a variety of textures is used.

Fruit Salads.

(1) A slice of pineapple, two slices of orange, six ripe strawberries and a ball of cream cheese mixed with chopped pecan nuts. Serve on watercress or romaine with a cream mayonnaise dressing.

(2) A whole banana cut in quarters and dipped in mayonnaise. Arrange around a pile of fresh slightly sugared berries. Place sections of grapefruit between the pieces of banana, garnish with fresh mint leaves and serve on lettuce with mayonnaise.

(3) Fill small molds two-thirds full with a mixture of strawberries, cut in half, diced apple and raisins. Fill with lemon gelatin mixture. Chill, turn out on lettuce and serve with mayonnaise.

Vegetable Salads.

(1) Asparagus, chopped hard boiled egg, strips of pimento or pickled beets, served on romaine or lettuce with mayonnaise.

2. Tomatoes stuffed with diced pineapple, celery and cream cheese with a garnish of pecans or walnuts, watercress and mayonnaise.

3. An alligator pear cut in half, peeled and sliced, and sliced orange, served with French dressing on watercress.

4. Chopped chicken, celery, fresh peas and pimento moistened with mayonnaise and served on lettuce with a garnish of split salted almons.

Meat and Fish Salads.

1. Cold diced lamb, fresh peas, celery, finely chopped mint, marinated in French dressing and served with lettuce and mayonnaise.

2. Diced cold chicken, mixed with pineapples and chopped almonds, served on lettuce with mayonnaise and a garnish of thin slices of tomato.

3. Boiled fresh shrimp thoroughly chilled, mixed with celery, fresh pear and pimento served on romaine with mayonnaise.

Keep in mind the fact that even the most ordinary salads can be varied by changing the type of dressings served with them. For instance, French dressing may be varied by using a number of different flavorings. The mixture of oil and vinegar is always the same, but the seasoning may be chile sauce, Worcestershire sauce, minced onion, chopped hard boiled egg, or chives, alone or several in combination.

Mayonnaise, too, may be varied by adding fruit juices, whipped cream, plain cream or any of a great number of sauces and chopped vegetables.

JELLIED RHUBARB TARTS ARE TOOTHSOME DAINTIES

They Also Make a Welcome Change From Popular Rhubarb Pie.

Jellied fruits are simply made by adding the fresh fruit to either a prepared gelatin mixture or to the plain gelatin flavor with lemon and orange juice.

Jellied rhubarb tarts are a little change from the plain variety and consist of thickening stewed or baked rhubarb with gelatin, allowing two teaspoons of gelatin to each two cups of rhubarb.

Soak the gelatin in two tablespoons of cold water for five minutes. Then stir it into the hot rhubarb together with one-half teaspoon of grated orange rind and two tablespoons of orange juice.

Cool the gelatin until it begins to thicken. This is very quickly done by stiring it in a pan of ice or cold water. Then pour it into the baked tart shells and set aside to chill. Serve with a spoon of whipped cream on top.

HORSERADISH MAYONNAISE AND BOILED CORNED BEEF

This Intriguing Dressing Brings Out the Best Points of the Pickle' Beef.

Brisket of corned beef makes a nice main dish when boiled and served with horseradish mayonnaise.

Take a five-pound piece of thick rib of corned beef. A piece off the shoulder or rump may be used instead of the brisket.

Cover meat with boiling water. Bring slowly to boiling point; boil rapidly five minutes, then reduce heat and simmer gently, allowing 35 minutes to the pound.

Horseradish Mayonnaise.

To one cup mayonnaise add one-fourth cup relish, one tablespoon thick grated horseradish root and mix thoroughly before serving.

Hot String Bean Salad.

Wash, remove ends and cut beans into three-fourth inch lengths. Drop into boiling water and cook until tender, about 20 minutes. Drain, add mayonnaise and serve hot.

CRANBERRY JELLY OR SAUCE

This Recipe Gives Directions for Making Both Dishes.

Cook one quart cranberries with one cup water; when soft divide in two equal portions.

To make jelly: Bring one portion to boil; remove from fire, add one cup sugar; strain and pour into mold.

To make sauce: Bring other portion to boil; remove from fire, add one cup sugar and without straining, set aside to cool.

HOW TO USE RECIPES

Their General Directions Are Applicable to All Recipes.

1. All measurements are leveled by moving the knife forward at right angles to the spoon or cup.
2. Do not pack the cup by shaking the flour or sugar down.
3. Always sift flour before measuring.
4. Use a standard measuring cup and not your favorite "coffee" or "tea" cup.

VALENTINE PARTIES ARE IN ORDER

Appropriate Decorations and Menus Are Easily Planned and Prepared.

The February hostess has an easy time planning types of entertaining. February is a short month, but it has two patriotic holidays and Valentine's day to its credit.

A good menu for a Valentine day luncheon is: Tomato bouillon served with whipped slightly salted cream and garnished with small hearts cut from canned pimentoes, sweetbread or chicken patties with peas and hot rolls; valentine salad; strawberry ice cream or frozen strawberry pudding; small cakes; salted nuts and bon bons.

The pattie shells may be baked heart shaped if desired. The rolls should be very small and of some soft variety.

The valentine salad is a jellied mixture made by adding enough cranberry juice to a lemon jelly to color it a good deep red. When the gelatine is beginning to congeal, finely cut crisp celery, shredded blanched almonds and small pieces of pineapple are added to it and the mixture is poured into individual heart-shaped molds. These are served on white lettuce leaves with a well-flavored cream mayonnaise. Curled celery may be used for a garnish.

The small cakes may carry out the heart idea, or they may be small round cakes iced in pastel colors and garnished with those little candy hearts that have various touching sentiments written on them.

It is not difficult to get favors and place cards for any of the holidays in this month. Most of the shops carry a good assortment and it is simply a matter of choosing according to your purse and preference.

Afternoon teas or card parties are in many places more popular than luncheons.

In this case refreshments might appropriately consist of an assortment of dainty sandwiches—very thin slices of brown bread spread with pimento cheese and rolled up; tiny rounds of white bread spread with cream cheese mixed with chopped maraschino cherries; triangular sandwiches filled with shrimp paste and garnished with thin slices of stuffed olives.

Small cakes and a frozen dessert, together with a hot and cold beverage will fill out the menu and prove both satisfying and delicious.

Valentine Souffle.

Take three-fourths cup canned strawberry juice, one-half cup canned pineapple cubes, one cup cream or evaporated milk, one-half cup sugar, white of one egg, few grains of salt, one-fourth cup cold water, one level tablespoon gelatine and one-half cup fresh strawberries and one-half cup chopped nut meats.

Soak gelatine in cold water five minutes and dissolve in boiling strawberry juice. Add sugar, salt and the pineapple and strawberries (which have been well drained). When jelly begins to stiffen, beat and fold in whipped cream and lastly the stiffly beaten egg white. Pile in glasses and sprinkle with nut meats. Serve very cold.

Valentine Cakes.

One and one-half cups sugar, two-thirds cup shortening, three eggs, separated, one cup milk, three cups flour, three teaspoons baking powder, one-half teaspoon salt, one teaspoon vanilla.

Method: Cream shortening and sugar together very well. Add egg yolks, well beaten. Mix and sift the dry ingredients together and add alternately with the milk. Add flavoring. Beat well until light. Fold in egg whites beaten until stiff. Preheat the oven for 10 minutes at 350 degrees, then put cake in oven and bake in a large flat greased pan 30 minutes at 350 degrees. Cut in heart-shaped pieces, or in squares and cover with Bleeding Heart Icing.

One box confectioners' sugar, three tablespoons butter, half teaspoon salt, one teaspoon vanilla. Hot milk or boiling water, red coloring.

Method: Mix butter and salt together. Add enough hot milk so as to spread easily on cake. Decorate cake with maraschino cherries.

SCALLOPED POTATO AND HAM

With a String Bean Salad You Have a Nourishing Meal.

Six potatoes, pepper, one pound ham, two cups milk, parsley.

Pare potatoes and slice thin. Cut ham in pieces suitable for serving. Lay in the bottom of a casserole, season with pepper and put the sliced potato on top. Add the milk and bake slowly until the potatoes are tender.

To Make Radish Flowers.

If radishes are cut to resemble flowers and dropped into cold water to which has been added one teaspoon of lemon juice or vinegar, the leaves of the radish will expand.

To Keep Cider Sweet.

A very efficacious way of keeping cider sweet for a short period of time is to pour it into quart jars, cover and store in the icebox; there the low temperature slows up fermentation.

PENSACOLA, Fla., Feb. 11.—Horton Smith, 21-year-old Joplin (Mo.) professional, today was in at least temporary command of the golfing army touring the South by virtue of his victory yesterday in the Greater Pensacola open tournament.

Smith clicked off a 274, 10 strokes under par for the 72 holes and five strokes better than the score of "Wild Bill" Mehlhorn, next in line. In third place came Gene Sarazen, New York, with 282, and Henry Cotton, British pro, was fourth with 283. Bobby Cruickshank, Al Espinosa and Tommy Armour were in the next section with 284's.

Only three others scored in the 280 class. They are Densmore Shute, Columbus, O., 285; Ed Dudley, 287; William Burke, New York, 288.

Smith's record for the four 18-hole rounds was 68-68-70-68, while Mehlhorn, who was tied with the young Missourian at the fifty-fourth hole, slipped on the final 18, requiring a 73 to add to his record of 66-72-68 for the first three rounds. Par for the tournament course is 71.

BAN JOHNSON'S OWN STORY,

Substantially as told by him in interviews extending over a period of a year, reported stenographically in many instances, and compiled in the present form

By John E. Wray and J. Roy Stockton

DAYS OF THE BIG RAIDS

(Copyright, 1929, by the Pulitzer Pub. Co., the St. Louis Post-Dispatch.)

PERHAPS the most exciting days in the history of baseball, at the least the most sensational for the newspapers and the public, were the days when the American League, in the lists to establish itself as a major body, along with the National, was forced to raid the National League clubs for players, in reprisal for hostile acts by the older organization.

We were willing and eager to enter the field peacefully, but only in Chicago did we enter without war.

When we dropped St. Paul and put a franchise in Chicago, we entered into an agreement with the Chicago National League club. The Nationals were to have the right to select from the Chicago Americans each year two players, for whom they were to pay a stipulated sum, I believe it was to be $1000 each. It was agreed that our park could not be north of Thirty-fifth street and our original grounds were at Thirty-ninth. Later we moved to the site of the present White Sox park.

After operating one year with a club in Chicago, with a circuit comprising Minneapolis, Kansas City, Chicago and Milwaukee in the West and Buffalo, Cleveland, Detroit and Indianapolis in the East, we decided on further expansion and sought to negotiate with the National League. We announced our desire to put clubs in Washington and Baltimore. We also needed Philadelphia to fill out the circuit in the East. We offered to buy surplus players and to work peacefully with the National League for the best interests of all concerned.

The National League owners met and considered our proposition. They had been told that I was waiting in my hotel for an answer. Their only message was an informal and indirect one, to the effect that I could stay in my hotel "till hell froze over," as far as they were concerned, and that they never would negotiate with us.

That meant we had to fight and fight we did. Our only course was to get the best players we could.

The story of all our raids would fill volumes. For the purpose of this narrative I will describe our operations in two cities.

McAleer Invades St. Louis.

I HAD told Frank de Haas Robison, owner of the St. Louis National League club that unless the two factions in his league, the Freedman crowd and the Spalding group, made peace, I was going to put a club in St. Louis and that if he so desired, we would be glad to enter the Mound City peacefully, pledging not to take any of his players. When the fight continued between the two factions I told Robison that we had decided to enter St. Louis, but he declined to enter into any agreement.

Jim McAleer had come to the end of his string in Cleveland and was out of a job as far as baseball was concerned. I reached him by wire and asked him to visit me at Chicago.

McAleer told me that he was through with baseball and that he was going to return to his home at Youngstown, O., and enter the haberdashery business.

"Jim, how would you like to make $500 before you quit baseball?" I asked him.

McAleer replied that he certainly could use $500 and would be glad to get the chance.

I then gave him a list of players on the St. Louis Nationals and told him his job was to sign these players for the club that we planned to put in St. Louis.

I had interested Robert Lee Hedges of Cincinnati in the St. Louis franchise and he bought it for $35,000 and built stands on the site where Sportsman's Park now stands.

It didn't take McAleer long to get the players we wanted as a nucleus for Hedges' team.

Patsy Donovan was managing the St. Louis Cardinals. He had done fairly well in 1901 and had great hopes for 1902. Then one morning he picked up a paper and found that the Browns had signed Outfielders Emmett Heidrick and Jess Burkett, Shortstop Bobby Wallace, Second Baseman Dick Padden, Pitchers Harry Harper, Willie Sudhoff and Jack Powell and Catcher Joe Sugden.

It must have been a terrible blow to Donovan and the Cardinals. Imagine how the Cardinals of today would feel if they suddenly lost Jess Haines, Grover Alexander and Bill Sherdel, with Frankie Frisch and their star shortstop, Catcher Jimmy Wilson and their two crack outfielders, Hafey and Douthit.

McAleer returned to Chicago and showed me the signed contracts of the players. I had warned him when he started on the raiding expedition that he was not to sign Heidrick, as he was under contract to the Cardinals and we did not want to have any litigation.

"Well, the other players refused to sign unless I took Heidrick, too," McAleer replied. "I didn't want to fall down on the whole job and so I signed Heidrick and am now passing the buck to you as to what you want to do about it."

There was only one thing to do and we kept Heidrick and fought the case in court and won it, gaining right to the outfielder's services.

McAleer received his $500 for signing the ball players and as an additional reward for his good work he was made manager of the Browns.

The Raid on Pittsburg.

DURING the early days of the war with the National League we had refrained carefully from raids on the Pittsburg team. Barney Dreyfuss had a fine team and we could have used his players and several of them had let it be known that they would like a Dreyfuss in the American League but we had other plans. We wanted Pittsburg and Barney Dreyfuss in the American League and thought that we had a chance to get him to change. As a matter of fact, he was all ready to make the shift, which would have been a great move for us, but at the last minute his league president talked him out of the idea and he announced that he was going to stick in that circuit.

In midseason John McGraw of the Baltimore club of our league had been induced by Freedman and John T. Brush to jump to the National League, along with seven or eight players. We were left with a franchise and a park and we quickly obtained players from other clubs and played out the season.

At the end of that year we decided to invade New York, as a good strategic move and in reprisal for the raids on our Baltimore club.

Jack O'Connor, catcher for Barney Dreyfuss' Pittsburg team, had been on friendly terms with us for some time and had kept us posted on the desires of the players to switch to our league.

When we decided to enter New York and to raid the Pittsburg team for players to form the New York club, I wired O'Connor that we were prepared to raid the Pittsburg team and for him to make arrangements and let me know how the land lay. I was going to Atlantic City with Charley Somers of the Boston club and Mrs. Somers, and the train took us through Pittsburg.

In the train sheds O'Connor found us and as he passed us he spoke out of the corner of his mouth, pretending not to see us.

"They are wise to us," he said. "Get in a cab at once and go to the Lincoln Hotel."

My telegram had gone astray. It had fallen into the hands of the Pittsburg club officials or an operator had tipped off Dreyfus that the American League was prepared to strike.

We met O'Connor at the Lincoln Hotel and he urged us to take immediate action if we wanted to sign any of the Pittsburg players. The Pittsburg club, forewarned by the telegram, was trying to forestall our raid, he informed us, by getting the signatures of the players on iron-clad contracts.

Couldn't Dodge Pulliam.

WE REALIZED that it was time to act and before the next day dawned we had scoured Pittsburg for the stars we wanted and had signed Leach, Conroy, Chesbro, Tannehill, Davis and several other players, seven or eight in all.

I postponed my trip to Atlantic City and decided to go to Cleveland. There still remained the task of giving the players signed their advance money to bind the contracts and not wanting to let the enemy know that I was in Pittsburg I took elaborate steps to get out of town without anyone seeing me. I left the hotel by the freight elevator and went to the train by a circuitous path. I climbed aboard the train and was congratulating myself on having outwitted the opposition when out there hiding behind the corner of the coach I saw Harry Pulliam of the National League. I certainly had gone to a lot of trouble to run right into the eyes of the enemy.

However, Robert McRoy, my private secretary, went to Pittsburg with the advance checks for the players and we had accomplished a most successful raid on the Pittsburg Pirates and had obtained a nucleus for our new club in New York.

Tomorrow—Peace and the National Commission.

BILLIKEN BOARD TO DISCUSS PLAN FOR NEW FIELD

By Gerald Holland.

A return game with Grinnell's basketball team here Saturday night is the only contest scheduled this week for the St. Louis University Billikens. St. Louis won from Grinnell during an early season road campaign, 33 to 22.

Grinnell is the first of the final three opponents on the Billiken schedule. Return games with Washington and Concordia will follow and unless the Billikens play below form, there is no reason to expect further defeats. St. Louis has now 11 games and lost four and owns decisive victories over all of its remaining opponents.

May Erect Stadium.

The meeting of the St. Louis University Athletic Board which will be held this evening will consider tentative plans for the construction of a stadium on property owned by the institution in the vicinity of its high school on Oakland avenue.

It is also likely that the board will decide whether the boxing team is to engage in inter-collegiate competition or not. The coaching staff is very favorable to the latter proposal and Chuck Beyers, coach of the squad, believes he has enough talent to make a good showing. St. Louis will have no baseball team this year and a boxing schedule would round out the remaining months very nicely.

A problem requiring immediate attention—that of providing a practice field for spring football training—will also be disposed of in tonight's conference. It is likely that the board will approve the rental of the property in the neighborhood of the gymnasium for that purpose. Heartly Anderson will start to work with his squad early next month.

There is talk about the gymnasium of an extended Eastern tour for the St. Louis U. basketball team next season. Those in authority favor the plan and are confident that if such a trip is arranged, the team will give a good account of itself. All of the regulars on the present varsity have at least one more year in school and the squad will be strengthened by promising freshmen players, including Charley McPartland from Passaic, N. J., and Francis Kennedy, a star of the St. Louis U. High team of 1927.

WILLIAM MULDOON Real Iron Man

Life Story of the 83-year-old Athlete

He Has Been Target of Much Criticism as Head of Boxing Commission, but Wisdom of His Decisions Keeps Him in Job.

By Ed Van Every
Of the New York Evening World Sport Staff.

CHAPTER XLIV.

MULDOON became an octogenarian. But he was 80 years young and did not look, nor feel, nor act his years. He was still able to wear down most any man of half his year or less in the gym, or ride and walk for tireless stretches. There was wisdom in his words that spoke of a long and keen experience with life. And his speech on the occasion of this birthday and excerpts therefrom were quoted throughout the land.

William Muldoon was 80 years young. Physically because he had discovered how to live, and because he lived the things he had discovered. Mentally because he was always a part of the times in which he lived.

"One must progress with progress," he argued. "We must live today since yesterday is dead and cannot be lived over again. If you try to live yesterday, then today must leave you behind."

Better Fighters Today.

HE even argued that the athletes and particularly the pugilists of the present day, were superior to those of the past. This was a revolutionary statement to which the sports authorities in many cases took strong exception. How about Fitzsimmons, Ketchell, Gans, Dixon? They wanted to know.

Of course, Muldoon's contention as to the superiority of the modern boxers did not necessarily apply to individual cases, but referred to the game as a whole. In the old days, he pointed out, where contests were over the 20 and 25 round route, the contestants were wont to waste quite a number of the opening rounds in "feeling each other out." This made for dreary stretches of inactivity such as would never be tolerated by present-day boxing fans.

With the close of the year 1923 Muldoon's first term of office as an appointee of the State Athletic Commission expired. And it looked then as though the hour had come for his retirement to the seclusion of his health institute at Purchase. He had gone into office under the Republican administration and the Democratic body was again in power with the election of Alfred E. Smith for a second term.

Opposed as Boxing Head.

AS chairman of the Boxing Commission his office had been made a most unpleasant one for him. A new License Committee was appointed and other efforts were made to curb Muldoon's powers. It was intimated that Muldoon usurped the powers of his office. That some of his rulings were liable to involve the commission into legal entanglements which would give the board only a broken-legged argument in defense. George E. Brower, a Brooklyn attorney of note, was made a member of the commission. Brower, as did James A. Farley, who became one of the trio of commissioners somewhat later, became through their close association with William Muldoon his very warm admirer, and as they came to appreciate the wisdom and thorough honesty of his motives they backed him up in practically every one of his moves. [illegible] was some months later.

And then, with the [illegible] doon's hands, things certainly [illegible]pened for a time. A [illegible] club sprang into existence in [illegible]sition to Tex Rickard. Both [illegible] ball parks were taken over for [illegible] summer. Yankee Stadium and Polo Grounds, out of the [illegible] Rickard, so that he was forced to hold his one big match of the [illegible] which was between Luis [illegible] Firpo and Harry Wills, over in [Jer]sey City. And somehow, in [illegible] all conniving, it proved the [illegible] financial match of the year.

Muldoon Reappointed.

BUT Gov. Smith, though [illegible] to keep a hands-off [illegible] through lack of interest in [illegible]ing, apparently soon had a [illegible] grasp of the situation. In an [Al]bany dispatch to The World [illegible] 30, 1924, came this significant item:

"Gov. Smith has reappointed William Muldoon a member of the State Athletic Commission, in [illegible] of demands that he select a [illegible] commissioner. In naming Muldoon to succeed himself, the Governor washed his hands of the [illegible] problems, but took this [illegible] serving notice on those who [illegible] been demanding the head of the founder of the famous health institute on the ground that he had exercised the powers of a czar in the regulation of the commercialized art of self-defense.

"The truth, how it will come [illegible] in the end from each labyrinth of deception and lies." This was the only comment that Muldoon would make. It was plenty.

Time slipped by and birthday followed birthday until he jokingly said to his friends that he was getting too old to have any more birthdays. But, because it happened that the new champion, Gene Tunney, was born on the same day of the month as William Muldoon, Bernard Gimbel insisted there must be a dinner party on May 25, 1927, to celebrate his eighty-second birthday. Muldoon insisted that it must be only a small party. There were but [illegible] guests beside Muldoon and Tunney. Among those present were Father Francis P. Duffy, George E. Brower, James A. Farley, Ogden Reid, John Golden, Augustus Thomas, Carl H. Pforzheimer, Ralph Pulitzer, Arthur Brisbane, George L. Rickard, Herbert Bayard Swope, John McEntee Bowman, Henry W. Putnam, Thomas Clossey, Carl G. Fisher and others of prominence.

There was no party on the occasion of William Muldoon's eighty-third birthday.

Next Sunday the Madison and the Tabler teams of the St. Louis Soccer League will meet two Chicago clubs in national cup games. In their league games at Sportsman's Park yesterday, both these cup contenders played below the standard that is expected of clubs which advance to the third round of the national title competition. The Tablers were held to a tie by the Wellstons, 5 to 5, and the Madisons were beaten by the Ben Millers, 3 to 1.

In the short time that remains before the cup games, there is no opportunity to rearrange lineups. Both managers, John Marre and Jim Burke, probably will stand pat on the players who were used yesterday and try by some other means to strengthen their clubs.

Diaz Makes Good Start.

Billy Foley's search for a center halfback who can pass the ball seems to be ended. Joe Diaz, who played center forward for La Sociedad Espanola, in the Carondelet division of the Municipal League, make a very favorable impression. He was especialy prominent when an opportunity arose for he ing his forwards. He was flanked by Croak and Syrnes, both of whom played well in blocking the passing movements of the Madisons.

Aside from Diaz, Larry Kickham and John Hamm were outstanding figures for the Millers. Hamm set a unique record when he scored two penalty kicks. He has been called upon three times to kick penalty shots and he has made good each time. Curran scored the other Miller goal with a hard drive from close quarters.

There was a striking absence of combination play in the center of the Madison attack. Eddie Burke was not so accurate as usual and Emmett McDonnell couldn't untangle his feet until the game was over. Hanson surpassed his usual high standard, but at least a half dozen of his beautifully placed crosses were wasted in the first half. The Madisons as a whole were never really bad, but the fullbacks crowded them so persistently that there was only one possible result. A goaltender's task was a hopeless one because of the icy footing. Had the Madison forwards given Hamm as many difficult tries as LaBarge faced, the score might have been different.

Unable to Hold Lead.

While the success of the Millers over the Madisons was a surprise, the failure of the Tablers to win from the Wellstons was a shock. Had John Marre's team won they would have gained a tie for the league leadership.

Although the Tablers obtained a 2-0 lead in the first five minutes of play, the score at half time was 3-3 and at the conclusion of the game 5-5. Tate Brady appears to have improved his defense by replacing Mercurio with Mickey O'Hara, late of the Millers, and in the second half a switch of forwards which brought Aarens to center and put Rudge at inside right seemed to get better results. Marvin Hart came through with a bang-up game for a change, giving Eddie Lee a bad afternoon. Hart's crosses late in the game enabled the Wellstons to get many a shot at the goal.

But, whether the Wellstons were greatly improved or not, the Tablers should never have permitted them to score five goals. There is still apparent in the Tabler defense a lack of understanding between fullbacks and halfbacks. The result it uncovered forwards. Too often yesterday Jack O'Reilly and Marvin Hart were standing unguarded, in perfect position for passes from center and from the halfbacks. The crosses which resulted were extremely damaging to the Tabler cause.

Bill's Back!

BILL TILDEN has been reinstated,
Once more he can wallop the pill;
The action though somewhat belated,

The present day baseball star who craves a little more jazz in his pay envelope resents being classed as a hold-out. Simply because a guy has his hand out it doesn't follow that he is a hold-out.

Since the palmy days of Eddie Roush and Milton Stock there has been no hold-out worthy of the name. What is the old pastime coming to?

MATSUYAMA AND COCHRAN MEET IN 18.2 MATCH

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Feb. 11.—Kinrey Matsuyama, the "mighty atom" of billiards, reaches a crisis in his gallant bid for the world's 18.2 balkline crown tonight. He faces Welker Cochran of Hollywood, a former champion, in the twelfth match of the round-robin tournament at the Level Club.

Despite the fact that Matsuyama, a "dark horse" if there ever was one, tops the field with three straight victories, Cochran, a dangerous and game player in the pinch, is the favorite at odds of 5 to 4.

These two, with young Jake Schaefer, alone are in the running for the title now held by Edouard Horemans of Belgium. Horemans, Eric Hagenlacher of Germany and Felix Grange of France all have fallen by the wayside.

If Matsuyama can down Cochran and follow through with another victory over Schaefer the title will be his without dispute. If he loses one or the other of his two remaining matches he still is assured of a tie no matter what Schaefer and Cochran accomplish. If the little Japanese loses both of his matches he will automatically be eliminated.

Failed to Win Game in 1927.

Four matches still are to be played in the tournament which is to close on Wednesday night, but only three of them have any bearing on the title hunt. In addition to Matsuyama's contests with Cochran and Schaefer the latter pair must also meet in a duel of their own. Thus two victories by any one of the three leaders will carry with them the championship.

But the fact remains that the Japanese who failed to win a single match in the 1927 tournament in Washington, holds the whip hand. He can afford to lose one match. Cochran and Schaefer, with two victories in three starts apiece, will be eliminated if they lose again.

Only the Cochran-Matsuyama match is to be played today and on the result hinges the schedule for the remainder of the tournament.

Under tentative plans, Horemans and Hagenlacher will meet tomorrow afternoon. In the evening Schaefer is to meet the loser of the Cochran-Matsuyama battle. On Wednesday night Schaefer will meet the winner of the same match in the final game of the tournament.

The standing:

Player.	Won.	Lost.
Matsuyama	3	0
Cochran	2	1
Schaefer	2	1
Horemans	2	2
Hagenlacher	2	2

By the Associated Press.

LOS ANGELES, Cal., Feb. 11.—Joe Smith, manager of Tommy Loughran, light heavyweight champion, and Charles Emanuel, father-manager for Armand Emmanuel, San Francisco heavyweight, have been fined $200 each by James Woods, member of the State Athletic Commission.

Woods, in announcing the fines, said they were the result of the row started by Smith and Emmanuel over the judges selected by Woods before the Loughran-Armand Emmanuel fight here last week.

Valley Lead at Stake When Bears Play Creighton Five

By Jerry Bernoudy.

Followers of the Missouri Valley basketball race will center their attention on St. Louis Wednesday night when Washington and Creighton, the league leaders, both owning perfect records, meet in the game that will in all probability decide the championship. The Bears won their fourth victory in conference play against Drake last Friday in the only Valley contest played during the week.

After Wednesday's encounter, Washington will face only two more conference games against Grinnell and the Oklahoma Aggies, the two cellar occupants, so a victory will place White's team in a most opportune position.

As a result of the victory over Missouri the night before the Tigers defeated the Creighton tossers at Omaha, the Bears are conceded a slight edge. Don White viewed the Bluejays in action against the Missourians, however, and is not inclined to take the comparative scores of the games as an indication of the strength of the two teams.

Another "Stretch" Center.

One man in particular on Coach Schabinger's outfit who is expected to provide the Washington guards with plenty of trouble is Verne Jensen, the very latest model in elongated centers. "Big Boy" is even taller than the famous "Stretch" Murphy on the Purdue team, measuring 6 feet and 7 inches. Jensen has been a powerful cog in his team's offense all season.

Creighton's only other defeat this season came at the hands of the University of Iowa quintet by a two-point margin several weeks ago. The same five defeated the Bears, 22-18, in an early season game.

In addition to the Bluejay battle this week, Washington will oppose Grinnell at the field house, Friday night. Following the Pioneer contest, Don White will lead his charges into Oklahoma for the final trip of the season on which the Bears will clash with the Oklahoma Aggies next Monday night and with Oklahoma the following evening.

GIRLS' BASKET TEAMS TO PLAY CONTESTS AT BILLIKEN GYMNASIUM

St. Louis University gymnasium has been obtained for Thursday night by the Greater St. Louis Girls' Basketball Association in order to accommodate the large crowd expected to attend the Headlight-Peetz game which will decide the championship of the first round of the schedule. In their previous meeting at the Armory, an overflow crowd of 2200 often halted the game as it pushed out over the foul lines onto the court. In that game, the Headlights were returned victors, 19-18.

In Thursday's preliminary, Dave Cristal's greatly improved Schenberg five will play the speedy little Crystal City outfit to determine minor honors.

53 STARS ARE NOMINATED FOR LOUISIANA DERBY

By the Associated Press.

NEW ORLEANS, Feb. 11.—Fifty-three 3-year-old thoroughbreds, headed by the Three D stable's Vermajo, black son of Peter Pan out of Royal Amante, recent winner of the $25,000 New Orleans Handicap, have been nominated for the Louisiana Derby at a mile and a furlong and carrying $15,000 added.

The Louisiana Derby, in recent years regarded as a trial for 3-year-olds in winter training for the Kentucky Derby, will be run this year on March 22, at Jefferson Park.

In addition to Vermajo, the Three D stable has named Calf Roper, brown son of High Time out of Free Love; La Paloma, a gelding, and two colts, Panchito and Yam Toy.

SPRINGFIELD BOXER IS SOUGHT FOR BOUT AT SOUTH BROADWAY

An inter-city featherweight bout between Jackie Davis of Springfield, Ill., and Jack Wilson of the local Motorbus A. C. boxing team, is sought by Matchmaker Willie Miller to provide one of the special events on Wednesday night's amateur boxing contests at the South Broadway A. C. Davis won the decision over Walter Schlittler of this city, in a previous encounter at the South Side arena.

Miller has paired leading local bantam contenders for the Western District title in other special attractions. One of the bouts brings Johnny Quirk of the South Broadway club against Joe Lamey, the hard-hitting Business Men's A. C. midget, while Joe Bokor, a stablemate of Quirk, meets Elvin Regan of Valley Park. All four boxers are prepping for the district title meet at the New Coliseum, March 7.

Twenty-four boxers have filed entries for the preliminaries.

SCRIBNER HAS 745-PIN LEAD IN TITLE MATCH

The Detroit bowler hung up a total of 2328—an average of 232.8 in winning eight of the 10 games. Carlson won the second game, 239 to 204 and the sixth game 211 to 191. Scribner chalked up counts of 278, 258, 245 and 237 in the last four games, furnishing one of the most brilliant exhibitions of pin toppling seen here since Jimmy Blouin defeated him four years ago on the same alleys.

With the breaks, Scribner could have scored a perfect 300 game. He shot nothing but the No. 10 pin, aside from strikes in the seventh, eighth and ninth games. The Detroit star had but five "open" frames in the ten games, two No. 10 pin errors and three splits. Carlson was charged with four errors and had five splits.

The final ten games will be rolled tonight.

Scores:

By the Associated Press.

MIAMI BEACH, Fla., Feb. 11.—The first sizable wager is down on the Stribling-Sharkey fight. It was placed by Cyril Harvey, Georgia broker, who sought to place $5000 on the short end of a 7 to 5 bet.

Frank McCormack of Waltham, Mass., wanted the Sharkey end but declined the odds Harvey asked. They compromised on $5800 to $5000, McCormack making the Boston boy a slight favorite in the first important money placed here at the site of the fight.

Sharkey is ruling a 6 to 5 favorite in lesser amounts than were placed at the Miami Beach Kennel Club where Sharkey was the clubhouse guest of Dempsey at the dog races.

Mannie Noble of New York, just returned from a junket to Havana, said interest in the bout was high in the Cuban capital and that a special boat load of Cubans and Americans would be over for the fight.

Noble took the Sharkey end of an even money bet of $600. Tommy Hessian, a broker, arrived from Atlanta with $12,000 which he said he was commissioned to place on Stribling at 5 to 7. He could not find a ready market for his money at that figure. Hessian said there would be a flock of Stribling money in here within a few days.

Predicts $400,000 Gate.

Stribling will slip out to the Everglades on a fishing trip today, not resuming training until Wednesday. Sharkey was to work out at the Miami Beach Kennel Club at 3:30 this afternoon.

Yesterday Sharkey played a round of golf with his manager, Johnny Buckley. Stribling went through eight rounds of workout before a crowd of 400 which meant that many times half a dollar to Pa Stribling on the gate.

Jack Dempsey revealed that the ticket sale is already past the $200,000 mark, and predicts a $400,000 gate.

By W. J. McGoogan.

Only one point ahead of the last place Duluth team, the St. Louis Flyers meet that aggregation tonight in the final of a two-game hockey series at the Winter Garden in a battle which may decide who is entitled to undisputed possession of the cellar in the American Association race. A victory for Duluth would send the Flyers into last place one point behind the Hornets, while a St. Louis victory would increase the Flyers' margin of protection to three points.

"Red" Malsted, who was borrowed for three games from the Minneapolis club on the St. Louis team's last road trip, will be the Flyers' goaltender in tonight's game, Coach Alex Irvin has announced. Malsted will arrive in St. Louis this afternoon.

Iver Anderson, handicapped by an injury suffered on the Flyers' recent northern invasion, made a bad showing Saturday night when he permitted eight Duluth shots to get by him. However, Irvin blamed much of the rout to the Flyers on the defense which he said was very loose, permitting the Duluth forwards to get in on top of Anderson time after time.

After tonight's contest, the Flyers take to the road again, playing at Kansas City, Feb. 20 and 21, then returning to St. Louis for their final home games of the season on Feb. 27 and March 1.

DETROIT GIRL RETAINS UNOFFICIAL WORLD'S SPEED SKATING TITLE

DETROIT, Mich., Feb. 11.—Loretta Neitzel, Detroit's speed skating school teacher, decisively demonstrated her superiority over Mrs. Leila Brooks Potter of Toronto in their unofficial world championship series by winning yesterday's three events.

Trailing after the 220-yard and three-quarter mile races Saturday, Miss Neitzel came back yesterday to win the 440-yard, half mile and mile events for a point score of 110.

Following here in points were Mrs. Potter with 80; Miss Rose Marie Brady, Detroit, 60; Miss Margie Kennedy, Minneapolis, 30, and Miss Jean Boillotat, Detroit, 10.

In winning the 440-yard race the Detroit skater covered the distance in 44 seconds, bettering the recognized mark of Mrs. Potter 44 3-5 seconds, established in 1926. The time, however, did not approach Miss Neitzel's 39 1-5 made at Minneapolis two weeks ago.

Power to Box Reed.

Matchmaker Jack Tippett of the Fred W. Stockham American Legion Post announced today that he has booked Jimmy Reed and Frank Power, local middleweight punchers, for a 10-round bout on the New Coliseum fistic card featuring Dave Knost and Tom Pivac in a city championship heavyweight battle, next Monday night.

Gold Stabilization Is World's Greatest Problem, Irving Fisher Declares

By Irving Fisher.
Professor of Economics, Yale University.

In economic injury Germany suffered more from her colossal inflation after the war was over than from the war itself.

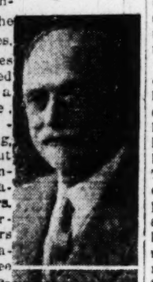

In Germany, as in many other countries of Europe, the inflation literally ruined millions of middle-class investors who had invested in bonds; they were the creditors who lost virtually their whole principal by the fall of the German mark.

When the average weekly wage of a metal worker was almost thirty million marks, or about 850 billion times his 1913 wage, the cost of living had increased about 1250 billion times.

The very instability of the paper mark, as soon as discovered, blinded Germany to the instability of the gold standard.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Feb. 11.—Out of the participation of two Americans, Messrs. Dawes and Young, acting informally for the United States, sprang the Dawes plan that rescued Germany from a disaster worse, economically speaking, than the war. Out of the equally informal participation of Messrs. Young and Morgan, as members of the international committee of experts for revision of German reparations, may spring a plan for the solution of what Commissioner Gilbert calls the "larger problem of the reconstruction of Europe."

Irving Fisher

In his final report, which forms the basis of the experts' meeting this month, Mr. Gilbert remarks that Germany's reconstruction has "at least kept pace" with the reconstruction of Europe as a whole, and has been an essential part of that general process of European reconstruction. The German Republic is struggling to regain the productive power possessed by the German Empire before the World War. No country which participated in the war has recovered its former capacity to produce, and Mr. Gilbert notes that, in different degrees, all European countries are still suffering the consequences of war inflation.

Inflation Worse Than War

Inflation of the currency caused Germany to collapse. In economic injury Germany suffered more from her colossal inflation after the war was over than from the war itself. The stabilization achieved by the Dawes plan, imperfect though it has been, has enabled the republic to emerge in a state of solvency. The welfare of Germany, as of all Europe, now requires that the amount of reparations which must be paid, and the period within which payment must be made, shall be definitely fixed. The experts are expected to define the total and the time. They may not do this at once. When they do so, instead of the discouraged, disorganized Germany of 1923, plunged into bankruptcy and bitter famine, a Germany will arise which is self-sustaining and able to pay all that can justly and reasonably be demanded.

It was one aspect of what I have called the after-war "money illusion" that brought Germany, and the whole Continent with her, to the abyss. It was the illusion of stable prosperity. It gave universal employment, for a time.

Spending Became Necessity.

But one of the German witnesses who appeared before the Dawes Commission was a workman representing, he said, 15,000,000 German laborers. When asked what labor most needed, he said, "A more stable currency." He stated that the workmen had no way to lay up for a rainy day, to put by money in order to pay for the doctor, the nurse, and the coming of a baby into the family, or to provide for old age or funeral expenses. The mark would lose much of its buying power overnight. A wife would meet her husband when he got his wages, snatch the money and run to the grocer's to spend it before the soaring prices should soar still higher, then subtracting from the buying power of the paper marks.

In Germany, as in many other countries of Europe, the inflation literally ruined millions of middle-class investors who had invested in bonds; they were the creditors who lost virtually their whole principal by the fall of the German mark. These investors—including teachers, lawyers, Judges, clergymen, physicians, clerks, depositors in savings banks, small holders of bonds, recipients of life insurance money—came to be called "the new poor of Europe." Some of these, who had every reason to expect to retire in comfort, became day laborers, doing anything at all to scrape together a bare subsistence in their old age.

A Croesus on Paper.

German employment and German wages nominally increased during the inflation. But "real wages," that is, what their wages would buy in goods, shrank. In one week of January, 1923, the wages of skilled labor of all kinds advanced to more than five hundred times the level of 1913. But the cost of living had advanced 1100 times; so that the workman's weekly wages of 18,000 marks would buy less than one-half what his wage of 35 marks bought in 1913.

There was a continuous Marathon race between the German cost of living and the wage rates. Later in this period wage adjustments in accordance with the cost of living index were made daily, but wages for both skilled and unskilled workers in all industries and occupations, except mining, continued to lag behind prices.

The height of absurdity was reached in December, 1923, when the average weekly wage of a metal worker was almost thirty million million, or thirty trillion, marks, or about 850 billion times his 1913 wage, while the cost of living had increased about 1250 billion times. This metal-working Croesus with his pay satchel bulging with trillions of marks—truly "wealth beyond the dreams of avarice"—was barely able to pay the butcher, the baker, and the paper-shoe maker, since his thirty trillions would buy only about seven-tenths as much as his thirty-six marks would buy in 1913.

Internal Debt Disappears.

The depreciation of the German mark, of course, virtually wiped out Germany's internal debt; although, after the paper mark disappeared, Germany had the grace to "revalorize" her domestic debt. That is, she undertook to repay it in part. Individual Germans and German companies were not always so gracious.

Such a cleaning the slate helped the State finances, but at the expense of the holders of German bonds. To the German public the cost of the war was not lessened by inflation. What the taxpayers gained through depreciation of the currency was taken from them or others as lenders and savers. The burden was not lightened. It was only shifted from the shoulders of the taxpayers to the shoulders of the investors. The great mass of private lenders were forced to accept depreciated money in payment for their loans.

Paper Not Sole Culprit.

German inflation, European inflation, and American inflation defrauded widows of the insurance for which their husbands had paid. Even in the United States a widow receiving $10,000 insurance after her husband's death in 1920, which had been contracted for in 1896, was getting only one-quarter of the value originally contracted for. It is easy to see how the will-o'-the-wisp of inflation led Germany into the bog of bankruptcy. It is not so easy to see that even the United States, with her gold-standard dollar, followed Germany some distance into the morass.

Prof. E. W. Kemmerer, whose expert advice has aided some 11 nations to regain their feet financially, notes that, in a little less than a half century here in the United States, we have seen our own yardstick of value, that of the gold dollar, rise 27 per cent from 1879 to 1896; fall 70 per cent from 1896 to 1920, and rise 56 per cent from 1920 to September, 1927. Prof. Kemmerer speaks figuratively when he says the yardstick of value was "36 inches long in 1897 when the United States returned to the gold standard, then it was 46 inches long in 1896, 13½ inches long in 1920, and is 21 inches long today" (1927).

Illusion Remains.

Germany chose the heroic method of repudiating, or completely scrapping, her paper marks, already depreciated practically to zero by inflation, and starting all over again with gold marks. It had required a shrinkage of the mark to less than a hundredth of what it had been only a few years before to make the German people realize that there had been any change at all, so difficult had it been to rid themselves of the illusion of a changing standard.

Even under such extreme conditions, the German money illusion has not yet ended. The idea of the stability of money was merely transferred by the Germans from their money to ours. Like a passenger who discovers, to his surprise, that his train is moving and not the one on the next track, the ordinary German, after the price level had risen some hundred times, realized that the mark was falling and immediately assumed that the Swiss franc or the American dollar was stationary. Then was formed the desire to "get back" to such a gold standard themselves.

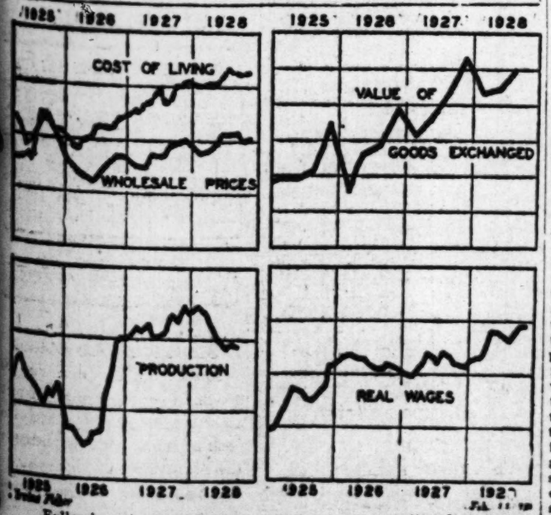

Gold No Panacea.

The very instability of the paper mark, as soon as discovered, blinded Germany to the instability of the gold standard. The fact that gold was so very much more stable than unregulated paper money caused it to be idealized. But it is not, and never has been, ideal—far from it—as the American fluctautions of the dollar, just quoted, clearly show.

There still looms over the deliberations of the experts' committee in Paris, so fateful for the future of Europe and the world, the unsolved problem of the stabilization of gold. On the solution of that problem finally hangs the supreme question whether the world's masses in their wage contracts, the world's entrepreneurs in their contracts for delivery of goods, and the world's investors in their contracts for payment of principal and interest on securities, can count on getting back, in exchange for their services, goods and services meted out by equal and just measures. In short, on the solution of that problem hangs the reconstruction of Europe and the continued prosperity of America.

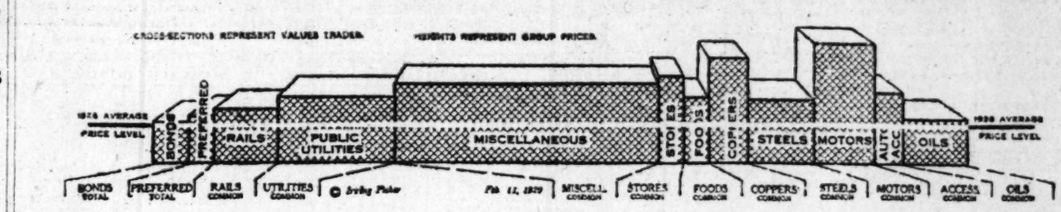

(Copyright, 1929, by Irving Fisher.)

Encouraging Economic Symptoms

Following the complete repudiation of her inflated currency, Germany embarked with characteristic energy and capacity upon a program of rationalization. A fixed war debt and fresh capital are being sought for a furtherance of the program.

COMMODITIES ARE GENERALLY LOWER

Six of Nine Major Groups Show Declining Prices— Metals Strong.

NEW YORK, Feb. 11.—Commodity quotations were generally lower last week. Six of the nine major commodity groups show declining prices, those of farm products and hides being heaviest.

The metals group was the only one to show marked strength. Tin, copper and lead were all strong last week. Building materials and chemicals made slight increases, against the otherwise rather general trend downward.

SLIGHT FALL IN FARM PURCHASING POWER

General Weakness in Commodity Prices Was Shown Last Week.

NEW YORK, Feb. 11.—Farm purchasing power declined only slightly last week despite general weakness of commodity prices. Numerous agricultural items were lower including such important items as cotton, eggs, corn, steers, hogs and lambs. There were few compensating increases in prices of agricultural goods although wheat was a trifle stronger.

Prices of non-agricultural goods declined likewise, thus tending to sustain the purchasing power of farm products. Index numbers of farm purchasing power, and of agricultural and non-agricultural prices for various periods are given in the following table in which the average for 1926 represents 100:

DOLLAR PURCHASING POWER INCREASED LAST WEEK

Commodity Prices Declined for the Fifth Consecutive Week.

NEW YORK, Feb. 11.—For the fifth consecutive week this year commodity prices declined and the purchasing power of the dollar increased.

This steady movement is consistent with the high interest rates prevailing and throws light on considerations which may have influenced the Federal Reserve Board in its recent statement indicating disapproval of the deflection of credit resources to stock market operations.

European prices also revealed weakness.

Fluctuations in the general wholesale price level and in the purchasing power of the dollar are given below for the U. S. for various periods, based mainly on Dun's quotations. The average for the year 1926 is the base used.

BOND PRICES WEAKENED SLIGHTLY LAST WEEK

Volume About Ten Million Dollars Worth Per Day.

NEW YORK, Feb. 11.—Bond prices weakened slightly last week on the New York Stock Exchange. Softness in quotations developed on Monday and continued through the week, prices tending to recede further as stocks suffered their sharp decline on Thursday.

The volume of bonds changing hands held steady at about $10,000,000 worth per day.

STOCKS BUCKLED AND SKIDDED LAST WEEK

Finally Squeezed Through With Small Net Gain, Taking Market By and Large.

NEW YORK, Feb. 11.—The stock market buckled and skidded a good deal last week, developing serious weakness at the end but finally squeezed through with a small net price gain, taking the market by and large.

The coppers showed the largest gain and the motors the largest loss for the week. There was no change in the average price of preferred shares but the other groups were well divided—rails, utilities, miscellaneous, foods, coppers and steel groups making advances, the stores, motors, accessories and oils groups declining.

The market leaders advanced almost exactly the same relative amount on the market as a whole.

The compact survey of New York Stock Exchange movements of common industrial shares is given below in price indexes (1926—100) for all shares outstanding and for the week's 50 most active stocks. The last column of the table gives the rate of return on the week's 50 leaders at current prices.

Strength of Coppers Factor.

The speculative issues made the best showing in last week's market. This was largely because of the strength of the coppers. Some of the higher grade market favorites had risen to levels which they could not maintain when the selling pressure appeared. The high-est grade investment group did a little better, however, than the intermediate stocks.

Below are shown index numbers for prices of three groups of stocks traded on the New York Stock Exchange, graded in accordance with their seasoning dividend history, credit, strength, and size.

Stock market activity increased last week over the high level of the preceding week. The total market price of all securities changing hands last week on the New York Stock Exchange averaged $375,600,000 per day, of which common industrials accounted for $305,200,000.

Activity in the miscellaneous group, which includes Dupont and Radio, increased heavily, averaging over $140,000,000 per day in value. Trading in coppers nearly doubled over the volume of the week before, and rails increased in activity more than 50 per cent. Preferred stocks, likewise, were more active.

Trading in utilities fell to only half the value of the turnover during the preceding week.

RAW MATERIALS INDEX DECLINED LAST WEEK

Semi-Manufactured and Finished Goods Also Down But Not As Markedly.

NEW YORK, Feb. 11.—Raw materials, semi-manufactured and finished goods all declined last week, raw materials most markedly.

Livestock prices were conspicuously weak among the raw materials. Lumber was one of the items in this group in which price quotations were stronger.

Changes in prices were quite evenly mixed in the other groups. Various food items were weak in the finished goods, especially flour and beef, but butter and hams registered increases against the general trend.

LEAD ORE ADVANCES; ZINC IS UNCHANGED

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

JOPLIN, Mo., Feb. 11.—Lead concentrate price advanced to $90 a ton in the Tri-State district in the week just closed, up $2.50 a ton from the previous week as a result of the former big lead quotations. Zinc was unchanged at from $37 a ton for float to $41 for high grades, with prime western bringing $40 for the thirty-ninth consecutive week.

Demand for both ores was good, the sale of zinc being reported at 11,310 tons. About one-half of the week's sale was made through the new sales agency making almost 10,000 tons for that organization two weeks.

Production for the week dropped below 12,000 net tons for the first time during the year, as a result of the sub-zero weather and an eight-inch snow throughout the district. Tailing mills were especially hard hit by the cold wave.

Shipment exceeded the production by more than 1400 tons and reduced the surplus tonnage in the field to less than 25,000 tons, or less than two weeks' supply.

Shipment for the week follows:

New York Sugar.

NEW YORK, Feb. 11.—Raw sugar was unchanged early today. No sales reported. Spots quoted at 3.77, duty paid.

Raw futures opened unchanged to one point higher on covering for local and European account and continued steady throughout the remainder of the forenoon. The list at midday was yet unchanged to two points higher. March contracts showed the maximum gain, but on the whole trading was not very active. There appeared to be a disposition among operators to hold off and wait developments. Nothing new was heard in regard to last week's press advices indicating the possibility of some restriction on the sale of Cuban sugar. With tomorrow a holiday, a good deal of the early trading was believed to consist of evening-up.

In refined no new business was reported, but withdrawals were fair and prices were unchanged at 5.10c for fine granulated.

BUSINESS WEATHER
By Karl G. Karsten

NEW YORK, Feb. 11. — Crop news for last week favored wheat growers more than that of the previous week. Frequent flurries provided good covering in the main portion, also in the area just west of the Mississippi and in Ohio. Ice remained under the snow in Indiana and Illinois. The Pacific Northwest is well protected by deep snow, but the eastern foothills of the Rockies are still bare, with wheat frozen to the ground. This being the crucial period for the crop, sections at present unfavored must have immediate turn for the better or their yield will be negligible.

ST. LOUIS MERCHANTS' EXCHANGE, Feb. 9.—Wheat closed higher on the local market with corn mixed but little changed. Besides low temperature in Germany there was decrease of 2,301,000 in U. S. visible supply. There was report of indication of increased rural movement of corn.

Opening fractionally higher. Wheat ruled so in the early trading period. Unfavorable weather in Europe and fact that stocks of wheat afloat are under year ago were credited with being basis of some buying. Liverpool wheat closed unchanged on March and ⅝d up on May and July. Corn was lower here early.

May wheat opened at $1.27½. July wheat $1.29½. May corn, $1.00⅝ and July corn, $1.02¼.

Local wheat receipts, which were 295,400 bushels, compared with 310,000 a week ago, included 134 cars local and 77 through. Corn receipts, which were 331,800 bushels, compared with 539,000 a week ago, included 158 cars local and 79 through. Oats receipts, which were 202,400 bushels, compared with 756,200 a week ago, included 76 cars local and 16 through. Hay receipts were 44 cars local and 3 through.

WHEAT CLOSES FIRM WITH PRICES HIGHER

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, Feb. 11.—Exceptionally cold weather in Europe did much today to lift wheat values. Besides, a decrease of 2,301,000 bushels in the United States wheat visible supply total was a bullish factor, and there was considerable buying of wheat against sales of corn. On the other hand, houses with connections northwest and southwest were sellers of wheat on the price bulges.

Wheat closed firm, ⅝ to 1c net higher, corn varying from ⅛c decline to ⅝c advance, oats ⅛c down to a shade up, and provisions unchanged to a setback of 5 @7 cents.

Owing chiefly to reports of unfavorable weather in Europe and to fears of crop damage there, wheat prices here scored early advances today.

At noon wheat was ⅛c to ½c net higher and corn ⅝c to ⅛c down.

Notice was taken that despite huge world shipments, stocks of wheat afloat were still smaller than a year ago. Starting ⅛ to ⅝ higher, Chicago wheat afterward rose further, but then reacted somewhat. Corn, oats and provisions were easier, with corn opening unchanged to ⅛ off and subsequently undergoing a general setback.

Exports for the week, 23,312,000 bushels, left the amount of wheat on ocean passage nevertheless about 1,000,000 short of last year's total.

Declines in corn values today were ascribed to indications of a heavier movement of corn from rural sources. Seasonable weather prevailed over the corn belt, and arrivals of corn in Chicago today were of liberal volume, 621 cars compared with 520 cars one week back.

FINANCIAL NOTES

NEW YORK, Feb. 11.—Three Federal Reserve banks, those at Minneapolis, Dallas and Kansas City, are reported to have taken steps to compel member banks in those districts to withdraw loans made on call in the New York market if they wish to use their rediscount privileges. Other banks are expected to take similar action in an attempt to carry out the Federal Reserve policy against speculative loans.

Ten steel companies reporting 1928 earnings in aggregate have shown an increase of 28.2 per cent over 1927. Prevailing favorable conditions in the industry lead observers to believe that 1929 earnings will show further improvement.

Daily average California crude oil production increased 13,500 barrels last week to 732,000 barrels.

COTTON FUTURES HIGHER ON NEW YORK MARKET

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Feb. 11.—The cotton market was higher today on covering and some trade and commission house buying promoted by relatively steady Liverpool cables and bullish private figures on domestic consumption for January. Advances of 8 to 14 points met considerable pre-holiday realizing but it was absorbed on moderate setbacks. The mid-afternoon market steady at net gains of five to 11 points.

Futures closed steady, 8 to 11 points higher: March, 19.97@98c; May, 20.07@09c; July, 19.75@76c; October, 19.57@59c; December, 19.60c. Spot steady; middling, 20.20c.

The market opened steady today at 4 to 12 points advance.

Active months soon showing net gains of 8 to 14 points on covering together with trade and commission house buying which was accompanied by talk of bullish private figures on domestic consumption for January and promoted by higher Liverpool cables. The advance met a good deal of realizing and some southern selling around 20.10c for May and 19.57c for the new October contracts. Selling, however, was absorbed on reactions of 4 or 5 points, with the market fairly active and steady at the end of the early trade.

Private cable reported covering and trade calling combined with continental buying in the Liverpool market.

The private report estimating consumption of lint cotton in this country for January at 665,000 bales came in for much comment but after the early advance to 20.10 for May demand tapered off somewhat and there were reactions under realizing or liquidation. These offerings sent prices off six or seven points from the best. While less active, buying continued and the market was steady at midday, with May selling at 20.08 and the general list showing net advances of three to nine points.

BEWARE THE COUGH FROM COLDS THAT HANG ON

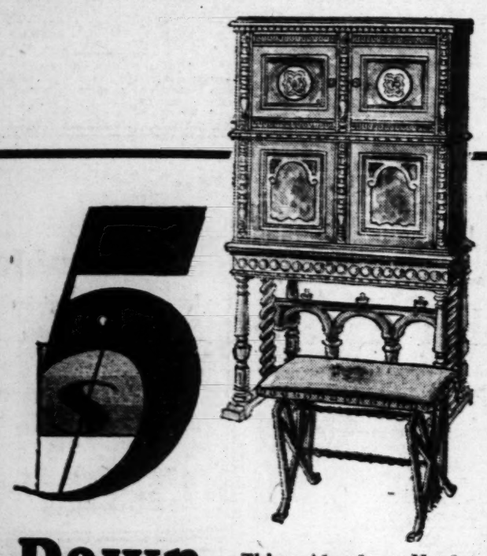

Coughs from colds may lead to serious trouble. You can stop them now with Creomulsion, an emulsified creosote that is pleasant to take. Creomulsion is a medical discovery with two-fold action; it soothes and heals the inflamed membranes and inhibits germ growth.

Of all known drugs creosote is recognized by high medical authorities as one of the greatest healing agencies for coughs from colds and bronchial irritations. Creomulsion contains, in addition to creosote, other healing elements which soothe and heal the inflamed membranes and stop the irritation, while the creosote goes on to the stomach, is absorbed into the blood, attacks the seat of the trouble and checks the growth of the germs.

Creomulsion is guaranteed satisfactory in the treatment of coughs from colds, bronchitis and minor forms of bronchial irritations, and is excellent for building up the system after colds or flu. Money refunded if not relieved after taking according to directions. Ask your druggist. (adv.)

A Doctor Talks About Cascara

It is unfortunate that many people judge the thoroughness of a laxative by its violence. The salts that rush through the system may not even penetrate the film of poisonous matter that has coated the colon. A long list of drugs will "loosen the bowels," but what is the best way to CLEANSE them?

The world's best laxative is one that Mother Nature makes in her own laboratory. It is the bark of a tree, called CASCARA. The Indians used to chew this bark—and reach old age without a sick day. It is the best thing there is today, for any system; best for the blood. The most beneficial in its action on the bowels, or anything yet disclosed, for many reasons:

First of all, there is no HABIT formed from cascara. The bowels are not weakened, but strengthened by its occasional use. The occasions when one needs this aid grow less and less. Its influence is long-felt. You don't find yourself worse bound-up the day following. You do find the bowels more inclined to move of their own volition. The candy Cascaret that every drug store always has in stock is the ideal form of cascara.

WHO IS GUILTY?

Match Your Wits With the Author and See if You Can Unravel This Mystery—The Correct Solution Will Be Printed in the Post-Dispatch Tuesday.

By Evelyn Johnson and Gretta Palmer.

THE MYSTERY OF THE MAILS.

HERE is the outline of a baffling crime. The reader is invited to make his own solution of the mystery, and then compare it with the correct answer which will be published Tuesday. Another mystery story will be printed Thursday

SAM ("SCRATCHER") LEWIS gave a start as he saw the face of the man who sat opposite him in the subway car; he had just time to dart out to the platform before the doors closed and the train slid away. So the detectives were after him—that bank clerk had finally squealed. Sam wormed his way through the crowd to cake sure that he had shaken off pursuit, but there was no sign of a pair of squared-toed black shoes or of a face with the elaborately off-hand expression that distinguishes officers of the law traveling incognito. Sam was one of the few persons who was grateful for the five o'clock rush hour that day. But the detective would get off at Fourteenth street and telephone the station dicks to watch for him. Sam decided that he needed to take a long trip, and in a hurry. He rapidly reviewed the time table of outgoing trains that he had memorized for just such an emergency and broke into a run. The Middle-Western Express left in two minutes. As Sam flung himself on the last platform and the wheels turned with an increasing speed he knew that he was safe.

But there were, none the less, complications which this ingenious young man had still to face. There was Bess, his wife, who swung, as the phrase goes, a mean garter. She would, of course, be watched, but she was not a novice at the game and could be trusted to keep away from the engraving shop for months if necessary. They had long ago made arrangements for this contingency, and Sam knew that he could trust the resourceful Bess to join him at any specific date and wherever he might decide to begin operations. He looked over the time-table meditatively. Cleveland — well, he'd never worked Cleveland, and it sounded like a pretty good town. Big enough to deserve consideration but not so big that the competition would be strenuous. It was the ambition of Sam, like many more respectable financiers, to get a monopoly on his product. Bess, he decided, had better join him in Cleveland, three weeks from Thursday—that would be the ninth of June. Her birthday was the tenth and they could have a pleasant little party, a theater followed up by what Sam accurately called a gin-frolic. With a carefree mind he made for the smoker and had a sociable hour or two with a traveler from the west.

Meanwhile Bess had shown great poise under the stress of extraordinary events. When Sam did not show up that evening she merely outlined a few bits of snappy sarcasm with which to greet him on his return home, and wondered whether he would begin talking about his dear old mother or try to pass off some bum on her as "one of my oldest and best friends." If it were both, she decided to put him under the shower until he sobered up. A woman can only stand so much.

But when morning arrived without any signs of a penitent Sam, she began to wonder. If he had been arrested he would have telephoned, so this must be something else—probably he had had to go on the lam. Oh, well, he'd let her know.

Bess, whose drill for such occasions had been thorough and well thought out, dressed quickly and ventured out into the street. As she walked past the little shops on her way, she paused before the windows and seemed interested in the wares displayed. Actually she was keeping an eye on the movements of a man behind her who was sauntering along at a leisurely pace never employed in America by any one but policemen and panhandlers. This man was no panhandler. Bess spent the morning in the most innocent of shopping tours and acted the model suspect, who never leaves a building by a different door than she enters. Nor did she give any sign of noticing the clumsy operations of the man who was shadowing her. The stage had lost a great actress when Bess turned to forgery. Her conduct was exemplary to the last degree during the following week, and if she felt any impatience over her failure to hear from Sam she did not show it.

The police had been watching her carefully, her telephone wire had been tapped, she had been shadowed every minute and her mail had been watched. The only communications she had received were odd enough, however. The first thing to appear was a Sears-Roebuck catalog. With it was a letter from the firm, dated May 27. It said: "Dear Madam, Mr. Archibald Smith has asked us to mail you our catalog and call your attention to the portable house on page 249. Yours truly." The police sent a man to Chicago. The letter was authentic and had been sent on account of a letter the firm had received. The police were given the mysterious letter of instruction. It merely said: "Please send one of your latest catalogs to Mrs. Bess Lewis, 23495 Amsterdam avenue, and call her attention to the portable house on page 249. I think she would be interested in it." It was postmarked Chicago, May 25, and was entirely typewritten. The police sent Bess another copy of the catalog, and kept the two letters for further examination. They went through the entire original catalog for marks without finding any. In the meantime they combed Chicago for Sam. On June 1, Bess' canceled checks came back from the bank. Among them was one dated the day when Sam disappeared. The signature was in Bess' handwriting, but the date and the amount—"312.96" and the order to pay were in Sam's writing. It had been endorsed by a traveling salesman well known in Buffalo, and cashed there. The police kept this check, sending the others and the statement on to Bess, and while experts unsuccessfully examined it for invisible writing, they got in touch with the traveling salesman.

All that he knew was that a man answering Sam's description had picked him up on the Middle-Western Express on the day in question, and they had had a few drinks. He must have had a little too much, because he had agreed to cash that check. When he sobered up in Buffalo, he had immediately cashed it, feeling sure that it was no good. To his great surprise it had been as good as gold. He had no idea where the man was going. The police kept a strict watch on Buffalo.

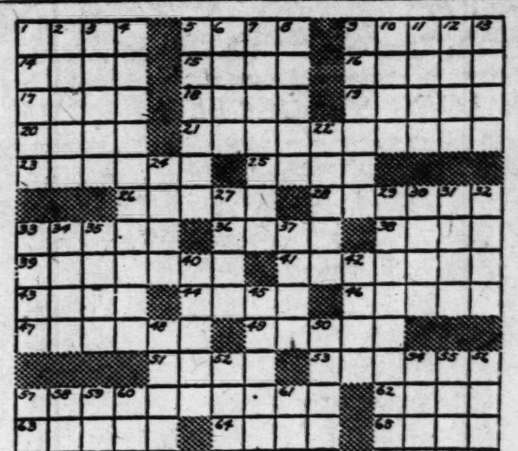

The last puzzler was a letter from St. Lous dated June 5. It was also typewritten, but by an entirely different typewriter, and had been mailed at a box on a crowded corner. It said: "Good bananas are scarce. Ellen says that 3.46-93-23 is-wild. Put the cat out. Murgatroyd.rrrrrrrr."

This was never sent on to Bess, so the detective who had been shadowing the hitherto amenable Bess was very hurt when she eluded him in the Grand Central on the afternoon of the 8th. He hunted wildly through the whole station and the hotels and offices connected with it. But Bess was already speeding towards Cleveland, certain that Sam would meet her at the station.

How did Sam communicate with Bess?

The Bread Knife.

Seek to Kill Noise in Domestic Appliances

EXPERIMENTS to take the shriek out of the vacuum cleaner and the moan out of refrigerator motors were described today at the annual meeting of the American Institute of Electrical Engineers.

Reducing the vacuum cleaner's racket is no small engineering task, according to a paper by Thomas Spooner and J. P. Foltz, research engineers of the Westinghouse Electric and Manufacturing Co. Already they have isolated the offending noises. First in volume comes the sweeper fan, second the motor and ventilating fan, and third, the noises due to lack of accurate balance.

Slight changes in design have eliminated various noises in street car and other motors, and the same principles will be applied to the household offenders.

An Economy Item

YOU can make serviceable work aprons for the little girlies out of daddy's discarded shirts. After the wristbands are frayed and the collar band torn the rest of the garment still possesses strong wearing qualities.

The idea of wearing "daddy's shirt" will please the little folks and having such an apron will be an incentive to help mother.

Bind the apron with colored bias tape or use a coarse rickrack edge. There are also fancy trimming edgings to be had which will add to the attractiveness of the little kitchen Apron, and when sister wears it dad will not recognize his castoff garment.

Turkey Croquettes.

Four cups chopped leftover turkey, one tablespoon parsley, two tablespoons lemon juice, one tablespon onion juice, one-eighth teaspoon grated nutmeg. Add to the finely chopped or ground turkey one pint of thick white sauce made from one-quarter cup butter, one-half cup flour, one pint of milk or cream, one and one-half teaspoons salt, one-half teaspoon pepper, one teaspoon celery salt. Mix with turkey and let cool. Shape, roll in crumbs, dip in beaten egg and roll again in crumbs. Cook in deep, hot fat until a nice brown.

Tunafish Pie.

Line a deep baking dish with pie crust. Make a cream sauce of one tablespoon flour, one tablespoon butter, one cup milk, salt and red pepper. Into this stir one large can of tunafish, one teaspoon minced onion, one tablespoon chopped green peppers, three hard-boiled eggs finely chopped. Cool and then pour into crust and add a top crust. Bake for about 20 minutes in a hot oven.

THE PRICE OF HEEDLESSNESS.

When you've been heedless once or twice
You've learned you always pay a price.
—Danny Meadow Mouse.

DANNY MEADOW MOUSE has had many narrow escapes and many great frights, but never was he more frightened than now. Blacky the Crow had him by the tail. It was only the tip of the tail, but that hurt. However, Danny wasn't thinking of the pain. He wasn't suffering from the hurt, but from fright. Blacky the Crow was trying to pull him out of the snow. You see, Danny had dived headfirst into one of his little tunnels leading down from the surface of the snow on the Green Meadows. Now he dug his claws into the walls of that little tunnel and held on.

Danny knew perfectly well that he was paying the price of heedlessness. Had he heeded the advice of Nanny Meadow Mouse he wouldn't be in any such difficulty now. No, sir, he wouldn't be in any such difficulty now. But he hadn't heeded Nanny's advice and he had been careless and heedless and now Blacky the Crow had him by the tip of the tail.

The tail of Danny Meadow Mouse is, you know, very short. That meant that if Blacky could just pull him out of that hole, let go for just a second and strike again, it would be the end of Danny. Danny felt his claws slipping. It was a dreadful feeling. He dug them in frantically. It was no use. They were slipping, slipping, and in a second or two they would let go altogether.

Blacky the Crow braced himself and gave an extra pull. This was too much for Danny. Out he came! And then a funny thing happened. Blacky was pulling so hard, and Danny let go so suddenly, that Blacky half lost his balance and he let go of Danny's tail. He had jerked Danny out so suddenly that when he let go, Danny went flying over behind him.

Now, despite his fright, Danny didn't lose his wits. This was all as unexpected to him as it was to Blacky the Crow, but Danny didn't waste any time. The instant he touched the snow he was on his feet and scurrying for another little hole. With a hoarse "Caw! Caw!" Blacky was after him. But Blacky wasn't the only one who was after him. Roughleg the Hawk had discovered that something was going on and he had come over to see what it was all about. He had arrived just as Danny was pulled out by Blacky, but he wasn't set to swoop instantly.

Blacky the Crow had him by the tail.

Blacky the Crow hadn't noticed Roughleg. He had but one thought and that was to catch Danny Meadow Mouse. So he started after Danny half-flying, half-running, just as Roughleg made a swoop to try to pick up Danny. The result was that Blacky got in the way. Blacky was knocked flat and Roughleg, of course, failed to catch Danny. My, my, such angry birds! Roughleg blamed Blacky the Crow and Blacky the Crow blamed Roughleg. Blacky declared that that was his Meadow Mouse, anyway, and he called Roughleg a robber and a lot of unpleasant names. But he took pains to do do it from a safe distance. You see, Blacky had no desire for a fight with Roughleg. He knew he was no match for him. Roughleg looked at Blacky as if he were thinking of attacking him. Then he changed his mind and looked around for Danny Meadow Mouse.

Meanwhile, Danny had made good his escape. By the time Blacky and Roughleg were through quarreling, Danny had joined Nanny in their snug little home down under the snow, and was telling her all about his terrible experience. Nanny didn't say a word until Danny was all through. Then she said, "It served you right," and not another word more. Danny had looked for sympathy, but when he thought it all over, he had to admit to himself that he didn't deserve any.

Spokane Policewoman Gets Shooting Award

MRS. Grace Amick, policewoman, who totes a "police special" on her tours of duty, has been awarded a medal for being one of the first four women marksmen of the force.

She won the class C medal and was decorated by Col. Joseph P. Partello, commander of the Fourth Infantry at Fort George Wright, who said it was a new experience for him, despite a long military career of citations and decorations.

The duties of Mrs. Amick include her into dance halls and frequently into the necessity of arresting unruly men as well as girls, but so far her well-known ability with the revolver has enabled her to make arrests without difficulty.

WHAT SOME WOMEN THINK ABOUT WOMEN ON JURIES

By MARGUERITE MARTYN.

The proposed law making women eligible for jury service in this state ought to be of universal interest to women and a timely subject for discussion since it is being considered by the Legislature now in session. But our ready tongue writers do not seem to be taking pen in hand with their usual alacrity when bidden to air their views in these columns.

Perhaps the ayes have it, there being but little objection, and women are only too eager to take on this duty which men, as a rule, have regarded as an unwelcome one.

There is one protesting note but it is from a man:

"My hat is off to the old-fashioned mother who wrote against women on juries. More power to her noble type.

"I know one thing, if they ever have women serving on juries in this court, I for one shall quit serving. I'll be in contempt of court before I'll sit it out with women jurors. Men are easily enough influenced by the prattle of skillful lawyers—but women! God forbid!

Signed "An Old-Fashioned Father."

We have another letter from "Mrs. G. Russell," the old-fashioned mother referred to. It is along the same lines as her first communication. Is she to be the only defendant in this case which certainly concerns all women?

One who describes herself as "also an old-fashioned mother" writes: "Mrs. Russell says if we had more old-fashioned legislators, together with a few old-fashioned mothers we would not have so many new-fashioned boy and girl bandits" etc. Now I believe it is because some mothers of a past generation shirked their duties that we have the present generation gone wild. In missing jury duty some of us are still trying to shirk so we won't have to shoulder results and responsibilities.

MRS. R. KELLEY."

IN the quest for varied opinions I have bethought me of those great numbers of women already so over-burdened with duties that they must now and then appeal outside for relief. How will a summons to jury service affect them?

They are not women who belong to organizations with spokeswomen to represent them but they may be represented, in a sense, by social workers who come in contact with them in their homes.

Seeking, then, the home service director for the Salvation Army, Mrs. A. More, I put the query: "How do you think the proposed law will appeal to women such as you meet in your daily rounds?"

"They are individuals with difference of opinion just as you meet in your daily walks. Some of them think a good deal about social problems. Others are entirely occupied with problems immediately confronting them. Most of them would be excused from jury duty under the provision exempting mothers of young children. Many of them would be willing to leave such service to better trained and richer people. A day in court might appeal to some as a welcome holiday and the fee per diem probably would be enough with which to pay some person to take over their work at home provided such a person could be found. Such help is not always available even when you have the money to pay for it. In every case I would trust the judgment of our women rather than the judgment of men of the same class. If it were not for the shortcomings of men we social workers would soon be out of a job.

"Personally I would like to see women on juries. It would be a step forward. I do not agree with your correspondent who pronounced blessings upon the old-fashioned legislators to whom she looks to defeat the bill. We have some old-fashioned Legislature on our statutes which is as bad as witchcraft."

MISS BERTHA HOWELL, assistant director of the Community Council, experienced social worker, unhesitatingly favored the bill and thought preferences should not be regarded when it comes to a duty to society.

"For the protection of children, women on juries are definitely needed," she said. "The general public does not know how many cases involving crime against children are thrown out of court because male jurors are inclined to be tolerant toward other men who commit these crimes.

"I don't suppose jury duty will especially appeal to women among whom we work. The average man is indifferent to civic duty and probably the average woman is even more so. But each of us should be required to play a part in upholding the laws under which we are protected."

Mrs. Jon Gorse, an active social worker in the employ of the Girls' Home, whose duties take her frequently into court, was enthusiastically in favor of the bill.

"In cases involving girls, the woman's viewpoint and judgment would be invaluable," she said. "Those cases may be relatively few in number, but there is no reason why women should not be called upon to render judgment upon any type of case. Women's entrance into business and industry, their enfranchisement, their close contact with philanthropic and social questions, their attendance at schools, where their standing often is higher than their male classmates—these and other factors have increased women's knowledge so that they are practically as well acquainted with all questions of the day as are men. Their viewpoint is needed in the courts.

"Ask Miss Bella Taussig what she thinks of it. She has so much good sense," urged another woman with whom I was discussing the subject. So I did.

MISS TAUSSIG is head of the association of volunteer workers who provide and serve wholesome luncheons at the minimum cost to children in the lower grades of the public schools.

"Personally, I do not want to sit on a jury," responded Miss Taussig. "Yet, it seems a logical development of woman's enfranchisement. I never was an ardent suffragist, but always believe in upholding the laws of the land. In accepting full citizenship, I believe we should be willing to assume the responsibilities which go with it. Sitting upon civil cases would be merely irksome, but sitting upon criminal cases would be really trying, I believe. Anything which takes mothers out of the home works a hardship upon the children, still one can think of many distractions not so worthy as civic duty which already are taking mothers out of the home."

Mrs. Thomas L. Anderson, who is one of the vice presidents of the Young Women's Christian Association, though she does not speak for that group, nor as the wife of an attorney, but rather as a woman who has opinions of her own, said in response to the query:

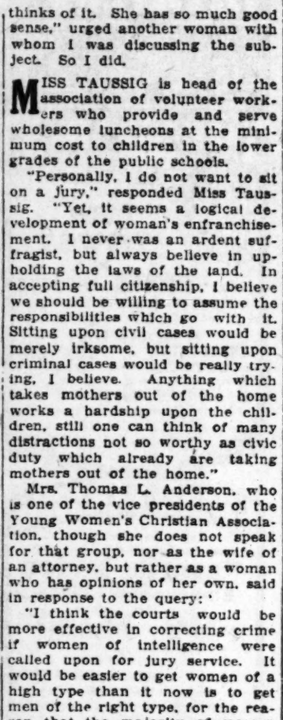

"I think the courts would be more effective in correcting crime if women of intelligence were called upon for jury service. It would be easier to get women of a high type than it now is to get men of the right type, for the reason that the majority of women have more leisure. I believe women generally, having a highly developed sense of duty, would not evade jury service as men now try to avoid it."

Certainly the pro's have had their day in court today. Are all of us willing to let their arguments stand unchallenged?

Among Those Present at the Good Will Wedding

By ELOISE FRAZIER.

* * * And the bride's veil, fashioned from rare old window curtain, was deftly draped and caught to her locks with two huge bunches of fake orange blossoms. Clasped to her bosom she carried a bouquet of three waxy lilies. In fact, they were of wax.

A mock wedding was given last week at the Town Club by the Flying Squadron, which is the Women's Auxiliary of the Good Will Industry. All the costumes worn by the participants had been culled from the Good Will Bags, and in case you are one of the three people in St. Louis who doesn't know what a Good Will Bag is, I'll explain. The Good Will Industry is an organization whose purpose is to give employment to persons handicapped and to offer the necessities of life at a minimum price to those who can't afford any other. These worth-while aims are really achieved, mainly through the system of sending out Good Will Bags to various housewives and mothers, and at the present time there are some 1400 bags located in St. Louis homes.

Into these bags mother throws, along with other castoffs, papa's old suit and sister's old sweater. The Good Will truck has no sooner driven off with the well-filled bag than papa starts rooting around in the closets for his old suit. Yes Sir, it's the very thing to wear when he paints the bath room. And sister suddenly decides to wash and mend her old sweater. Individual cain is raised for a while, but their involuntary donation to the Good Will Industry is irrevocably on its way to being rejuvenated into Sunday-go-to-meetin' outfits for somebody. The work of refurbishing is done by persons who are incapacitated or otherwise unfit for strenuous labor, and the articles are sold for just about enough to pay their wages. The organization's motto is, "Not Charity but an Opportunity." Now, do you understand what it's all about?

THE ladies of the Good Will Industry went into a huddle over these Good Will bags and emerged wearing the most heterogeneous collection of clothes ever assembled, and presented themselves last week as wedding guests. Your keen-eyed reportress picked up the following bits as being significant fashion notes: Ladies, attend.

Among those present was Mrs. X, who was wearing one of those new Battenberg coats, cut on the same lines (the coat, not Mrs. X) as a gentleman's cutaway. Miss Y, one of the bridesmaids, was wearing a trick velvet jackette that fit ever so snugly at the waist and ending with a jaunty flare. But its most effective detail was the sleeves, which suggested the stream lines of a leg of mutton. You've probably heard tell of such like. A number of the ladies were wearing big chiffon hats wired around the edge. (These hats combined with those spike vamp shoes must have made navigation precarious for women who have just kicked off abbreviated pumps and tossed aside felt cloches.) There was Mrs. Z, who, always representing the ultra in fashion, was introducing a fascinating gown of cream colored alpaca, lined throughout. The skirt was designed to suggest the forecasted hobble-skirt, and while she looked very trim, it is a style that is a bit too extreme for the more conservative ladies. Feather boas and high black shoes gave a chic touch to several costumes.

So this is what happened when the Flying Squadron flew in and temporarily turned their good will bags into grab bags. These very stylish gowns of the past were donned by stylish women of the present, and the feminine audience chuckled and chortled at the strange array. Clothes may not make the man, but they can surely un-make a woman.

Simple Science for Everybody

By Cohn G. Welles, Ph. D.

HOW A MAGNET PULLS.

IRON, the lowliest of metals, has one very rare quality.

Any ordinary piece has within it, uncountable little particles, each possessed of two persistent powers of attraction called north and south poles. The north poles of these particles attract the south poles of other particles—for each tiny bit is a little magnet. Ordinarily within the piece of iron all the north and south poles turn together happily, and consequently no particles pull outside the iron in search of any other poles.

But sometimes, when, by chance, the iron is jolted, and always when a magnet is put near the piece, the little particles are shaken up and turn about so that all the same poles face toward the magnet. Then each little particle of iron is pulling with all its might toward the opposite poles in the magnet. And the particles in the magnet, too, are pulling on all the particles in the ordinary piece of iron to make the poles face properly toward it. So you have, for instance, the north pole of the magnet pulling to rearrange all the particles in the iron so that their south poles face it. And when they are so arranged, the ordinary piece of iron has itself become a magnet for the time being, able to "magnetize" any other piece of iron by rearranging its particles by its power of attraction.

Ordinary soft iron remains magnetized only while the poles of its particles are kept in order by a magnet near by. As soon as the magnet is removed, the particles in the soft iron change about comfortably so that the north poles have south pole mates close beside them—and then, of course, the iron is no longer a magnet.

It is somewhat more difficult to arrange the particles in steel so that the steel is magnetized, because steel is a harder metal and its particles are less movable, but once they are arranged as a magnet, they remain facing in the same direction for a long time, and so the steel is a magnet for years.

This strange quality of iron and steel is very useful to us.

A compass needle is only a little magnet, shaped like a needle, and left free to turn its point always towards the earth's magnetic poles which are located, one near the north and the other near the south geographic pole.

No one knows very certainly what the earth's magnetic poles really are, but the most popular theory is that the earth has an iron core which like all iron, is magnetic. The core is said to extend through the earth with its ends near our geographic poles.

Without magnets there could be no electric motors. Consequently every electric device, from lights to airplane engines, depend on the very valuable magnetic power of iron.

A DISH FOR TODAY

Cheese Rolls

Three cups flour, 6 teaspoons baking powder, ½ teaspoon salt, 5 tablespoons fat, 2-3 cup cheese, cut very fine or grated, 1 egg, 1 cup milk.

Mix the flour, baking powder and salt. Cut in the fat with a knife. Add the cheese, and egg. Slowly add the milk, mixing with the knife. When a soft dough forms, place it upon a well floured paper and pat out until it is 1-3 inch thick. Cut out with a cooky cutter two inches in diameter. Spread each roll with milk and press over half way like Parker House rolls. Place ½ inch apart on a greased baking sheet. Bake 12 minutes in a moderate oven. Serve warm. These are very tempting and blend well with winter meals.

When boiling sweet potatoes add a tablespoonful of sugar to the water to improve the flavor. If you bake them grease the skins with lard before putting into the oven, so you can peel them easily and without waste.

HEALTHY LITERATURE.

A DEBATE on the subject: "Does the popular reading of psychology tend to immorality?" was held in New York between a team of English college women and a team of American college women. The English team, which took the affirmative, won the decision. I should like to have been present. I am not sure that I know which side of the debate I should have selected to uphold had I been invited, but I am certain I should have spent my entire time discussing the definition of the word "immorality."

Nor am I quite certain that I agree with the outcome of the debate. But if the question at issue had been: "Does the popular reading of modern books on psychology tend to stupidity?" I would have been freed of my doubts: I would have been on the affirmative side from the beginning and would have cheered an affirmative decision to the echo.

Exciting as the new books on psychology may be to some they are not to me, and partly, I think, because I used to read the old ones. Just as much of modern literature leaves me not only cold but sleepy, for the plain reason that as I read I remember so many better things to read. I am irritated at the Ulysses of James Joyce not because I think it is naughty, but because I remember the Ulysses of Homer beside which it is dull. I nod over the romance of D. H. Lawrence, because I long for the romances of Dumas. And it is exactly so with the psychology books: the certainties of Dr. Watson seem immemorially unimportant beside the doubts of William James.

And exactly the thing that is the matter with modern literature is the thing that is the matter with modern psychology. For if you want to see modern literature with its essential unreality you must compare it to some of the solid examples of literature at its beginnings. And when I say literature at its beginnings I mean literature when you began it—I mean "Jack and the Beanstalk." For the essential fact about "Jack and the Beanstalk" is that you are introduced into a world so fantastic that beans grow to the sky over night and so perverted that giants want to eat little boys, but in which the hero is perfectly normal. In the romances of modern literature the hero is perverted and everything else is normal—which neither makes sense nor arouses interest. If D. H. Lawrence had been writing "Jack and the Beanstalk" he would have made not Jack but the giant the hero, and if James Joyce had been writing it he would have made the beanstalk the hero.

There is a story, I think by Guy de Maupassant, in which a man visits an insane asylum and as his visit is prolonged it gradually dawns on him that the inmates have revolted and put the keepers in their cells, and have themselves dressed up as keepers. It might be used as the motto of modern psychiatry. For no matter how queer the queerest thoughts a lunatic might have today they would seem tame and solid beside the fantastic and restless gibbering that goes on in the studies of the alienists.

Baked Calves' Hearts.

A delightful and economical change. Carefully remove the insides of the hearts, washing out with cold water. Stuff with a bread poultry dressing. Place in a greased pan and pour around them one cup water. Bake slowly for 45 minutes, basting as you would a roast and adding more water if necessary.

'The FORTUNATE WAYFARER'

by E. Phillips Oppenheim

INSTALLMENT LII.

AT FREDDY'S NIGHT CLUB.

"IT'S a queer country for this sort of job," Freddy remarked, "but I've plenty here who'd take it on. It's a question of the dollars—nothing else."

Victor Porle waved his hand with a little gesture of indifference.

"Then so can the men," Freddy announced. "I guess," he added, rising to his feet, "that we'd better have a jaw in my office if you mean business."

The two men followed him across the room, reeking now of tobacco smoke. Uninviting though the appearance of the place had always been, it had changed for the worse during the last hour. Some of the men playing cards had taken off their coats and were devoting themselves to their gambling with a brutal zest. Two women were quarreling violently; their language and gestures obscene and hysterical. Champagne was being drunk in every direction—champagne and raw spirits. Freddy looked back with a word of explanation.

"One of them racing gangs that shows up here most nights; they're having a bit of a beano," he confided. * * * "Hullo, Lane!" he broke off. "What are you doing here all by yourself?"

The young man addressed looked up calmly. He was of a different type to any of the crowd by whom he was surrounded, dressed in a neat dark blue suit with clean linen and manicured hands.

"I like myself better than the company here tonight," he observed. "That's why I'm alone. There'll be trouble here before morning if you don't look out, Freddy. Hoover's gang are all red-hot for mischief, and if one of Daniel's lot comes along, he'll get his."

"I've telephoned them to stay away," Freddy answered brusquely. "I can't do more. Come into the office with us. I want you to know my two friends here. There may be something doing."

The young man abandoned the game of patience upon which he had been engaged and rose to his feet.

"I was just going to leave this pit hole anyway," he declared.

"Moving on to the Carlton, I suppose?" Freddy sneered.

The new addition to their party smiled as he lounged after them.

"If anything," he confessed, "could persuade me to turn over a new leaf, it would be a study of the lower form of criminals, of whom, my dear Freddy, you have far too many here. In their way, I suppose, they are useful, but as companions they offend my taste."

"They'll face a gun, which is more than you sneak thieves would do," Freddy scoffed, as he threw open the door of his sanctum. "Now let's get to business. I can't take my eye off this place for more than five minutes at a time."

"To business certainly," Victor Porle assented, selecting the most comfortable chair and lighting a cigarette. "The undertaking I have to suggest to you is one in which violence or bloodshed are quite unnecessary. Subtlety, coolness and assurance are the three qualities which will be required. The risk is infinitesimal and the reward large."

The young man smiled appreciatively.

"I must confess that I am attracted toward the business, whatever it may be," he declared. "It is always one of my pleasures in life to work with or for a gentleman such as I perceive you, sir, to be."

"Get down to the tacks," Freddy growled.

THE WEB TIGHTENS.

THEY met, accidentally, as it seemed, in the lounge of the Ritz at 12 o'clock on the following morning. Madame da Mendora, notwithstanding her perfect self-composure, welcomed him with a smile which was half deprecating, half embarrassed. Gerald was looking as gloomy as was possible for him when accosted by a really beautiful woman.

"Tell me," she asked, quickly, "you were unlucky? Yes? You stayed?"

He nodded.

"They got me all right," he admitted. "I've just come from Vine street. Now I've got to face the music with my uncle."

She looked nervously around.

"Come and sit in that corner with me and have a cocktail," she whispered. "There is something I must say to you."

He glanced at the clock and assented willingly enough. Notwithstanding his depression, Madame da Mendora in her simple but obviously Parisian costume, her general air of smartness and her sympathetic tone and manner, was to even his fastidious taste a very attractive personage.

"First of all," he said as soon as the order had been given, "I want you to promise that you will never breathe a word to any one about my having been at that place last night."

"Of course I won't," he agreed ruefully. "I'm in trouble enough about it myself."

"Now there is another thing I want you to do for me," she continued. "I want you to present me to Lord Ardrington."

He looked at her half doubtfully, half surprised.

"But why on earth?" he began * * * "The old boy scarcely speaks to any one nowadays. Besides, he's suffering from an attack of nerves. A young protege of his is missing and some of his old pals from South America are leading him the devil of a life."

"Never mind," she insisted. "It will be quite easy for you and I have a very special reason."

"Do you know anything about him in his younger days?" Gerald asked curiously.

"I myself have never met him," she acknowledged, "but I know those who have—one, indeed, who is very deeply interested. As soon as I have met him and talked for a few minutes, the next time you and I come together I will tell you everything."

"Oh, I'll present him, of course, if there's the ghost of an opportunity," Gerald promised. "Perhaps we could dine together one night soon, eh?"

She looked at him out of her wonderful eyes and the acceptance of his half-casual invitation became a thing greatly to be desired.

"My dear boy, of course I will dine with you, if you like," she assented, "on my first free evening, but you realize, I hope, that I am old enough to be your mother."

"I don't believe it," he declared incredulously.

The cocktails were served. Gerald drunk his at a gulp and ordered another.

"Jove, they gave us a doing at that beastly police court this morning," he confided.

She stopped his impending recital.

"Lord Ardrington has just come into the lounge," she pointed out. "Look, he is quite alone. He is coming this way, too. You will never have a better opportunity."

Gerald rose a little hesitatingly to his feet. His uncle was now in fact within a few yards of them on his way to a chair. Gerald, his hand forced, accepted the inevitable.

"Uncle," he said, "I want to present to you my friend Madame da Mendora, who wishes to meet you."

"I ought to have known you long ago, Lord Ardrington," she said, looking at him all the time with an air of almost wistful earnestness. "When I first arrived in England this season it was my intention to come and see you, and then—well, I put it off and it be[came] more difficult each day."

"Have we met before?" he inquired in some curiosity.

"Never, although you have often heard my name. It is really a little difficult for me to tell you who I am," she went on, "unless you can guess."

He shook his head.

"In the old days, when I lived at Buenos Aires, I was called Rosita Fortuna. Laurita was my sister."

His surprise amounted almost to incredulity.

"Laurita's sister?" he repeated. "But I thought——"

"You associated nothing but poverty with us, of course," she interrupted. "That is quite natural. I, too, was on the stage and penniless, but I was fortunate enough to marry a very rich man. He died recently. Now I have nothing to do but travel and I am alone. If ever you wanted a home for Laurita," she sighed, "she would find a very warm welcome from me."

"I could not possibly spare her," Lord Ardrington declared hastily. "You must please not suggest such a thing. I am an old man and not very strong, and Laurita is very dear to me."

"You need have no fear," Madame da Mendora reassured him. "I shall never take advantage of my legal relationship. You did what you could for her mother and you made her happy. You have brought the child up and she shall stay with you for your lifetime, and she shall become—as she is at present—my heiress. But on one condition."

"Well?"

"That you never either hand her over to her father or permit her to have any intercourse with him."

Lord Ardrington drew a deep sigh of relief.

"My dear lady," he confided, "that is a condition which you need never have troubled to make. Her father is the curse and dread of my life. He was also the curse and dread of dear Laurita's life."

Madame da Mendora shivered.

"From all I have heard he is a very terrible person."

"He is over here at the present time," Lord Ardrington declared, speaking with some excitement. "He has tried to rob me of Laurita. He sent me lawyers' letters. He absolutely tried to abduct Laurita from my house in Norfolk. Fortunately, I saw a way out. The next time we meet I will tell you about it."

"You will let me see Laurita," she begged. "I promise that I will make no claim to her."

"You shall see her most certainly."

"Is she like me?"

Lord Ardrington shook his head. "She is like her mother."

Stuffed Lamb Chops.

A delightful dish for the platter luncheon. Have the chops cut very thick. Slit each chop, cutting to the bone. Fill the opening with a regular poultry filling. Close edges with a strip of bacon, either tied around or held in place with toothpicks. Broil as you would ordinary lamb chops. Serve topped with a sprig of parsley.

BILLY.—La Crosse is a Canadian outdoor game, played with a ball and stick of light hickory, bent at the top like a bishop's crozier from which the game derives its name. It was very popular among the Indians of North America, being sometimes taken part in by up to 1000 players, in which tribe was set against tribe, the games lasting for days, broken arms and legs being common among the players and some even being killed. For details of game see encyclopaedia at the Public Library.

FORT WORTH.—Two Federal prohibition enactments were the direct outgrowth of conditions during the World War (1914-1918). The Food Control Act forbade the use, after Sept. 8, 1917, of food materials in the production of distilled spirits for beverage purposes and empowered the President to place similar restrictions on the manufacture of malt and vinous liquors. The Emergency Agricultural Appropriation Act, for stimulating agricultural production, signed by President Wilson, Nov. 18, 1918, carried a wartime prohibition rider, providing for nation-wide prohibition of the manufacture and sale of intoxicating drinks from July 1, 1919, until after the signing of peace and the complete demobilization of the army, the date of such demobilization to be fixed by presidential proclamation. The Eighteenth Amendment to the Constitution was submitted to the States by Congress on Dec. 18, 1917. The first State (Mississippi) ratified it on Jan. 8, 1918, and on Jan. 6, 1919, the thirty-sixth State (Nebraska) ratified it, whereupon, by proclamation of the Secretary of Sttae, Jan. 29, 1919, it became effective one year from that date, Jan. 16, 1920. The Volstead Act (the National Prohibition Act) was drawn up to enforce the Eighteenth Amendment when it came into effect, Jan. 17, 1920, and was passed by Congress early in Oct. 1919. It was vetoed by President Wilson, and was immediately passed over his veto on Oct. 28—the vote in the House being 176 to 55, and in the eSnate, 65 to 20. The Willis-Campbell act strengthening the prohibition act became a law on Nov. 23, 1921.

LEGAL INFORMATION

(By a Member of the St. Louis Bar Association)

VERA.—The party can be held to the contract if he signed it, but if all the work was not done, this could be shown, to reduce the damages.

READER.—A married woman has not the right to open the husband's mail without his permission. This also applies to the husband.

PERRY.—By an amendatory act of Congress effective July 1, 1928, the statutory fee for registration of published work subject to copyright was increased to two dollars. This includes the Copyright Office certificate under seal. For registration of a published photograph where a certificate is not desired, the fee is one dollar. For dramas, music, lectures and works of art not produced in copies for sale (i. e., unpublished) the registration fee is one dollar as heretofore. For registration of renewal of copyrights, one dollar. The original term of copyright under existing U. S. law runs for 28 years. Within one year prior to the expiration of the original term, the author, if living, or the widow or the next of kin may secure a renewal for a further term of 28 years, making 56 years in all.

MEDICAL QUESTIONS

Health and sanitation questions of public interest only will be considered. Diagnosis or treatment of individual cases will not be given.

MYSTERIOUS MR. X.—A boy 15 years of age should weigh 114 pounds. A boy six years of age should weigh 47 pounds.

A MAN.—For itching scalp and falling hair, use the following: Tincture of cantharides, 1 ounce; oil of lavender, ½ drachm; oil of rosemary, ½ drachm; cologne, 8 ounces. Mix, shake and apply to scalp with gentle friction, night and morning. Also shampoo every four or five days with hot water and pure castile soap.

MRS. X.—For safety and best results such a case should be under the personal care of a physician specialist (neurologist) and we will recommend some one for this service if you so desire and will need stamped and addressed envelope. The case is essentially what is known in medical literature as a neurosis, and with proper care and treatment should be cured as many such cases are.

PERPLEXED.—Menopause or change of life often begins in the way you mention. If such is your case this may be responsible for your troubles. In any event, however, you should be benefited by taking "Viburnum Compound" (Haydens) in teaspoonful doses, three times daily and beginning two days before time of period. Also hot hip and foot baths night and morning, remain quiet and at perfect rest during this time.

MAMIE.—Excessive armpit perspiration is usually traceable to some nerve disturbance. It may also be inherited. To relieve the condition sponge the armpits night and morning with very hot water and then dry thoroughly. The following powder should be applied after the drying: Mix one-half drachm salicylic acid, one ounce prepared chalk and one ounce of burnt alum.

L. P.—The symptoms of cirrhosis of the liver are due largely to obstruction of the portal (liver) circulation and are such as catarrh of the stomach and intestines with vomiting, foul breath, nausea and constipation. Also jaundice is often present. In the more advanced stage there is bleeding from the nose, stomach or intestines, with swelling of the feet and dropsy of the abdomen. The prospect of a cure is unfavorable. While many cases are of long duration, the disease ultimately terminates fatally. In the line of treatment the diet should be restricted to milk and similar non-irritating foods. Fatty, sweet, and alcoholic foods are to be avoided.

MEXICO WILL CONFISCATE PROPERTY OF INSURGENTS
PRIESTS ORDERED TO REPORT ADDRESSES
Another Passenger Train Bombed—Armed Agrarians Said to Be Gathering in Vera Cruz State.
By the Associated Press.
MEXICO CITY, Feb. 12.—President Emilio Portes Gil today answered disturbances of the last three days in Mexico with an announcement of economic warfare against elements antagonistic to the present Government.
He blamed Catholic elements for disturbances and a seditious atmosphere in the nation, and said that property of "authors or accomplices" of future movements against the Government would be confiscated and divided among peasants and workers who had remained loyal to the regime.
The announcement was in the form of a signed statement to Mexico City newspapers. It followed closely orders from Acting Secretary of the Interior Canada to all Catholic priests in the nation to send their addresses to the Government within two weeks.
The President said he acted "for purposes of public security," and "in view of the subversive conduct of the high Mexican clergy."
He gave warning that all those who failed to comply with the instructions would be considered accomplices of rebellious elements and civil action would be instituted against them.
The two moves by the Government followed increasingly disturbing reports of incidents apparently growing out of the execution of Jose de Leon Toral, assassin of President-elect Obregon last Saturday.
There were belated reports of the bombing of a Colima-Guadalajara passenger train Sunday and dispatches from the State of Vera Cruz indicated that armed Agrarians were congregating at places there. Agitators were urging them to rebel.
While the diplomatic corps and hundreds of personal friends streamed through the reception rooms at the presidential palace yesterday congratulating him on his escape from the bomb which blew up his train Sunday, President Portes Gil was making up his mind how best to meet the situation.
Denies Religious Persecution.
The President in his statement says:
"The Government hereby declares it cannot admit that condition of Catholics is the result of religious persecution by the Government. In accordance with the program of the previous administration restrictive measures have been gradually diminished until now is only church services which are under suspension. And it is well known this suspension was not imposed by the civil authorities.
(Church services in Mexico were suspended in 1926 when the priests abandoned their posts by order of the Mexican episcopate, this being a form of protest against the enforcement of national laws regulating religious activities.)
"Nothing now exists to show that the conflict in which the executive offices once played a leading role still continues. The Government cannot admit that this conflict is the spontaneous disinterested destruction. The great majority of the inhabitants of this country remain aloof from influences which are brought to bear and either support the Government, as did the people and the workers, or remain neutral, maintaining an attitude which cannot be considered hostile.
"Even various rebel groups have surrendered, convinced of the rectitude of the Government and the Government's nonparticipation in conflicts of a spiritual nature.
Assails Promoters of Unrest.
"This same Government, on the contrary, has sufficient data to declare that besides the illegal exploit of the big newspapers which once again showed their unscrupulous views in making a vulgar eulogy of the criminal without even alluding to the cowardice and repugnance of his crime, there were elements who devoted themselves to the task of recruiting mourners who were willing to accompany to the cemetery and with the greatest pomp and with
